STOP HIGHWAY WORK AS HOLIDAY SAFETY HELP

Construction Jobs Creating Hazard Closed July 1 to July 5

That old bugaboo of the holiday motorists—the road construction gap—will be pretty well tamed under July 4 state highway department regulations this year.

Michigan State police and the department are coordinating for the second year their efforts to expedite traffic, reduce accidents and drive the careless motorist from the highways during the holiday period.

Murray D. Van Wagoner, state highway commissioner, requested district engineers to close down work on construction projects from July 1 to July 5 on all jobs where increased traffic might bring danger to motorists.

"On projects where no serious hazard is anticipated in carrying traffic through construction, you may permit work on Saturday and Monday but not on Sunday or Tuesday," Van Wagoner instructed district engineers.

ACQUIRE 57-FEET FROM BRIDGE STREET TO LAKE

Ask Highway Department for Survey to Establish Speed Limit on US-31 in City Limits

Following custnmary procedure, the city council Monday night augmented the present police force by the appointment of two special patrolmen for the summer season.

Named by Mayor Robert Bridge and confirmed by the council were Harry Powers and Donald Swinton. Mr. Powers has served previous summers.

In an effort to control speeding on US-31 within the city limits, the council adopted a resolution, a copy of which was sent to the state highway department, asking that a survey be made to determine a speed llmit on this trunk lioe highway. Following receipt of such recommendation the city will erect proper signs and use the city-owned police car to enforce the regulations.

Purchase through lease of the O'Neil property on Bridge street was approved by the clty council. The property, with 57 foot Bridge street frontage and extending to Round lake, was acquired at a cost of $5,000, payable over a 10-year period at 3% interest, which is a lower cost than the city has been able to obtain on other Bridge street property. It is understood the lot will be used, temporarily at least, for automobile parking.

GOOD WILL SHIP HERE THURSDAY

LATE ARRIVAL CUT 3-HOUR INTENDED STAY SHORT

City and Board of Commorce Officials, Business Men, Guests for Dinner on Str. Alabama

Grand Rapids' good will cruisers, aboard the Str. Alabama, made their second visit by boat to this city Thursday, arriving at 5:30 instead of 3:30 p. m. as originally intended after buffeting head winds from Mackinac Island.

Charlevoix citizens turned out en mass to greet the party. Boat parties and local coast guards escorted the big ship into Round lake and hundreds along with the city band were at the municipal dock.

Mayor Robert Bridge greeted the cruisers, headed by President H. M. Taliaferro of the Grand Rapids Association of Commerce, but was called away from the dinner given aboard ship. At the dinner, Clair S. Webster, president of the Charlevoix Board of Commerce, presented Commodore Hekman with "the fish he didn't get a year ago," and handed the cruisers the "key to the city."

Donald Herrick, city superintendent, welcomed the cruisers in the absence of Mayor Bridge. Gordon B. Todd, secretary of the Board of Commerce, expressed regret that a golf tournament and fishing parties arranged for the visitors had to be abandoned because of the late arrival. Will Bellinger and E. J. Edwards, directors, were among the dinner guests along with a large group of local business men.

The visit provided a "big time" for the kiddies. They were given souvenir pencils, balloons, canes and other gifts and were showered with pennies from the deck of the ship.

The cruisers returned to Grand Haven at 8 a. m. Friday, after a trip which took them to Traverse City, Bay City, Saginaw, Mackinac Island and Charlevoix.

SHOT AT RANDOM

By Kan Ushor

Sun glassea serve a dual purpose ln Charlevoix during the summer. They not only protect the eye from the dazzling sun rays, but also make it a little easier on the optica when one viaws some of the costumes which used tn be beach apparel, but now are every-day street apparel. They blame it onto the modern age we live in, so I'm told.

From all the reports I've heard, the fishermen out-numbered the bass caught on the opening day Sunday. Some of the inland lakes were so crowded with boats it looked like a regatta and plugs and bait flew so fast the fish didn't have a chance to make up their mind which one to take, so didn't take any. Some nice small mouth were taken from Lake Charlevoix, although no large catches were reported. The day waa far too bright and still for good fiahing. It is generally known that bass spawned late hecause of cold water and backward spring, so future weeks will probably bring better fishing than the early days of the season. While not overly plentiful, steelhead can still be taken quite regularly and I heard that the Loebs caught three big mackinaw in Lake Charlevolx one day last week.

They tell me the jitter bug contests Bill Kerns holds out at The Argonne are really something to see. He has a packed house every Thursday night and sometimes has to put out the "Sanding Room Only" signs. Some of our local fellas and gals certainly know how to "jit," according to the information I get, aad they really put on a show. Might be worth looking into, at that.

Michigan sportsmen, particularly those who like to hunt rahbits and thrill to the bell-like voice of the hound in chase, will be disappolnted that the season was not extended as many had sought. The way mattera

LANSING LETTER

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

What happens when a state goes broke?

Auditor General Vernon J. Brown gives the answer in these words:

"It goes broke when its total cash on hand will not cover the total of checks drawn or to be drawn.

Just that has happened to the state of Michigan which has finally reached the end of its financial rope.

Therein is an interesting story of how the state government has gradually assumed, more and more, the financial responslbllity of maintaining services in countles, achool districts, and eitles, and how inereased spending has drained dry the till.

Auditor General Brown presents the picture frankly, comparing the state's budget needs with those of the average family which must stretch income to meet expenses or incur an embarrassing deficit and prospect of bankruptcy.

Once Self-Supporting

"Back in 1933 the local units of government were self-supporting," the state official explains in an article prepared for the Ingham County News at Mason, of which he is the publisher.

Grass Silage Beats Corn

Ten tons of alfalfa-brome grass in the silo from an acre of land with excellent prospects of a second crop for hay or pasture is an average yield on test plots at Michigan State college that points to greater use of this combination crop. Farm crops men at the college find the grass type silage involves less labor than corn, provides at least an equal yield in volume and has about twice as much protein as corn silage.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT

Your Water and Ice Supply

The town dweller need not worry about what he drinks as his water supply is under the control of authorities who realize the importance of furnishing a continued safe supply. It is tested frequently in the laborstory to insure that it continues safe.

As soon as the town dweller escapes into the country, however, he is liable to be infected by what he drinks unless he takes an intelligent interest in the problem. Rivers are, unfortunately, usunlly contaminated, and as a rule the farther water is taken from its origin, the greater its impurities.

When the source of the supply is dubious, boil the water. In camp with no more elaborate equipment than a clean hnndkerchief and a spirit lnmp, one can make one's own supply of safe and palntable drinking water. The pocket hnndkerchief is used as a filter to catch various parasites and their eggs in its meshes, and the spirit lamp insures the boiling of this filtered water for a few minutes. It is now quite snfe to drink. Some persons may object to the flat taste of boiled water, a fault easily corrected by half filling a bottle and shaking it thoroughly till it has become well aerated.

Is ice safe? More or less. Germs are not promptly frozen to death on iee, but their reproductive faculties are effectively numbed. The odds are that any germs, such as those of typhoid, which hnve hecome locked within a lump of ice will have perished before it melts. Prof W. H. Parks of New York has written. "Natural lee which is stored usually for several weeks or months before its use is practically safe."

"Perhaps these might also be called tha uncles and aunts who came to live with Mr. and Mrs. Michigan. Or perhaps these local units of government might be the married children and their offspring coming to live with their parents. In any event, the total of all revenues collected by the state and transmitted to counties, cities and school districts prior to 1932 did not exceed $40,000,000 a year.

"In 1938 almost exactly one-half of all the money the state of Michigan collected, more than a hundred million dollars, was earmarked and by law was merely collected for and turned over to counties, school districts, cities and townships to be spent by local officials for purposes which formerly were supported entirely from taxes spread locally by local officials or for new purposes conceived since the state at large became a Santn Claus.

"New school aids provided since 1933 consume more than $25,000,000 a year. Demands of county and city relief commissions, always before 1933 supported from local taxes alone, each year absorb nearly $40,000,000 of state cash. Another $30,000,000 goes direct and immediately into county road coffers.

State Increase Slight

"So when one deducts this $65,000,000 of new grants-in-nid set up since 1933, plus increased aid to county road commissions since 1932, It is discovered that the actual increase in those functions of state government which existed back in 1933 costs but slightly more than then.

"Now let us go back and get these figures in mind once again. Expenses piling up. Income going down. How many people have faced this condition in their own affairs during recent years! What did they do about it? They cut expenses, or faced disaster. The careful business mnn who faced that condition either stimulated his business income or cut his expenses to what he took in.

"The state has not done that. Faced with a suddenly reduced state income when the strikes nimed their deadly blows at business back in 1937, the state took on new and added obligations and spent more than ever. The legislature blithely appropriated an extra $10,000,000 for relief when its coffers were already empty. That was merely legalizing embezzlement becnuse in order to pay the hills, trust funds were used.

"And that leads up to the next step in our study.

"Michigan's constitution is very rigid in certain respects. It provides that receipts from certain specific taxes must be applied to certain specific purposes. For instance, railroad, telephone, utility and similar taxes go into the primary school interest fund to be divided between the school districts strictly in accordanca with constitutional mandate. Motor vehicle and gasoline taxes are very definitely earmarked for road maintenance and improvement and cannot be expended otherwise. They should not be even borrowed for general fund expenditures, but unfortunately tbey are.

Borrowing From Peter

"Tbe last sentence in the foregoing paragraph shows how the state can get so far in the red and still pay. The state merely puts these trust fund reveaues temporarily in its general fund and uses the money to pay its current bills wbenever the revenues intended and provided for general fund expenses fall below its general fund expenses.

"But there finally comes a time in state management just as it will in private venture when this practlce leada to grief. It has happened in Michlgan.

"Last January tbe general fund deficit atood in excess of $10,000,000. Expensea and demands upon the state since that day hava each and every day exceeded daily receipts available for general fund purposes. On the last day of this present month of 1939, the general fund deficit will exceed $31,000,000. This condition is unavoidable and inescapable.

"The state can do this because its total trust fund balances exceed this sum. Red ink is offset by black ink.

Not All Funds In Cash

"But that does not explain how the state can go broke and not be able to meet its bills. Well, the explanation of this is tha fact tha state does not have all its funds in cash. The law provides that sinking funds carried against outstanding state obligations—higbway bonda voted back in 1921, war and soldier bonus bonds, et cetera—must be invested in interest-bearing aecuritles. This is indeed fortunate. Otherwise when tha state bonds fall due there would ba nothing from which to pay them and the peopla would thus be taxed a second time to pny the debts they represent.

"What happened last week, then, when the state went broke? Well, one morning there eame into the hands of the auditlon general with instructions to pay it out, all in strict accordance with law, a warrant for more than $2,000,000. The auditor general naturally inquired of the treasurer how his liquid cash stood. The auditor general found that there was only $3,400,000 cash on deposit in all the banks of the state in which the state treasurer carries his deposits.

How It Happened

"The books of the auditor general showed that checks totaling more than $2,000,000 had already been sent out but had not yet been presented to the trensury for payment. You know — outstanding warrants. Payrolls for the half-month were in preparation. These payrolls for nearly 17,000 state employees call for another million. That left less than half a million cash on hand.

"The auditor general already had held up nearly a million in refunds to citics and townships due them under the liquor control act. He also held about $650,000 of overdue bills for hospital and surgical services rendered under the afflicted and crippled children acts, awaitlng the signing of a deficiency bill passed by the legislature. He knew these hospitals were in desperate need of the money. He knew that avery working day there go out from his office more than 4000 checks to aged dependents—old nge assistance checks—and they certainly must be paid. He knows that county welfare units must have state cash to meet the requirements of those in need. He knows that nearly 40,000 inmates of state institutions—penal, charitable, mental and corrective—must be fed, housed, clothed and guarded.

"So this is how a state goes broke."

What Is to Be Done?

In the judgment of the state auditor general, Michigan has "two ways to crawl out of tbe hole."

1. Have the legislature balance the budget. Tbis means deninl of demands from "pressure groups" for spending of state funds in excess of reasonable revenue expectations.

2. "Then at some time the revenues of the state might increase and the red ink items might be wiped off. Falling in this, the people, with the current budget halanced, might some dny forget and forgive and authorize the issuance of time bonds to retire the old debts."

As for new taxes, legislatora will probably hesitate a long time before resorting to this unpopular step. A bond issuc, Mr. Brown also feels, would face cartain defeat in a state referendum.

Tha legialaure, meeting today (June 29) for final adjournment, has a "pretty kettle of fish" to stew, any way you look at it. The auditor general's statement fully emphasizes the difficult task with which legislators today are confronted.

THE LADY AND THE ROUGHNECK

SHE SAID SHYLY, "Couldn't I take a peek?" He said bashfully, "Er-r lady, you can try."

He was a roughneck, which is the regular name for a worker like him in the oil fields. She was a dear, with two little grandsons back East whose lips would round as she told of looking down the world's deepest hole . . . down well-nigh 3-miles . . . down the famed 15,004-foot Conoco oil well in California.

You too are invited to see it. Of course, as the lady knows now, you can't squint so awfully far down a 3-mile bore. But if you could only get a squint into the 3-inch bore of your motor car's cylinders! . . . if you could only watch patented Conoco Germ Processed oil give your engine wondrous OIL-PLATING! Then you'd see those precious working parts not merely oil-sploshed and oil-smeared but OIL-PLATED with a perfect skin-fit—all bumpers are chromium-plated. Chromium-plating surely doesn't thin out, fry up, or drain down; and neither does OIL-PLATING. So it stays clear up to the cylinder head despite 400 or 500 miles a day; despite 4 or 5 hours' parking—and longer. Then all your Summer starts and spurts will be wear-proofed by slippy OIL-PLATING that's never all gone. Beats any mere on-again-off-again oiling, particularly when you tote up all your miles between quarts! MARY HELEN FOCHTMAN IS WED TO ALMA MAN IN PRETTY CEREMONY

Huge bouquets of white Shasta daisies and spreading palms decorated the large bay windows in the living room of Mr. and Mrs. Angus Fochtman for the wedding Saturday afternoon of their daughter, Mary Helen, and Robert Granger Riggle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Riggle, of Alma. Rev. G. Russel Parker, pastor of the First Congregational church, officiated.

The bride's aunt, Mrs. Clair Webster, sang "At Dawning," after which the Wedding March from "Lohengrin" was played by Mrs. A. J. Stelter.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white lace princess-style gown with a shirred Sweetheart neckline. Her skirt was fashioned from wide strips of matching lace with flaring white net inserts continuing into a long train. Long net sleeves fell in points over her hands. Her fingertip veil of net was held in place with a tiara of pearls. She carried a large bouquet of white roses with yellow centers fringed with baby breath, and tied with a long, white satin ribbon.

Miss Esther Lou Fochtman, sister of the bride, who was maid of honor, wore a long gown of blue tiers of taffeta and net, and carried a bouquet of sweet peas of pastel shades. Howard Williams, classmate of the bridegroom, was best man.

The bride's mother wore a large corsage of vari-colored sweet peas on a dress of two shades of blue. Mrs. Riggle, mother of the groom, wore a gown of blue lace with yellow and white sweet peas tied with a white ribbon at her shoulder.

After the ceremony a four-tiered wedding cake, blocks of white ice cream with pink wedding bells in the center, fruit punch and bonbons were served in the dining room.

Out-of-town guests were: the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Riggle, Sr., his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Riggle, Jr., of Alma; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Williams, Miss Virginia Whittemore, Miss Edith Corwin and Miss Kay Stoddard, all of Alma; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Young, of Sagiaaw; Mrs. S. W. House and Mrs. Cora Miller, of Petoskey; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Miller of Benton Tarbor; Mr. and Mrs. Earl M. Grove and daughter, Joan, of Traverse City; Charles House, of Plint; and Mr. and Mrs. Ted LaVallee, of Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. Riggle left on a wedding trip and will be at home in Lansing after July 1, where Mr. Riggle is associated with the Michigan Bell Telephone company. Mrs. Riggle chose a blue and white crepe ensemble with white accessories for travelling. She wore a corsage of sweet peas at her shoulder.

CHARLEVOIX HOST TO INSURANCE MEN

Other speakers included Harry L. Shearer, assistant secretary of the Detroit board of commerce, and Robert Bridge, mayor of Charlevoix, who welcomed the visitors.

Entertainment for the ladies, this year being the first time any appreciable number attended the annual convention, was supervised by Mrs. Carl C. Steiner, co-manager of the Belvedere Hotel. A boat ride on Lake Charlevoix apd Lake Michigan was a pleasant feature Wednesday afternoon and a bridge party was given Wednesday evening with awards going to Mrs. W. L. Nicholson, Mrs. J. J. Morrority and Mrs. C. H. Zook, all of Detroit.

Thursday was devoted entirely to recreation. A golf tournament was held at the Belvedere golf club with awards as follows: First blind bogey, W. D. Cameron, Lansing; 2nd blind bogey, R. R. Bucknell, Detroit; nearest handicap, H. B. Corell, Lansing; first low gross, B. L. Hewett, Lansing; 2nd low gross, H. W. Knoblanch, Grand Rapids; 3rd low gross, R. M. Peterson, Detroit.

Many parties went lake fishing. A prize for the largest fish, donated by Culver & Beaudoin, Don Clothier Trolling Camp and Mac's Trolling Camp was won by A. W. Rittmuller of Detroit, who landed a 12¾ pound mackinaw.

The convention delegates were high in their praise of Charlevoix as a convention site, and particularly of the fine accommodations and services provided by the management of the Belvedere Hotel. As a result, this city is being seriously considered for the 1940 convention.

The principal business in the United States seems to be saving this country every 4 years, and the world at large every 20 years.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE NEWS BULLETIN

Operators' and Chauffeurs' Licenses

On June 21, the new law advancing the cost of automobile operators' licenses from $1 to $1.25 went into effeet. The period of validity of such licenses is three years.

Chauffeurs' licenses are still $2 and will be valid for one full year after date of issue. In the past applicants for chauffeur's permits paid $2 which entitled them to drive for one year from January 1 to December 31. If they desired a permit for the last six months of the year they still had to pay the regular fee.

Under the new arrangement, chauffeurs may get a full yenr's use from their permits regardless of when they get them.

The new legal definition of n chauffeur under the new law is: Every person who is employed for the principal purpose of operating a motor vehicle, and every person who drives a motor vehicle while in use ns a public or common carrier of persons or property. A person shall be deemed to be employed for the principal purpose of operating a motor vehicle when such employment customarily involves the necessary use of the vehicle for hire or transportation for gain, or transporting passengers for hire. Farm trueks are exempted by the aet.

200-Word Announcement

The sixth of the Hardy Family pictures, titled "The Hardys Ride High," opens at the Palace Theatre next Thursday, July 6, for a three day engagement. The new story takes the familiar group to Detroit in response to the startling news that they have inherited a fortune.

The aame east which has scored in previous pictures of the aeries, appears again, with several additions. Lewis Stone portrays Judge Hardy; Mickey Rooney is again the irrepressaible son, Andy; Fay Holden appears as Mrs. Hardy; Cecilia Parker is the daughter, Marian; Sara Haden is the malden Aunt Milly; and Ann Rutherford enacts the role of Mickey's Carvel girl friend, Polly Benedict. Don Custle is the admirer of Cecilia.

New in the east are Virginia Grey, appearing us a cabaret glamour girl who attracts Mickey; Minor Watson as an admiror of Aunt Milly; William Orr as Mickey's rival for Ann Rutherford; Halliwell Hohbes as the Hardy Butler, and John King as a young millionalre.

The family encounters legal difficulties over the expected fortune in Detroit. Judge Hardy, facing an opportunity to win the money by a bit of dishonesty, faces the issue squarely and they return to Carvel, as poor as ever but equally as honest.

SOAP, HOT WATER CURB IVY POISON

If Michigan gets its usual large share of tourists this summer, the poison ivy still prevailing in many of the fence corners and woodsy spots will claim victims.

So the farm crops department of Michigan State college suggests cutting and salting the ivy to remove the pesky weed. And the home economics specialists in the extension aervice at the college suggest strong soap and hot water to halt the blistering effects.

Washing the hands or other parts of the skin which have been exposed to the plant removes the volatile acid oil which causes the swelling and blistering.

If this is done before the oil has had a chance to penetrate, the irritation is stopped. Careless washing, however, may spread the poison to other parts of the body.

Washing the finger nails and the tender areas between the fingers at least two or three times, interspersing the soap treatment with thorough rinsing helps get rid of the ivy oil. Hard scrubbing with a brush is to be avoided as this may rub the poison into the skin.

Even after inflammation has started, the soap treatment has value since it can help remove traces of the poison still on the skin surface.

Cooking soda or epsom salts, one or two heaping teaspoons to a cup of water, uppear to be helpful treatments. This is to be applied with light bandages of clean cloths, kept moist and changed frequently.

CHANGE

Change doesn't just happen. It results from the operation of natural laws throughout the univerae. In reality, it is creation continuing.

True ehange is more apparent in some parts of nature than it is in others, just as it is in some individuals. But it is going on just the same.

This fact has to be reckoned with, and the best way to reekon with it is to prepare for change. Ability to foresee change wins many a race.

Today more than ever before vision is needed to bring success to any and every undertaking. — Frank B. Craig.

PLAN SALVAGE TIMBER PRESQUE ISLE FIRE

Marketable Lumber in 25,000 Acres Burned Over to Be Sold

Timber salvage operations will begin soon in the area devastated by the $163,000 fire during May in the Presque Isle state forest near here, by order of the Michigan conservation commission.

The commission discussed details of handling the disposal of fire-killed timber at a special meeting at Mackinac Island June 20. It directed the foreatry division of the department of conservation to proceed with arrangements for selling the timber.

Approximately 2,000,000 feet of jack pine, Norway pine and white pine, nlong with smaller quantities of other species of timber, are listed for disposal. The fire, largest on record since 1933, burned about 25,000 acres within the forest, of which 80 per cent is owned hy the state.

NEW LAW TO CREATE BETTER SANITATION

Outlaws Outhouses Unless Kept in Condition as Law Prescribes

General improvement in the sanitation of rural, resort and suburban areas of Michigan is predicted by the state department of health as a probable result of the enforcement of Act No. 273 of the 1939 legislature which has been signed by Governor Dickinson. The new law becomes effective in 90 days.

Designed as a means of preventing the spread of typhoid and dysentery, the new act outlaws "any outhouse unless the same shall be kept at all times in a sanitary condition, and constructed and maintained in such manner as not to injure or endanger the public health." The new law recognizes the insanitary outhouse as a source of disease, thus making it unnecessary for health officials to prove that a public nuisance exists.

LEGISLATURE APPROVES FOX SQUIRREL HUNTING

Rabbit Season Remains Unchaoged in Both Peninsulas

The legislature approved an amendment to the general game laws that will restore the open hunting season on fox squirrels beginning this fall. This was the result of demands by squirrel hunters that hunting bushy tails be allowed for there appeared to be no scarcity of squirrels in any part of the state.

Rabbit hunting in the southern half of lower Michigan remains as it was last year closing on December 31. But above Town Line 16N, it will end January 31 and in the upper peninsula March 1. This gives the boys above the Straits two additional months and in the upper half of the lower peninsuln one month extra.

YOUR SCHOOL PROBLEM

Most parents in Michigan are interested in their children's education. And some of them are acutely upset over the question of state revennes to the schools. The proposed school budget of $45,000,000 if cut seven or eight million dollars may work hardship in some districts. Yet, as one legislator says, "How can we appropriate money which we don't have, if we intend to stay within our budget and not levy new taxes?"

The deep-concern which we hnve heard many people express over this situation and its effect on the schools has made us feel that at last the tax problem has come home to average people. We could publish statistics daily about the hidden taxes on a loaf of bread, about the $25 in tax a man pays yearly on his cigarettes if he smokes a package per day, etc. We could daily remind folks that one-third of their income goes for taxes right now nnd most of them would scarcely give such facts n second thought.

But now with constantly inereasing costs of government, with revenues in the millions, people are surprised that the project closest to them all—the schools — must suffer for lack of funds.

This dilemma may become a boon to Michigan if it awakens the average citizen to the tax situation. Ear marking large sums for more roads (as the voters did last fall) while the children's education suffers is scarcely a mark of a progressive state. A thorough investigation into the tax situation now will avert such a serious situation in the future. A united movement on the part of every civic-minded person and group will do the trick.

New Hope for Little Vietims of Infantile Paralysis! One of the many interesting features in The American Weekly, the magazine distrihuted with the Sunday Chicago Herald and Examiner.

The Department of the Interior, at Washington, has now been in existence 90 years, and in that time the number on its pay roll has increased from 6 to 45,000. That's what you call the growth of bureaucracy.

MICHIGAN FARM PURCHASES UP 60% FOR FIVE MONTHS

Sixty more Michigan farms passed from the Federal Land Bank of St. Paul into the hands of farmers during May, according to the monthly summary just completed by the bank.

"This brings to 234 the number of farms that have been purchased from the bank during the first 5 months of 1939, an increase of better than 60 per cent over purchases of this kind in Michigan last year.

are now, the lower peninsula hunters get gyped on their license fee when rabbit hunting is considered. In the upper peninsula the season is a month longer and their license costs just the same as it does for the lower Michigan hunters who have to tie up their hounds on December 31st. It isn't hardly a fair break and should be rectified.

The new store front installed early this week at Bergeon's store sure is nice looking. The latest wrinkle in modern front is what they say about it and will admit that it surely dresses up the place in an attractive manner.

East Jordan's chamber of commerce has started a campaign to build a road along the east side of the south arm of Lake Charlevoix to Ironton as a means of opening up a large tract of wonderful lake front to resort development. There is no more beautiful spot in this country than the south arm and a highway which would make the lake front accessible would no doubt prove a boomerang towards the building of summer homes. It is a project which merits county-wide support.

It's sure too bad the way Michigan has gone to "pot" since Frank Murphy gave up the governorship. To hear him tell about the gambling, wrecking of the merit system and all the rest of the mismanagement, you'd think our state affairs were in an awful mess. The funny part of it all is that most of the so-called mess is what Murphy left for someone else to clean up. Attorney General Tom Read sure called Murphy on his statements about gambling, and it is a generally known fact that the merit system which Murphy called a model for the country was just another scheme to plug every job in Lansing with a Democrat for the rest of his life. As long as there is politics there will be patronage and it is mighty hard to picture Democratic officials operating efficiently with a bunch of Republican appointees, or vice versa. So they might just as well forget the merit system entirely.

HOLIDAY WEEK END A RECORD BREAKER

TOURIST TRAFFIC EXCEEDED RECENT PREVIOUS YEARS

Charlevoix Hotels, Cabin Camps and Business Places Well Patronized — Accidents Were Few

Wednesday, or to be more exact Tuesday night, brought the curtain down on one of the greatest holiday week ends experienced in northern Michigan in recent years.

The influx of tourists and vacationists into Charlevoix and the northern Michigan resort region started as early as Friday and by Saturday reached record-breaking proportions. Traffic pile-ups were reported at the Straits where ferries carried far more automobiles nnd passengers than any recent year for the same period.

Charlevoix cabin camps had up "sold out" signs before the week end was half over, hotels, rooming places and restaurants enjoyed exceptionally good business and the facilities of trolling camps were taxed to care for the demand.

Charlevoix county and this city experieneed only a few minor automobile mishaps despite record-breaking traffic. The only incident of serious nature involved Dwight Bondy, young Boyne City resident, who is in Charlevoix Hospital for treatment to a reported self-inflicted hullet wound. He was shot through the ribs and his condition was reported to be not serious Wednesday night. While the county jail had an increase of inmates as the result of nine arrests for various offenses by officers throughout the county Monday, the holiday celebration was termed normal.

Merchants, summer hotel operators and businesses catering to tourists revealed satisfaction over business done over the holidays and many expressed the view that the holiday patronage presages a good summer season for this region.

CHERRY FESTIVAL OPENS WEDNESDAY

BIG THREE-DAY PROGRAM AT TRAVERSE CITY

Many New Features Announced for Twelfth Annual Event—Expect Thousands Will Attend

When a fleet of airplanes drop harmless hombs over Traverse City at daybreak Wednesday morning, July 12th, northwest Michigan will drop everything and turn its entire attention to the three day 1939 National Cherry Festival, celebrating the several million dollar cherry harvest.

At the same time a procession of nearly 200,000 visitors will start entering the city to witness the nation's third largest festival, packing this community of 13,000 souls to the limits and overflowing into the cabin camps, wayside eating places and hotels in the surrounding territory.

Almost before the reverberations of the bombs have ceased echoing in the orchard covered hills Queen Jean Halmond and her court will come sailing up Grand Traverse Bay aboard the Coast Guard Cutter Escanaba, with a convoy of a dozen ships of the Great Lakes Naval Training Fleet steaming along side. Guns and whistles will roar a welcome to the Queen of Cherryland as she lands at the municipal pier and begins her three-day rule.

SUPERVISORS CONCLUDE JUNE MEET

THREE-DAY SESSION ENDED WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON

Charlevoix City Supervisors Petition for Review of Property Valuations Following Disagreement

Completing u three-day session last Wednesday afternoon, the Charlevoix county board of supervisors adjourned until the regular October meeting.

Normally a one or two day session, the meeting went into the third day as a result of a controversy over the matter of equalization of property values. The equalization committee again failed to recognize the valuation figure set hy the Charlevoix board of review, increasing the amount from $2,500,975 to $2,910,975, an increase of $410,000.

As a result, Charlevoix supervisors, feeling that the equalization was unjust and discriminatory, filed with the clerk a petition for a review by the state tax commission of the action of the hoard. This was done for the purpose of securing expert judgment as to who is right in the matter.

The county valuation set by the equalization committee was $8,885,145, which is $13,080 lower than a year ago when the figure was $8,871,965. Decreases ranged from $75 for South Arm township to $40,955 for the city of East Jordan. Increases ranged from a low of $1,375 in Wilson township, to $19,320 in Hudson township. Charlevoix's valuation was decreased $16,025 from last year.

Due to the difference between valuations as set by the Charlevoix board of review and the county equalization committee, Charlevoix city taxpayers will be taxed for county purposes at a rate of 10.5 mills instead of 9 mills which will he assessed other township and city units. The fact was revealed following final allocation by the county tax allocation board, which set the rate at 9 mills for county purposes in all units except Charlevoix, 4.4 for schools and 1-10th mill for townships and cities.

SHOT AT RANDOM

By Ken Ushor

I've been told about everything under the sun has been left in railway car rest rooms, but will bet that the removable tooth returned to a local summer resident the other day took the prize for being unusual.

Had a letter the other day from Ted Kibbe, now located at Kalispell, Mont., and hope the time comes when I can take him up on the invitation he extends to come out and fish. His letter, in part, follows: "We are constructing a new unit here costing some $150,000, the produet to go into Glacier National Park waters. I'm living in Kallspell pending the construction and afterwards will move to the hatchery to assume charge. It's a beautiful mountainous country, lots of lakes and trout streams, and fishing is great. A mountain lake about the aize nf Lake Charlevoix is nearby and is surrounded by bigh mountains. Better come on out for a vacation and get aome real trout fishing and see how the other half of the world lives. Enjoy your columu, although sometimes don't fully agree with your extemporaneous outbursts. There haa been a lot of water run under the bridge aince we were kids in school together. Regarda, Ted Kibbe."

There's one leas buck in the deer herd which rangea along the Lake Michigan ahore between South Point and Norwood. Presumably dead from exhaustion after being chased by dogs, a big 8-pointer was found dead on the beach just south of Bell's Bay. It's aure too bad dog owners don't keep their animals tied up out of hunting season.

The city streets got a good washing-down, a lot of basements were flooded, field and orchard cropa received needed moisture during Tuesday's cloud-burst. It rained 1.4 inches in less than an hour's time. Milt

LANSING LETTER

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

Despite the man-made competition of International expositions this summer in New York City and San Francisco, Michigan's tourist industry is expected to reap a 1939 harvest of 350 millions.

Such is the estimate of Business Week.

California will be second with 235 millions, Minnesota 205 millions, and Wisconsin 150 millions.

Tourist expenditures have soared in to the "Big Business" category, but it would be a mistake to assume that Michigan's No. 2 industry is dependent solely upon the summer vacation habits of middle-west residents. It is becoming more and more a year-round business.

Peninsula Playground

Blessed by cooling refreshing winds off Lake Michigan, the lower peninsula of Michigan has long been a favorite haven for sweltering denizons of industrial cities as far as St. Louis, Cincinnati and Louisville.

Nature gave also the peninsula the blessing of thousands of spring-fed lakes.

What to some might appear to be a curse—sand and sand and more sand—happily made possible many

CAMP CHARLEVOIX WEEKLY NEWS COLUMN

Edited by Herbert W. Johnson

Boats and trains and autos brought together a fine group of boys for the 13th season of Camp Charlevoix on Lake Charlevoix during the past week. "Chief" Reimann and his staff were on hand to greet all the new-comers and help in the warm welcoming of the oldsters. Some of the campers had to use both hands to count the number of years they have been Camp Charlevoix "Braves." Others are beginning their first year of fun and development.

The camp has been divided into two groups for inter-camp competition—the Greens and the Grays. Billy Smith, Jim Gault and Jack Lehnhard have been elected Gray captains in the junior, intermediate and senior sections respectively, while Konrad Matthaei, Jim Kendall and Ralph McReynolds held the Green group in the same order. The Green captains are feeling pretty successful already, having won a point for their part in Friday's obstacle relay race.

The campers have been introduced to the various counsellors and their activities around the camp and have made their choices for morning activity periods during the coming two weeks. Sailing has maintained its good popularity while riding and swimming are also at the top of the list. Boxing, riflery, handicraft have full houses and tennis, athletics and artcraft are proceeding at busy tempo. Campcraft, canoeing, music and dramatics finish up a thorough and rounded program for camper development which we hope all will make the most of during the season.

The campers for this year represent many of the states in the country with Michigan, of course, in the lead. The boys in Michigan listed according to their cities, towns and hamlets are as follows:

He will be remembered as a resident of this community until eight years ago when he moved to Bellaire. Surviving besides the widow are a daughter, Mrs. Wilbur Thorne of Fife Lake; and three step-children. A sister, Mrs. Mary Winters, lives in Kewadin. Funeral services were conducted Sunday afternoon at the home with burial in the Bay View cemetery near Eastport.

Nice weather for Sunday school last Sunday.

Fine interest is being taken in the Bible Vacation school conducted by Rev. Meengs and others at North Holland church each Wednesday forenoon. A lunch is served at recess time.

Several from here attended the funeral Sunday at Bellaire of Bentley Kirby, an old-time resident of this place. A few years ago he sold his farm at Norwood and moved to Bellaire.

Rev. Flynn, a student from church college, gave a very interesting sermon last Sunday evening at Pentacostal church on "As We Walk in The Light." He is supplying for Mrs. Underwood until July 16th.

Mrs. Grant Irey arrived at her residence here last week and will remain for the summer. Her daughter, Mrs. Grace Nevins of Petoskey, is visiting a short time with her. Preston Johnson's people, who occupied the house, have left for Detroit.

We neglected last week to express our thanks to the Atwood choir which rendered two fine selections of song at our rural rally. The male quartet, which were very busy at the time, certainly were very kind to help us on the program, and the singing was very much enjoyed and highly complemented by those present.

The cherry trees are attacked badly this year with the shot-hole fungus and orchardists are putting on extra sprays to combat the disease. Many trees have yellow leaves and others are entirely denuded of foliage, leaving but the bare tree with greenish-red cherries badly wilted, clinging to the branches. A great loss will be suffered by fruit growers this year from the fungus. Early Richmond will be ready to pick this week, but there appears to be little known about what price will be paid for cherries.

The Twin Bridges Sunday school rally and picnic will be held at their beautiful grounds three miles north of Mancelona cemetery corner, on Wednesday, August 2, 1939. Mancelona business men have kindly offered financial assistanee toward repairing the damage done last summer when the little bridge across which the 256 children marched to get their ice cream cones last year, and the tables, seats and swings, and merry-go-rounds, were destroyed and floated down the river by someone. A bee will be held the day before the picnic and all the men that possibly can are asked to help do this repairing.

Fanny, the horse belonging to the writer, died last week. She would have been 32 years old July 7th. She probably attended more Sunday schools and day schools than many young people of the county. Rev. Weaver took her picture last year on the day of the birthday pary. The story of her, written a few years ago, for the Grand Rapids Press, was copied by several state papers. Of her four colts, three are still living, ages 26, 25 and 24 years. Many trips were made to Creswell and Grand View schools, where the writer taught five years at each place. She made the trip to Elk Rapids graduation exercises in 1911. The next morning after returning the writer glanced out the window, and she was lying down with a little colt running around her. She had a metal feed box and if she wasn't fed as soon as she wished, she would rattle the box. Whenever she got caught in the fence she would stay there until released. One day when the writer went to school, she stood fastened in the fence all day. The cause of her death was the injury she received a week before by getting one leg thru the feed hole in the barn floor.

RURAL ELECTRIC CONTINUES LINE CONSTRUCTION

310 Miles Now Under Way Will Bring Four County Total to 569

Leroy Hardy, project superintendent of the Tup O' Michigan Rural Electric company, Boyne City, reported last week that with the finishing of 310 miles of lines now under construction, which is expected by September, the project will have spent $752,000 completing 569 miles of lines, bringing electricity to farmers in four northern Michigan counties.

Monroe Electric Construction company of Chicago, contractor of the REA work here, has completed 259 miles of wiring with 540 customers hooked up.

Hardy made it known Monday that energizing of the 310 miles now under way will first require at least two customers per mile ready to receive current.

The Monroe Electric has 66 men employed who are now setting poles and placing wirings in three locations: on the west side of Torch lake, southeast of Elmira in Antrim county and also in upper Emmet county. Lines have been staked out thru Otsego county to Montmorency county.

BAKER'S BREAD IS IN HIGH FAVOR

Figures Cited by Chemist H. E. Bishop of Michigan Bakeries Inc.

Commenting on the ever-increasing popularity of baker's bread H. E. Bishop, who is chief chemist in charge of the company-owned bakery laboratory of Michigan Bakeries Inc., bakers of "Michigan" bread and rolls, has this to say:

"Approximately 10,000,000,000 loaves of baker's bread are now consumed each year by the people of the United States. If placed end to end these loaves would go around the world at the equator 60 times, forming a golden brown highway about 30 feet in width. Under the influence of the tropical sun this broad pavement would probably be well toasted."

According to the bakery chemist, the all-time high in sales which "Michigan" bread is enjoying at the present substantiates the fact that more and more housewives each year have come to prefer the quality bread they can buy from their grocers to that less-nutritious bread which they have, in the past, baked in their own kitchens.

OFFERS 3 RULES FOR FURNITURE

Fewer mysteries about furniture will be apparent if prospective purchasers will study three essential factors.

That is the deduction of Winifred S. Gettemy, associate professor in related arts at Michigan State college.

These three essentials are beauty, comfort and durability.

Beauty, she finds, is determined in furniture by proportions, the lines, color, style and decoration.

Comfort seems to be determined by the adaptation of furniture to the variety of human shapes and forms and any number of postures.

There are standardized heights for tables and lengths and heights for beds. Chairs differ and need to be selected carefully because there are so many types manufactured and because only straight chairs approach standardization in height.

Durability is listed third although it is as important as the other two rules.

"Buyers often get what they pay for," says Miss Gettemy. "Any number of grades are offered and each grade has its relative price on the store tag. Often, if a conaumer could know that by paying just a little more for a piece of furniture there would be a likelihood of better construction, the added price would not prevent the purchase."

S'MATTER POP— A Certain Word, and He's at Your Service — By C. M. PAYNE

miles of ideal bathing beaches not only along Lake Michigan, Lake Huron and Lake St. Clair but on countless inland lakes.

Add to this combination the recreational advantage of fish and deer in large numbers, and surround it with the frangrance of pines and sprucea and evergreens — all of it within a day'a drive of millions of Americans! — and you have a good idea why Business Week put Michigan at the top of the playground parade for 1939, world fairs notwithstanding.

Knowing Michigan

From your own acquaintaneer, persons whom you have known most of your life-time, how many of them have never seen the Straits of Mackinaw?

Ask the question tonight, but be prepared for a surprise.

Human inertia and a stubborn indifference to what appears to be commonplace, our own state, has made Michigan the great unknown for many of its residents. Citizens of Dearborn, for example, are disinterested in one of the world's most remarkable attractions at their own door—the world's largest industrial plant, all geared to that ever-astonishing American device known as the "assembly line." It is just too close to home.

Grecnfield Village, also at Dearborn, attrscts more people from other states during vacation months than Michigan residents. Yet, as a tourist attraction, it is without peer in its appesl and type any place in this nation.

Cascades at Jackson

At Jackson is a remarkable scenic lure, the illuminated Cascades, which is visited annually by close to 1,500,000 persons.

The artistic creation of William Sparks, a benevolent indnstrialist, and his wife, Matilda, the Cascades consists of sixteen water falls of which eleven are illuminated in the three primary colors: red, green and blue with all the scientific combinations of a rainbow.

Architecturally, the Cascades is a massive structure of concrete, 550 feet long and 60 feet wide, rising to a height of 85 feet.

Above the top, center and bottom falls are three reflection pools ninety fcet by thirty feet, each containing two fountains.

Picture the constant flow of 360,000 gallons of water and the kaleidoscopic hues of color magnified by 252,000 watts of electricity, and you may gather a mental conception of the grandeur of this Michigan tourist spot. Furthermore, the Cascades are free. Choice seats may be had for a dime. Be there promptly at 9 p. m. any day in the week. The annual festival at which 2,000 persona will sing and a simphony orchestra will play will be from August 12 to 19.

Cherry Capital

As Michigan is the cherry capital of the United States, it was inevitable that a festival would be held in age-old celebration for nature's blessing of a good crop.

July 12, 13 and 14 are the dates announced for the National Cherry Festival at Traverse City. Ships of the Great Lakes Training Fleet will participate in the program this ycar. And that distinctive product of Michigan's tourist business, the Festivsl Queen, will be properly enthroned amid parades and whatnot.

An automobile trip into the Leelanau peninsula through Suttons Bay, Leland and Northport, with perhaps a side tour encircling lovely Glenn lakc, will reveal countless cherry trees, reddened with fruit—a sight in itself worth secing.

The Golden Text (Psalms 51:10) is: "Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me."

Among the Bible citations is this passage (Isaiah 53:7.: "He was oppressed, and he was afflicted, yet he opened not his mouth: he is brought as a lamb to the slaughter, and as a sheep before her shearers is dumb, so he openeth not his mouth."

SCHMIDT'S ADVERTISING COPY WAS ONE SELECTED FOR THE ANPA BLUE BOOK

Officials of The Schmidt Brewing company and members of their advertising agency, Simons-Michelson company, Detroit, feel very proud of the fact that the American Newspaper Publishers association has selected Schmidt's advertising copy for 1938 as an outstanding example of brewery newspaper advertising.

Samples of Schmidt's ads have been given a place in the "Blue Book" of Advertising, produced by this association.

It is interesting to know that out of all the breweries in the entire country, the advertising of only four other breweries was selected. These other breweries are located in San Antonio, St. Louis, Chicago and Newark — Schmidt's being the only one chosen from this part of the country.

Do You Know Why You Punish Your Child?

An article pointing out that it may be because you do not understand how it can be natural for youngsters to lie, steal, become lazy, dull and mischievous, will be found in The American Weekly, the great weekly msgazine, with the July 9 issue of The Detroit Sunday Times, and explains why Dr. Grace Culver, famous London specialist, believes that fanning the seat of the pants won't cure trouble in the seat of intelligence.

Modern wives are far more inclined to mend a man's ways than his socks.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE NEWS BULLETIN

Used Car Purchasers Should Watch Titles

Officials of the license and title divisions of the department of state, are cautioning motorists that failure to transfer titles to used cars from previous owners, to themselves, within ten days after purchase, makes ear registrations legally void.

The motor vehicle statute on this point provides: "Unless such notice is given . . . sueh motor vehicle shall be deemed to be without registration and the secretary of state is hereby authorized to repossess the (license) plates."

Because of the confusion in the minds of some readers as to the subject matter of a recent gasoline tax refund amendment adopted by the legislature, Harry F. Kelly, secretary of state, recites the following as the proper interpretation of the amendment.

Heretofore, the persons claiming refundment of the gasoline tax on fuel consumed for other than highway purposes have been required by law to submit that claim within ninety days after the purchase of the gasoline. The new amendment just adopted, which will become effective September 6, 1939, extends that time limit from ninety days to six months within which period claims may be filed.

Child Care Study Groups Being Organized

A recent letter from Alice Hutchinson, extension specialist in child care and training, Michigan State college, indicates that a projeet in child care is available to Charlevoix county providing that seven or eight groups can be organized. This would be a wonderful field of study for mothers in Charlevoix county and it is hoped that any community interested in organizing a group will get in touch with the conuty agricultural agent, who will be glad to assist.

This project will be given in four lessons starting in the fall and finishing the next spring. We would like to have groups of from eight to fifteen members. We would be interested in working with the city groups in this line of work. It would be appreciated, if you are intereated, if you would immediately contact your county agricultural agent so that further progress may be made in this project.

Block had to do some hustling to keep the first floor of his store from being flooded. During the height of the storm the streets were filled curb-high. The kids had a lot of fun. Saw one riding down State street hill in a dish pan. He sure was goin' places! If I had a dollar for every holiday picnic that was washed out, I'd loaf the rest of the month.

A communication to Clair S. Webster, president of the Charlevoix Board of Commerce, from Daniel N. Casey, secretary of the Erie, Pa., chamber of commerce, expresses the appreciation of its members for the fine treatment given in Charlevoix during their recent cruise visit here. The letter, quoted in part, reads: "Charlevoix has a new meaning to our people. Admiral Stark described the beauties and attractions of your splendid territory and the 'cruisers' have been loud in their praise of what there is to see and do in and around Charlevoix. You organized a splendid, informal tour for our people and they appreciated the way in which they were received and the nice spirit of hospitality that your citizens evidenced."

A rather gloomy fishing picture has been brightened no little lately by a general upturn in small mouth bass and mackinaw trout fishing in Lake Charlevoix. The best mackinaw catch of the season, five fish weighing 76 pounds, were taken one day last week from Lake Charlevoix by Mr. and Mrs. Peter Wajthiewicz of Norwich, Conn., guided by Don Clothier. They were beauties! Talked with Pete Bennett at the Ironton ferry Tuesday. Pete, besides operating the ferry, guides fishing parties. He stated his parties had taken 41 steelhead to date and a considerably larger number of bass since the season opened. A catch of 19 Monday was the tops. Then George Rassieur displayed 5 large mouth weighing around 15 pounds which he took from Lake 26 a la Tony Accetta tackle and methods, which all goes to show your never too old nor too good to learn something new about fishin'. They're taking some mighty nice bass from the channel between Round lake and Lake Charlevoix, too.

Just a reminder that next Monday night, July 10, is time for the annual school meeting. It is the duty of each and every school patron to attend this important function.

Traffic sure was heavy over the holiday week end and our famous Ironton ferry carried an awful lot of cars. Was the 19th car in line at the ferry Tuesday afternoon going towards Boyne City and was number seven in line coming back. The ferry was handling four automobiles each trip, so had plenty of time to enjoy the beauties of that locality. Bet it would surprise a person to know just how many automobiles were handled from Saturday until Tuesday night.

Yachting activity showed the first real signs of summer during the past week end. The familiar Eleanor, Chicago yacht, was here, also R. W. Allen's "Wanderer." Of particular interest was "Chuck" Hartman's new 46-ft. Burger cruiser "Hypo," which made its maiden voyage last winter through ice to reach the National Motor Boat show at Chicago. Mr. Hartman spent the week end here with a party of guests aboard the cruiser. The Gilbert's "Sylvia-Gee" was back in port from a Lake Superior cruise and it is noted Len Keiler's "Miss Kentucky" is being outfitted by Capt. Vane Smith and Engineer Tom Chambers for a Superior cruise.

Have heard of fishermen hooking sea gulls and such, but Joe Troyer's unusual experience in hooking a muskrat with a casting plug on Lake 26 about "takes the cake." In view of the fight the animal put up before being brought close enough to the boat to identify, Joe thought he'd hooked the Grand Daddy of the lake.

The only boys graduating from the Charlevoix high school class of 1894 had a get-together here last Friday. The occasion was provided through a visit in Charlevoix by W. C. Strip of Seattle, Wash., and his meeting with Ernest Peaslee and Frank Metcalf, who were the other two members of the trio of graduates. Mr. Strip was making his first visit here in 30 years.

In rapid succession come parades, pageants, a service of thanksgiving for the harvest injecting a more serious note into the mardi gras atmosphere. A juvenile parade and dog parade will take place Thursday afternoon and in the evening the queen will be guest of honor at the annual Queen's Ball at the country club with Lou Breese's orchestra furnishing the music. Also on Thursday evening, just preceeding the ball, Queen Jean will receive her crown, probably from Gov. Luren Dickinson of Michigan.

Friday brings the highlight and climax of the festival in the grand floral parade in the afternoon, of which Queen Jean will be the central figure in the three mile parade.

Immediately following this a long line of motor trucks will worm their way through the festival crowds headed for the Pennsylvania station from which the first trainload of cherries of the year will head for market.

Friday night is Mummer's Night and this parade will be followed immediately by a display of fireworks over Grand Traverse Bay, formally closing another National Cherry Festival.

NINE ARRESTS MONDAY A RECORD FOR COUNTY

Eight from Boyne City, One From Charlevoix Taken by Officers

Nine arrests, a record for the Charlevoix county sheriff's department in a single day, were made Monday in various parts of the county.

Russell Hall, 23, Herschel Fitzpatrick, 18, Orval Cooper, 19, and Harlan Sutton, 20, all of Boyne City, were arrested on warrants charging breaking and entering cottages near Horton Bay last winter. A tip-off that some of the group had articles taken from the cottages resulted in their arrest.

Jake Haddix, 17, Leroy Sloop, 20, and David Johnson, 15, of Boyne City, are charged with stealing two cars Sunday night, one from the Northern Service Co. at Boyne City, and the other from John Johnson of Bay Shore. Johnson, a juvenile, is on probation from a previous criminal violation and was on probation when arrested.

Charlevoix city police arrested Francis Oliver, 23, following theft of a car from Peter John. Francis drove the machine into two parked cars near the intersection of Antrim street with Bridge street.

Art Kay, Boyne City, arrested by Police Chief Pat Roderick, was sentenced to 60 days in jail on a drunk and disorderly charge by Justice Cook at Boyne City, who also assessed fine and costs of $15 or an alternate of 20 more days in jail.

AT THE MOVIES

C. Colbert and Stewart Coming In Mad Comedy

A new comedy theme, bringing a delightful new team in unusually novel and daffy complications, comes to the screen of the Palace Theatre on July 9-10, when "It's a Wonderful World" makes its local debut starring Claudette Colbert with James Stewart in the male lead.

Involved in the hilarious doings are Cuy Kibbee, Nat Pendleton, Frances Drake, Edgar Kennedy and Ernest Truex.

Loy and Taylor at Palace in "Lucky" Night"

The screen's "Thin Man" heroine and "Camille's" hero have been teamed from rollicking funmaking in "Lucky Night," the picture coming July 11-12 to the Palace Theatre. Robert Taylor, who has played hit roles in such recent films as "The Crowd Roars" and "Stand Up and Fight," now enacts a happy-go-lucky playboy. Miss Loy is right at home in comedy as Cora Jordan, the girl who runs out on her fourth engagement rather than marry a man she doesn't love.

Colbert and Ameche Co-Star in Comedy

Claudette Colbert, as an American fortune hunter, stalking her prey in international society, Don Ameche, as a taxi-driver who unexpectedly changes her grandiose plans, and Francis Lederer, as a handsome and gold-dripping Paris playboy — these are the romantic leads in "Midnight," Paramount's gay new comedy, which will be on view at the Palace Theatre on July 13 and 14. John Barrymore and Mary Astor play important roles.

Supervisors R. C. Korth, Barney Milstein and Cal Bennett were named a committee from the board to attend the annual meeting of Michigan poor commissioners to be held July 25-27 at Cheboygan.

In view of an anticipated decrease in state funds from $13,000 to $2,000 for the current year for hospitalization of crippled children, ways and means committee resolution seeking restitution of this aid was adopted and forwarded to Senator Otto Bishop and Representative D. D. Tibbits.

An additional appropriation of $4,500 was granted the poor commission for relief up to October. The board appropriated $18,000 at its October session last fall for the period of October 1938 to October 1939. The additional sum will bring relief appropriations to $22,500 for the fiscal year.

Feeding of transients at the county jail will be discontinued as a result of the board's action. In the future all transients brought to the jail by city police must be fed at city expense.

The next meeting of the board will be the annual October session.

NEW HUNTING LAWS IN EFFECT THIS FALL

LONGER SEASONS GIVEN FOR MOST SMALL GAME

Extend Periods for Hunting Rabbits, Grouse and Pheasants in Both Peoiosulas

Unless the members of the state ronservation commission rule to the eontrary, as they ean under the diseretionary power law, Michigan small game hunters will be given longer hunting seasons on game birds and rabbits and again be allowed to hunt fox squirrels. This is the edict of the state legislature and Gov. Dirkinson, who recently signed the general game bill, and it will beeoma a law 90 days after the final date of legislative adjournment.

Rabbit hunters north of Townline 16 North will be given an additional month for hunting. This effects varying hares or snowshoe hunting more than it does rottontail. The season for the upper peninsula will run from October 1 to March 1 and above Townline 16 Nortb in lower Michigan from Ortober 15 to January 31. Below that, which inrludes all of the southern half of the state, the season remains the same, October 15 to Deremher 31. The bag limits remain five in a day, 10 in possession and 50 for the season.

Persistent demands of squirrel hunters brought ahout a restoration of their hunting. The season is set to begin Ortober 1 to Ortober 31 in the upper peninsula and from Oetober 15 to November 5 in lower Michigan. The bag limit is five in a day, 10 in possession and 25 for the season. Hunting blaek and gray squirrels has been left to the discretion of the ronservation eommission but there is slight hope that they will be hunted.

AWARD BELLAIRE PLANT CONTRACT

DETROIT FIRM LOW BIDDER FOR IMPROVEMENTS

To Construct Trash Rack and Make Otber Repairs for $6,780—Contract Last of Extension Plan

The fifth and final rontrart of the eity's elertrie system extension program whieh was started last fall, was awarded Monday night by the eity rouncil.

R. C. Daily & Company of Detroit, submitted the low bid of $6,780.00 for construction of a traek rark strueture and other improvements at the Bellaire hydro-elertrir plant. Six bids submitted on the projert were all termed quite low and the acrepted bid unusually attrartive.

The hydro plant program includes construction of new trash rark which will be gate type to allow for drainage of the wheel pit for repairs, a feature whirh has been lacking; enlargement of water entranres to the wheel pit and improvements to the pit itself. It is experted these rhanges, together with those already completed, will greatly inrrease the efficienry of the plant which is already putting considerably more voltage on the board than before the program was iastituted.

The council approved and ordered vouchers drawn for a payroll aggregating $7,872.81, and authorized the mayor and rlerk to borrow $5,000 for operating expenses in anticipation of summer tax collertions.

Dr. Carleton Dean aod Carl F. Kohler Elected to Succeed Themselves As Trustees

The annual meeting of Charlevoix srhool distriet No. 1, city and township, drew an attendance of around sixty persons Monday evening.

Two directors were re-elected for 3-years terms. They were Dr. Carleton Dean and Carl F. Kohler. Dr. Dean was eleeted over R. C. Korth and Dr. F. F. McMillan in the first balloting and Kohler won from a group of six nominations whieh ineluded Harley I. Ochs, L. P. Adams, R. C. Korth, Arehie L. Livingston and Dr. F. F. McMillan.

The representation of school patrons present was the largest in rerent years and ineluded a large group from Charlevoix township whieh eonsolidated their support behind the nomination of R. C. Korth, one of their number.

The treasurer's report showed a balanre of $8,039.95 in the srhool operating and debt servire funds at the elose of the 1938-39 fiseal year, indicating a healthy financial condition.

The seeretary's report submitted by C. B. Meggison revealed that in view of a balanee in the debt service fund, a reduction in the present rate of 4 mills for debt service would be made for the years up to 1942, when the present bonded indebtedness will be retired. This report also ralled attention to the anticipated deerease in state aid for the eoming year, with the result that teachers' rontrarts are being awarded on the basis of antieipated revenues, probably entailing a decrease in salaries.

The matter of ronsolidation was covered in the secretary's report, revealing that the direetors favored a plan of consolidating with nearby rural schools up to a point not taxing the facilities of the presrnt srhool system. The resulting inerease in enrollment, which is reported to be now deelining, would provide substantial additional state aid.

SHOT AT RANDOM

By Ken Usher

Will bet Dwight Bundy, that Boyne City man whose home town newspaper and numerous Miehigan daily newspapers reported having died at Charlevoix Hospital last Wednesday, was certainly surprised to read about his demise. He was reported dead from a self-inflirted bullet wound last Tuesday. Checked up with the hospital Wednesday night and found his condition was not serious. Wednesday the Boyne City paper came out with a atory he'd died that day and added: "Funeral arrangements had not been announced." I ean readily understand how mistakes are made, being in the newspaper game myself, but when it comes to reporting a person dead when he isn't—well, that's rarrying things pretty far. Am glad to report Bundy'a eondition is greatly improved and he's very much alive.

All this fuss over a Works Progress Administration ruling that WPA workers who do not report for work within five days after a lay-off will be dropped from relief rolls, reminds me of a roaversation I heard the other day. A local matron, who had been down to the new Ferry avenue bathing beach last Friday afternoon, was complaining loudly and justly, too, that she was foreed to aet out in the sun while the only bench loeated in a shaded spnt was oeeupied by WPA workers who were supposed, we will assume, to he busy on that park projert. And yet there is agitation for a nation-wide strike of WPA workers! So when you hear some fellow who'a trying to "paddle his own eanoe" without hrlp from Roosevelt's vote-buying program start razzing the WPA, you ean aee where is fully justified.

When telling last week about the numerous fine eatrhes of fish baing made, I forgot about the 4 lb. 13 oz. amall mouth bass caught in Laka Charlavoix by Charles C. Guy of

LANSING LETTER

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

The paradox of Luren D. Dirkinson, prominent layman of the Methodist church and national and state figure in the Anti-Saloon league, being responsible as governor of Michigan for administration of a vast liquor retail business and a horse race gambling set-up is one of those colorful situations that makea the octogenarian governor "good copy" for a news-hungry public.

Belng a praetiral man of all things, Governor Dicklnson probably amiles at the moral dilemna in which he finds himself.

Perhaps no govarnor in a half century is so fervently and unequivocally dry as Mr. Dickinson. He is state president and national vice-prrsident of the Anti-Saloon league which in prohibition days was a powerful pressure group, along with the Ku Klux Klan, in Mid-West states.

The Eaton county figure is high in laymen's cireles of the Methodist ehureh. He headed the Miehigan delrgates to the national eonference in Kansas City.

As lieutenant governor, Dickinson had no direct responsibility in what tho atate did, or did not do, in the field of selling liquor and running horse races. But fate intervened u-

BIT OF FENCING UNLOADS TRUCK

Simple but effective is this device for unloading grass at the side of an ensilage cutter so that the truck can go back out into the field for another load while men fork the material over to the cutter. S. T. Dexter in the farm crops department at Michigan State College figured out this one. He took a strip of woven wire fencing linked to a two-by-four on one end. This is laid in the bottom of the empty truck. When a load comes up, a rope is attached to the two-by-four over the top of the load, the truck is driven slowly forward, sliding and rolling the load onto the ground. The wire is picked up and put back in the bottom of the truck body. The device is particularly useful if the silo filler is set low enough to eliminate bigb pitching.

CAMP CHARLEVOIX WEEKLY NEWS COLUMN

Edited by Herbert W. Johnsoo

After a week, camp is in full swing and everything is rolling smoothly. All our campers have chosen their activities for morning periods, progress is in motion, and everyone seems to be having a swell time.

On last Saturday night the first council ring ceremony was held at the sacred Council Ring. The new campers were instructed in the requirements for membership into the Tribe of Charlevoix. The counsellors gave a bit of information and philosophy about their various activities, and "Chief" Reimann bespoke for a successful, happy summer.

On Sunday the Intermediate Section went down to Young's park for the afternoon and evening. John Schilling and Ray Zulauf cooked up a fine meal for the boys on the elaborate grates they have there; and most of the time was spent in the lake's cool waters. Bill Carr, Barney Golinvaux and Neal Bissell had the beach people aghast with their antics on the water-slides. Dick LaFever, George Osborn and Charlie Brainard puffed away developing their new swimming strokes, and then later everyone sat around for some fast thinking games. Prize of the occasion though, went to Al Birdsall, who went off by himself and picked a bunch of poison ivy—of all things!

Our Texan Cowboy, Jack Jetton, took a group of boys for their first rides on Tuesday night. They included Gene Sikorovsky, Bill Carr, Charles Brainard, Jim Kendall, Herb Dow, Jim Gault and Ned Greenthal and Herb Johnson. Herb was pretty good, once he found the right end of his horse.

The camp celebrated its Fourth of July a day late because of rain. A track meet was held in the afternoon followed by an extra special attraction—a lamb barbeque with watermelon, in the evening. Later in the club house a "Tia Juana Nite" was held with 13 different games of skill and chance. John Nixon won the most games in the Junior Section, Gene Sikorovsky tied with Sandy MacDonell and Jim Kendall in the Intermediate, while Charlie Bachman led in the Senior section. Fireworks were shot off from the end of the pier to conclude the festivities.

Alex Galton of Grosse Pointe, blew in Tuesday with his famous jumping horse Rinkey, and a challenge to "Chief" and his horse, Cimmarron.

Thursday afternoon was sail day for the seniors. Tom Hart raced his brother Bill and took the following fellows along for crew: Jack Lehnard, Charlie Marcus and Jim Whittemore. Bill Hart was assisted by Ralph McReynolds, Bun Noelting, Ed. Ploeger. Tom won, but Bill felt that he might have had a better chance if his crew hadn't forgotten to sail while they tossed "bon nots" with another sail boat manned by girls from Charlevoix.

On Saturday afternoon the camp went in for water sports with vigor. Swim races, canoe races and sailing were in order. The canoe races were won by John Nixon and Allen Hunting in the Junior section; Barney Golinvaux and Jim Gault for the Intermediates; Whittemore and Fred Matthaei for the seniors.

In the evening the first dramatic program of the season was presented. Fred Matthae and Bob Weiman painted themselves up into "Mush and Poke, Detectives." The boys did a fine job of it as did Doug Stock, who gave the introduction. The second performance was one based on a current Broadway production. Joe Craig played the lead with Jean Reimann as his heroine. The campers screamed, Jean smiled, Joe blushed. Others in the cast were Andy Frostic, Bob Stevens, Bob Million and Charlie Marcus.

Chief Reimann thinks the fathers should be reminded that fathers and their sons can get together for deep sea fishing on Lake Michigan through Don Clothier in Charlevoix. He will pick up all interested at our own pier here at camp for a tussle with the mackinaw trout which leap and dash through the Lake's waters.

Have you heard that Dad's day is July 29th?

CORRESPONDENCE

Fourth of July passed off very quietly around here with a heavy rain in the forenoon.

Mr. and Mrs. William Timmer visited with Mr. and Mrs. Jay Kulper and family Tuesday evening.

Clarence Venema of Byron Centre, Mich., formerly of the Mitchell school district, was a caller in this vicinity the past week.

John Cooper of Chicago, who spent a week around here visiting relatives, returned home Monday. Mr. Cooper formerly lived in this neighborhood.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Staal of Muskegon, Mich., who have been visiting the upper part of Michigan, called on relatives here Thursday on their way home.

Mr. and Mrs. William G. Drenth of Muskegon, Mich., are spending a week here visiting friends and relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Drenth formerly lived in the Mitchell school district.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kuiper received the sad notice that Mr. Kulper's brother John had died in Grand Rapids Thursday. They went down to Grand Rapids Saturday morning, accompanied by their son Jay to attend the funeral. Mr. Kuiper had been sick for quite a while.

Long, bright, hot days at present, short, warm nights "when you can almost hear and see the corn grow; cattle resting in the shade of the tree, in the middle of the pasture, which is fresh and green from the abundant rain; ripening fields of grain, rippling like golden seas in the wild. All of this in July.

Edward Dawson is working on the Ellsworth water works job this week.

East Jordan cherry dealers were in Bay View neighborhood last Saturday.

Special meetings are being held at Menonite church, Mancelona, this week.

Johnnie Dawson was doing business with Ellsworth Canning company last Monday.

Wm. Sommerville appears to be better at the present writing, after quite a spell of illness.

The Preston Johnson family and Mrs. Lenzie Morse and Dorothy, are visiting relatives in Detroit.

We are pleased to note, the better mail service of the railroads now, and our items get through all right and mail is received a day sooner.

Mrs. Marion Dodge of the upper peninsula, is visiting at the parental home, the Art Russell family, this week and helping her father with haying.

Cherry picking began last week, and Ellsworth Canning company did some canning of the early sweet cherries last week. East Jordan factory starts to can this week.

This reminds us of a lady feeding sour apples to her pigs. I remarked that I didn't think they were getting very fat on that kind of feed. She said, "Well, they think they are, anyway."

Results of school board election Monday was: Central Lake, chairman Henry Waasnaar, succeeding Art Knowles, in office for many years; Bay View, Allen Aardema to succeed himself as moderator.

Ezra Hollenbeck and Mrs. McLachlan, Kewadin, and Creswell, have some fine "Lou Anns". I think they called them, also Mr. Fairman had some. Mr. Hollenbeck also had some very fine "Schmidts" that were selling like hot cakes at 15 cents a quart.

A visit to the Fairman orchards found him busy with the fruit business, helping State Inspector Lunn in inspecting berry business. A large number of young people were picking and selling cherries, of which he has a nice lot of many varieties. Some very nice black Tartarins were seen.

A Mr. Moore has come with his wife, all the way from Connecticut, to pick cherries, and is camped out at the Creswell school house. He made the trip of 1,000 miles in 24 hours with an old Dodge. He gave us some light on how auto tires are made, as he has helped "re-tread" tires for years. He says that new tires contain not more than 4 per cent rubber, there being much coldtar in their composition.

We learned something the other day about the composition of ice cream from one who has helped make it for years. He says the "double-dip" ice cream is made especially for "double-dip" customers, and contains less cream, and only worth half as much as the one-time single-dip cream. The customer thinks he is getting a lot for his money, he says, in the "double-dip." Well, if they imagine so, maybe it suits just as well.

The Gunner Peterson and Art Hockins families had some very fine orchards, but crop not so large. The writer has the largest crop of cherries he has seen anywhere, nearly a full crop. Mr. Lunn says crops in Oceana and Berrien are about 20 per cent of full crop this year, and many orchardists will not pick, as it would be too expensive. So that it looks as though those who have a good crop in this part of Michigan should get a good price for their product. Read and Murdock pay cash, others the "sliding scale," we hear.

The road commission is putting some more work of grading and clearing on the road from Essex north to the Fairman-Peebles road in Banks township. This was a fairly good road before, and it had been hoped that the DeVries-Shooks sideroad would have been repaired instead; also the Larahee Corners, where so many accideats have occurred. This corner may cause a big damage suit to the county sometime. Just last week, what might have been a fatal accident, was narrowly averted there. It is claimed that Roosevelt would have to be consulted if any of these projects mentioned were done. I would like to see the DeVries, Larabee Corner and Dawson roads properly repaired once, and see if Roosevelt does care. I am writing him and VanWagoner this week to see what they say. I will publish the results next week.

Well, it looks as though the cherry growers will get two cents per pound for their cherries this year. It was thought that the limit would be one and a half cents. Many farmers are quite certain that had the farmers pulled together, they could have had three cents just as well as not. But will the farmers ever pull togetber, or the church members ever work together? Many farmers still stick to the Traverse City Coop., which independent canning companies claim is the cause of the low price, as they must compete in open market with this coop. This coop, it is claimed, is so badly in debt that they are at the mercy of the buyers, who pay them whatever they wish. Many of the growers, it is said have not been paid for cherries sold them through past years, which debt runs into the thousands of dollars. On the other hand, many of the "coops." claim that if it were not for the independents the farmers would get a better price. The "coop." pays on a "sliding scale," and in the memory of many for the past ten years, the scale has never slid toward the farmer. On the other hand, many who were promised more never have received it, while the independents have been paying the whole amount in cash. The situation is, will some of the growers still continue to sell to the "coops." and hold the price down to all growers, or will they tear themselves loose from them and give all canning companies the same right to pay a higher price? This must be settled soon, or the cherry growers will have to go out of business. There is no just wage in two-cent cherries to the grower, or to the picker. The crop, generally, is poor this year, and the picker will have to work very hard to make $2.00, while WPA men are getting their $3.00 or better.

The same line of story appears to go about the present administration in government. Many voters, es-

INSPECTION '39 SOILS PROGRAM UNDER WAY

Twelve Reporters Working in Charlevoix County at Present

The check of performance on farms participating in the 1939 soil conservation is progressing rapidly.

Twelve farm reporters attended the school of instruction held on June 23rd. The inspection work to be made by these farm reporters began on June 24th. Participating farms are being inspected by the following reporters: Charles D. Shepard, Walter H. Henley, David J. Smith, John B. Taylor, Carl Prohaska, Claude D. Pearsall, Hugh A. Graham, Melvin Somerville, George C. Ferris, Edwin A. Gregory, Carl R. Clark, P. Dymitro Dobiniak.

Of the 1938 farms listed in this county, 965 or 77.9% of the farms are signed for compliance in the 1939 program. As of the present date, 215 farm reports have been turned into the office. It is interesting to note that only 3.9% have failed to meet compliance. This indicates that a greater number of farmers will earn payments this year than in any previous year.

Jordan Valley Creamery Makes One Million Pounds of Butter

Percy Penfold, manager of the Jordan Valley Cooperative Creamery, states that during the last fiscal year, ending June 30th, slightly over one million pounds of butter were manufactured. This is a decided increase over 1938 and further indicates the wonderful success enjoyed by this large cooperative institution. Over eight hundred checks were written to producers of butterfat during the last two weeks period. Certainly this entire district is highly gratified over this splendid record.

The annual meeting will be held on Monday, August 7, and plans are already being made for a most profitable and enjoyable program. In addition to the main address by a representative of the Michigan State college, there will be other attractive numbers on the program. Further announcement in regard to this matter will appear in suceeeding issues of this paper but all dairymen should plan right now to attend this annual meeting.

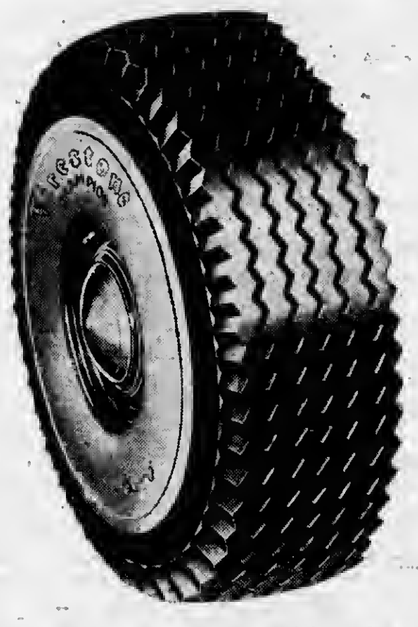
Install New Tires and Drive with SAFETY and COMFORT!

For the Utmost in Tire Service — Equip Your Car with the New

Firestone Champion



Particular drivers everywhere select the Firestone CHAMPION because this great new tire is the safety sensation of 1939. In thirty-nine years of tire experience the manufacturers of Firestone have never before heard of such instant and unanimous approval of a tire as has been accorded the CHAMPION. When a tire is accepted by the motorists of the world with such enthusiastic approval it is convincing proof that the CHAMPION is in a class by itself. Here is the tire that has everything—the tire with the New Safety-Lock Cord Body and the New Gear-Grip Tread—providing greater safety and more miles under all kinds of wear. The CHAMPION has been swept to surprising heights of popularity because of its marvelous gripping power. Because of its superior performance motor car manufacturers have adopted it for their 1939 models. It is truly a great achievement in safety engineering.

STRONGER CORD BODY. The new Firestone CHAMPION Tire is built by an entirely new method in which each and every component part of the tire is locked and inter-locked into a super-safe, inseparable unit of amazing strength. This is accomplished first by the use of a completely new type of tire cord called "Safety-Lock," in which the cotton fibers are more compactly interwoven to assure cooler running and provide greater strength. Then, the fibers in each individual cord, the cords in each ply, and the plies themselves, are all securely LOCKED TOGETHER by a new and advanced Firestone process of Gum-dipping, which provides amazingly greater strength, and greater strength means greater safety.

Firestone
LIFE PROTECTOR
the Tire within a Tire

This amazing new Firestone development makes a blowout as harmless as a slow leak.

Should a blowout occur the exclusive Firestone Safety-Valve holds sufficient air in the inner compartment to support the car until it is brought to a safe stop.

MORE NON-SKID MILEAGE. The new Safety Lock cord construction provides the extra strength needed for the use of the new, thicker, tougher, deeper Firestone Gear-Grip tread, which delivers remarkably longer non-skid mileage. This sensational new tread is called "Gear-Grip" because of its unique design—it has more than 3,000 sharp-edged angles, which grip the road with a sure-footed hold to protect against skidding and assure a safe stop. Join the Firestone Save-A-Life Campaign today by calling on your Firestone Dealer and equipping your car with a set of new Firestone Champion Tires, the only tires made that are safety-proved on the speedway for your protection on the highway!

New Film Depicts Lincoln as Youth

Not as the great American, but rather as the gawky young lawyer that his home-town knew, is Abe Lincoln characterized by Henry Fonda in the title role of Darryl F. Zanuck's production of "Young Mr. Lincoln" which comes to the Palace Theatre on July 16-17.

With Alice Brady, Marjorie Weaver and Arleen Whelan co-featured, the Cosmopolitan production for 20th Century-Fox brings back the flesh and blood of a Lincoln never shown before. The story of Abraham Lincoln that has never been told depicts his thrilling, exciting, romantic youth and makes a stirring picture.

Roach's Exciting Frontier Drama "Captain Fury" Billed at Palace Theater

With Brian Aherne, Victor McLaglen and June Lang playing the top roles, Hal Roach's "Captain Fury," frontier drama of Australia, will have its local premiere at the Palace Theatre on July 18, when it begins a two-days' engagement through United Artists release. "Captain Fury" is the story of dauntless men and brave women who migrated to the barren brush country of Australia to hew a nation out of a strange wilderness.

Paul Lukas, June Lang, John Carradine, George Zucco, Douglas Dumbrille and Virginia Field, featured in support of the starring trio, portray the strangely assorted characters who joined in this march of progress in the pioneering days of the early 19th Century.

Latest "Tarzan" Thriller on Palace Screen

Beginning with them a "Tarzan, Junior," Johnny Weissmuller and Maureen O'Sullivan come July 20 to the Palace Theatre in "Tarzan Finds a Son!" fourth of the famous jungle adventure romances based on the Edgar Rice Burroughs characters.

expectedly this year. Upon him was placed the mantle of chief executive of the commonwealth of Michigan. Attorney General Read ruled that he was both acting governor and lieutenant governor, and that he would draw the governor's salary. In any event Governor Dickinson today finds himself indirectly running liquor stores and horse races, and you can imagine his extreme distaste in engaging in either of these activities of old-fashioned moral ill repute.

"Drunken Carousals"

Mr. Dickinson left no room for doubt as to his personal feelings about these two activities last January in his "inaugural" address this year to the State Senate.

He called attention to an estimate that Michigan people pay $120,000,000 annually for liquor, that the liquor control commission's revenue last year was $8,000,000 and that the price of crime tracenble to abuse of liquor could be put reasonably at $90,000,000 annually in Michigan.

Then case a blast that would do justice to a Methodist prayer meeting: "Again we see parents, young men and women and boys and girls, even, from funds that should be used to buy clothing, food, shoes, medicine, rent, toys, furnishings, etc., in drunken sprees and carousals, handing out millions to the bars, beer gardens, road houses and restaurants in the fashion of ancient Greece and Rome to sustain the liquor traffic while state and nation are devising new modes of taxation and borrowing more millions to support and feed tens of thousands of these."

Quite a mouthful, that!

Like a stenetorian voice from the sky is this indictment of gambling, also expressed in the inaugural address:

"Conceded gambling practices, permeating all grades of our society, can well be likened to these ancient countries' indulgences. The vehement outery from every locality of our people, as well as from other sections of the country sending millions of tourists into our commonwealth annually, are uttering vociferous demands that we purge our state of these gambling leeches, habitues of our fairs, races, resorts and roadsides, extracting millions by every conceivable device from fathers, mothers, boys and girls that should be used to buy shoes, clothing, fuel, food and other necessities thus turning over thousands upon thousands to be fed, clothed and warmed by state or federal aid." To all this you need only a loud "amen" to complete the picture.

Political Patronage

Michigan's retail liquor business is politically controlled to the extent that a large number of its jobs are handed out as patronage to deserving party workers.

The Murphy administration put its followers into store managerships before civil service "Jellied" them in their jobs. Now the Republicans are doing the same thing, handing out plums to those who served faithfully during the campaign.

The same thing could be said of the Michigan racing commission, a board responsible to the governor, which manages the legalized pari-mutual betting system at the state fairground track in Detroit.

Following a visit to the state fair office where Dr. Linwood Snow, Northville, is doing an efficient job as manager (despite attempts at political interference) we visited the nearby race track. Twilight races were being run, 4:30 to 7:30 p. m. Several thousand people (a small box-office) were there, not to witness the races as much as to gamble.

Long rows of betting windows, $2 to $100, would require a good two blocks. Loud speakers carried frequent reminders of the time available to place bets. After each race the winners present their tickets to the cashiers for the pay-off.

Of course it is called a sport for the improvement of the breeding of better (and faster) horses. But we all know that it is gambling, pure and simple, and not so much of either at that.

This gambling business is condoned and supervised by the state under legislative authority. Being legalized by the legislature, betting has become a law which Governor Dickinson, by his oath of office, agreed to enforce along with all other laws on the state statute book.

Surely here is a paradox, a conflict of moral issues, if there ever was one.

Governor Doesn't Worry

Despite his age of 80 years, Mr. Dickinson enjoys the responsibilities of being governor.

He relishes it.

In fact, he has gained weight. Worries which plagued the late Frank Fitzgerald into an early grave apparently do not inspire a wrinkle on the Dickinson brow.

Admitting frankly that he wasn't "losing any sleep" over the then prevalent budget problem, the governor packed his bags and left in a state police car for the governors' conference in the east. Let the legislature worry about a prospective deficit, he said, if it failed to cut school aid to $38,250,000.

And worry the law-mnkers did, while Governor Dickinson enjoyed himself at New York City and Washington, D. C. They reduced the school aid to $39,000,000 and left a loophole for $2,000,000 more revenue if budget-balancing would permit it.

It was a triumph for economy, on paper at least. Actually, however, the state is still in the hole financially and another "recession" or a prolonged automobile strike would impose another heavy burden on welfare needs, enough to quickly exhaust the reduced appropriation which the legislature authorized.

The Dickinson administration then would be bogged down in the same morass that befell Frank Murphy. It would be a case again of inducing the Great White Father at Washington to feed the jobless or of dipping more into non-existent state funds. With an election due, and the 1940 balloting isn't so far away, politicians would see to it that plenty of spending was done. As the records prove, welfare rolls have a funny habit of going up just before votes are to be cast.

Milk Price Fixing

Michigan's experiment in the field of price fixing is about to begin.

On Saturday, July 17, the state milk board will hear arguments of the Michigan Milk Producers association and Detroit milk producers that an emergency exists in the metropolitan milk-shed and that the state should intervene.

Anticipated by producers is an increase in the price of bottled milk.

The new milk law does not affect the so-called surplus milk which goes into butter, ice cream, milk powder, canned milk and other manufactured products.

pecially WPA, appear to think that the United States would have been ruined without Roosevelt. Others think it was ruined by Roosevelt. Which is right will probably be decided next year. Some say business is holding up things so that Roosevelt can't do anything. Some say Roosevelt is holding up business so that it can't do anything. Anyway, we are in debt 40 billion, something that never happened before, and 12 million men are out of employment, something else that never happened before, and farmers cannot sell hardly anything at a profit, but pays the highest price for what he buys, which never happened before. Most people that run a profitable business, look over their past accounts, and find under what administration or circumstances they saved the most money. The writer, in looking over past figures finds that he made, and saved the most, under the Republican regime. In fact, since becoming a voter, there has been no time under Democratic administration that we made as much money as under the Republican management. Logically, then, it would appear that the voters' best plan would be to put the Republicans back into power again, and let them try what they can do. The Republicans of the states where they have got back into power have run things more economically, so it appears that they might do something to change things for the better. There may be just as many crooks in the Republican as in the Democratic administration, but the former seem to have a better head on them for doing business. Of course, it isn't really the Democrats so much now, but the "Poor Dealers" that have muddled things so for the past six or seven years. Personally, we have always been a Democrat, voting Republican for the past 12 years, and it is a bit hard to acknowledge the superiority of the Republicans, but past and present history shows that they are in the lead in the way of management of government affairs, and always have been. So let's all pull together, Democrats and Republicans, working shoulder to shoulder, and give the "Poor Dealers" a vacation. They need it badly. Let Roosevelt and Farley go fishing, along with Ickes, Jones, Harrington, Murphy, etc., etc.

Lima, Ohio, who is night clerk at the Belvedere Hotel. He had the prize on display at Adams & Son store recently. Understand Carl Steiner tried to muscle in on some of the credit because he was steering the boat when Guy caught the fish. Did you ever hear of such a thing? Mr. Guy has entered the fish in the Hunting & Fishing magazine contest. Hope it wins a prize.

Here is a suggestion which might be worth consideration. Now that the roadway has been eliminated along the yacht slips at the foot of Antrim street, it would be a wonderful convenience to motorists driving to business places at the foot of that street if a roadway extending beyond and opening onto Belvedere avenue was opened. As it is now, a person is oftimes required to back up clear to Bridge street because of the congested condition.

There won't be a Michigan Riviera Tennis tournament this summer, so one of the most profitable and finest entertainment features Charlevoix has ever sponsored is being allowed to go into the discard. I say it was profitable because it was. The entry ran from 100 to as high as 240 persons who ate, slept and provided their own entertainment and necessities for a week in Charlevoix. A conservative estimate would place the amount spent in the city at $3,000. That's mighty conservative and doesn't take into account the intangible value of columns of newspaper sports page headlines Charlevoix received throughout the nation while the tournament was in progress. The tournament cost the city on an average of $400 per year, and if $3,000 isn't a good return on a $400 investment, I'm crazy. The reason there is going to be no tournament this year is that the directors of the board of commerce put $50 in their budget for tennis. That amount probably would have been sufficient to buy postage for the invitations, but bluntly speaking, was an insult to members of the tennis committee. I don't blame them for dropping the tournament. What I'm getting around to is that the board of commerce is not always right on matters of policy. They have spent a greater sum on promotions which returned far less into the pocketbooks of Mr. Taxpoyer, who foots the bill for their program. It is to be granted that everyone has ideas as to the typo of promotions the board of commerce should carry out. These opinions no doubt differ widely, but it is questionable if all opinions are given fair consideration. If they were, the tennis tournament would be continued. And when you get down to the final analysis of the whole thing, isn't it features that give us a good return for our investment that we want? If the directors of the board of commerce can see fit to give all interests fair treatment in their promotional efforts, then there will be no room for criticism, but not until they do.

It is noted with interest that the state highway department's new $6,025.986 federal aid highway construction program embracing 59 projects in 37 counties does not embrace relocation or rebuilding of that portion of US-31 from Charlevoix north to Bay Shore. We still maintain that section of trunkline is a disgrace to the highway system Michigan boasts so loud and lustily about.

It is my fervent hope that the city's action in outfitting its utilities employes in natty new uniforms is "Catching" and will serve as an example for other employers. It certainly would solve the clothing problem. The boys sure do look neat, though, and I notice also the light department truck had a new suit of paint and nice lettering on the side.

Learned the other evening that boat operators can be mighty good housekeepers. Visited the Mary Margaret, Charlevoix-Beaver Island mail boat, and found it just as spick-and-span as any private plessure yacht. Not a speck of dirt, exterior and interior brightly painted, everything neat and clean. And by the way. Have you noticed that quite a few of the commercial fishing boats have been painted up lately. Certainly improved the harbor appearance.

NEW FEATURES ADDED THE ARGONNE PROGRAM

Four Special Parties Each Week Announced by W. J. Kerns

Four big special parties weekly, along with dancing every night, is now available to patrons at The Argonne, popular local amusement place.

The present schedule includes a musicians' "jam session," featuring northern Michigan's best and visiting musical talent every Monday night; carnival night every Wednesday, with hats, horns and serpentine for the amusements of patrons; the popular jitterbug contest every Thursday night with northern Michigan's best talent competing for prizes, and the regular Saturday night fun and frolic which has always drawn capacity crowds.

Probably such special programs as presented last Monday evening account for the wonderful popularity of The Argonne this season. The famous Murray Studio dance team of Little & Alexander, giving exhibition dancing and instruction at The Inn, favored the crowd with rumba, tango and waltz numbers and led patrons in dancing. Numerous of northern Michigan's best musicians added their bit during the "jam session," providing one of the finest evening's entertainment this season. Also featured was Jim Davis, old-time blind musician from Dayton, Ohio, whose saxophone and piano numbers greatly pleased.

FORMER LOCAL GIRL IS WED JULY 2 IN DOUBLE CEREMONY AT SHEPHERD

A double wedding of interest to Charlevoix residents took place at Shepherd, Saturday evening, July 2.

The double wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. E. A. Bell, a former pastor of the East Superior Christian church at Alma. The services united in marriage Miss Bernice Cook, formerly of Charlevoix, and Robert Needham, and Miss Jeanne Ward and Jack Fales, all of Alma.

The bridal party were accompanied to Shepherd by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bragg, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hanson, Mr. and Mrs. Gaylord Gee and Miss Kate Kennedy and Mr. Winchell, who were present for the double ceremony.

Mrs. Needham is a graduate of Alma high school and has made her home with her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Galo Chew. She is employed at the Alma Dairy on Wright avenue. Mr. Needham is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Needham, of Ely street, and also is a graduate of Alma high school. He is employed at the chemical plant in St. Louis.

Mrs. Fales, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matt Ward, of Woodworth avenue, is a graduate of Alma high school and also of the Laura Bailes Beauty School and is associated with the Family Beauty Shop on Woodworth avenue.

Mr. Fales is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Gearig of Allen avenue. He also attended the Alma public schools and at present is employed at a local gas station on Michigan avenue.

Both couples are nicely located in apartments at the Needham home on Ely street.

CHARLEVOIX GARDEN CLUB IS ORGANIZED; OFFICERS ARE NAMED

The newly organized Charlevoix Garden club held its second meeting at the home of Mrs. Ross Alexander at Ironton. Mrs. Alexander served a pot luck luncheon on the lawn to the 13 members present.

At a short business meeting Mrs. Alexander was elected president of the club, Mrs. Ray Faulkner, vice-president, and Mrs. Glenn See secretary and treasurer.

Later in the afternoon the group made a tour of the Charlevoix county nursery. Mr. Hemingway, owner, gave a very instructive talk on the various plants and flowers, and Mrs. Hemingway served dainty refreshments to the ladies on the lawn near her home, before they left the nursery grounds.

The group discussed the possibilities for horticultural study in this locality, and laid a tentative program for their meetings in the fall. One more meeting has been planned for the last week in July. Active work in the club will then be discontinued until after Labor Day.

NEW HUNTING LAWS IN EFFECT THIS FALL

Longer Period

Bird hunters should rejoice, for after game investigators informed the legislature that grouse and pheasants were on the upswing the season for hunting them was extended by members. There will be no increase in the bag limits, however. These are five in one day, 10 in possession and 25 for the season. On prairie chickens and sharp-tails the bag is a combined one. The seasons decided upon are October 1 to 20 in the upper peninsula and October 15 to November 15 in the lower peninsula. But prairie chickens and sharptails cannot be hunted below the North Line of Townline 12. The same season was established for hunting Hungarian partridges but this no doubt will be forbidden by the conservation commission.

No Changes

There has been no changes made in the deer hunting law except that bow and arrow hunters can hunt in all counties from November 1 to November 15 that happen to be open to rifle hunters. Also the black bear and skunk have been removed from the protected list and may be killed at any time. But again the commission can close any county for hunting the two if it so desires.

Among the fur bearers opossums have been taken from the protected list and can be killed any time. Fisher and marten remain protected. Mink trapping becomes legal also and undoubtedly the season will be set by the commission to run with that covering muskrat trapping. The raccoon season is uniform all over the state and runs from November 1 to June 31. Beaver and otter season are up to the commission also.

Golden and bald eagles are both protected in Michigan now, together with the osprey.

All small game hunting will start at 7 a. m., E. S. T., instead of sunrise, as was the case in some instances last year.

No changes have been made in the license fees. They remain at $1 for residents, $5 for non-residents above Townline 16 North and $15 below that.—Detroit News.

AID FOR CRIPPLED CHILDREN SLASHED

ACTIVITIES IN CHARLEVOIX COUNTY MUST BE CUT

Reported by Probate Judge Ruegsegger Shows Funds Available One-Sixth of Last Year

A drastic curtailment of aid to crippled and afflicted children in Charlevoix county during the year beginning July 1, 1939, due to a decrease on state appropriations for this purpose, is reported by Probate Judge E. A. Ruegsegger in a news release quoted as follows:

"The service heretofore given in the hospitalization of crippled and afflicted children in this county is almost at an end, and will continue during the year commencing July 1, 1939 in only a limited way and only in the most extreme and emergency cases.

"During the past year the state spent $1,497,573.98 for crippled children, and $868,719.45 for afflicted children, or a total of $2,366,293.43. As against this amount, on account of depleted condition of the state treasury, the legislature only appropriated $800,000, which is a little over 25 per cent of the amount spent last year. The legislature allotted to each county a certain amount divided into an equal sum for each month, above which officials cannot spend. Charlevoix county's allotment for the year ending July 1, 1940 is $1,237 for afflicted and $741 for crippled children, a total of $1,978. Last year the state spent $7,226.72 for crippled, and $5,969.51 for afflicted children in Charlevoix county.

"From the above it can be seen that the state paid over six times as much the past year as they will this year. Our allotment the coming year is $100.22 per month for afflicted children, and $60.14 for crippled. This includes new as well as old cases now under care.

"I know of no fund that can be drawn on to pay any excess of the above monthly allotment. This matter should be discussed at health and clinic meetings, by school boards, health officers, medical boards and physicians, societies and supervisors at their next meetings.

"I regret that the situation as above has arisen, but it must be met and everybody should cooperate to the end that the best possible service be given to our unfortunate children under the circumstances."

CHANGES MADE IN COMMERCIAL FISHING LAWS

New Regulations for Michigan Take Effect io September

In September a number of new restrictions governing commercial fishing in the Michigan waters of the Great Lakes become effective.

Among the more important are the closing of a large part of Potagannissing Bay to commercial fishing; prohibiting the use of nets and spears from Pte. Aux Barques light down to Harbor Beach, in Lake Huron, except when set one mile from the shore; prohibiting herring fishing in Lake Superior from July 15 to September 15; no nets can be set with 20 rods of the shoreline of Lake Superior by commercial operators. This will eliminate the rowboat fisherman.

The size of wall-eyed pike has been reduced to 15½ inches for commercial purposes. This is one inch less than it has been.

The legislature did not outlaw the use of the deep water trap net which conservationists have been fighting to acquire for many years. It still remains legal gear. If Ontario agrees the mesh of nets used in taking chubs out of Lake Huron will be increased from 2½ inches to 2⅝ inches in order that fewer small fish will be taken.

TREATMENT SUGGESTED FOR "SWIMMERS ITCH"

Advise Given by State Agency Working on Prevention

Officials of state agencies working on a program aimed at ridding Michigan's public bathing waters of "swimmer's itch" today handed out several simple, easy-to-use methods of prevention.

A vigorous rubdown with a rough bathtowel immediately after coming out of the water is one way for bathers to head off the irritation. Washing with a strong soap shortly after swimming is another means. Applying a lotion containing oil before entering the water also tends to minimize the effect.

This advice came from officials of the department of conservation, who are working on the problem with representatives of the Michigan Department of Health, the state stream control commission and the University of Michigan biological station at Douglas lake in Cheboygan county.

IRONTON PLAYERS OPEN SECOND BILL

"NIGHT MUST FALL" IS CURRENT FEATURE

Michigan County Clerks to Attend Thursday Matioee—Next Week Produce "Goodbye Again"

Over fifty members of the convention of Michigsn County Clerks will attend the matinee performance of "Night Must Fall" at the Ironton Playhouse Thursday afternoon, July 20th. The convention is in session at the Belvedere Hotel, and the members have decided to take time off on Thursday to enjoy the play.

"Night Must Fall," the thrilling melodrama by Emlyn Williams, has been presented in London and again in New York, with Mr. Williams himself playing the leading role of Danny, the psychopathic killer. Robert Montgomery saw the play in London and was so impressed with the story that he immediately bought the film rights, and, as everyone knows, made himself world-famous as a dramatic actor in the movie version.

An interesting side light to the Ironton Theater's production is that Philip Dakin, who is playing the role portrayed by Robert Montgomery, looks startlingly like Mr. Montgomery, and as a matter of fact was once signed to double for that actor. Mr. Dakin has always wanted to play the role, and this is his first opportunity.

Others in the cast are Ricca Scott Titus, who plays Mrs. Bramson, who is a victim of Danny's murderous assault; Priscilla Towers, who plays Olivia Grayne, the role played by Rosalind Russell in the movie; Cherry Hardy, playing Mrs. Terrence, the amusing cockney cook; Margaret Noble Wallace, playing Dora, the ignorant kitchen maid; Gene Benedict, the district nurse; Robert Russell, playing Mr. Belsize, the police inspector; and Charles Baker, who plays Hubert Laurie, Olivia's fiance.

The second production of the Ironton Playhouse's second season was directed by John H. Jennings, and the setting is by James Harris. The play will be given every night until Friday at eight thirty, and Thursday afternoon at two thirty.

Next week the rollicking comedy "Goodbye Again" is scheduled for production, and promises a cheerful variation from the sombre theme of murder now being presented.

FIFTY PERCH LIMIT IN LAKE CHARLEVOIX

Opinion by Attorney General Read Upholds Present Daily Catch

An interpretation on the new fishing laws governing daily limits on pan fish in Round lake and Lake Charlevoix was released Saturday by Attorney General Thomas Read.

Read held that 50 perch may be taken in one day from the Great Lakes and connecting waters and from the following other lakes: Black lake in Ottawa county; Muskegon and White in Muskegon county; Pentwater and Storey in Oceana county; Pere Marquette in Mason county; Manistee, Bar and Portage in Manistee county, and Charlevoix and Round in Charlevoix county.

In other lakes, the limit is 15 perch per day. In lakes where 15 perch may be taken, the limit of bluegills, sunfish and all other panfish is 25, Read said.

SHOT AT RANDOM

By Ken Ushar

The local deep sea trollers should be able to get a real kick out of the new fishing law regulation placing a daily limit of five mackinaw trout per person. If my memory is correct, there hasn't been a trout caught on the Lake Michigan grounds for over three weeks, so I guess nobody will have any trouble living up to that law. Always thought the law was a joke and haven't changed my mind a bit.

And while on the subject of Lake Michigan fishing, would like to venture the remark that commercial fishing for mackinaw trout will continue to get worse ao long as the use of chub nets is allowed to continue. Commercial fishermen themselves, and officials of the conservation department as well, know that the use of small mesh chub nets is killing off the small trout by the tons with the result they don't have a chance to grow large enough to spawn. This practice year after year is bound to eliminate the breeding stock, leaving only those trout termed "hogs," which are too large to gill, and those too small to spawn. The new law requiring 2⅝ instead of 2½-inch mesh for chub nets isn't going to correct the trouble at all. It will only serve to make it worse, for the small trout which now are caught by the teeth will get gilled in this larger mesh. It would be awful interestiag to find out just what power there is lurking in the background that stops the conservation department from prohibiting the use of chub nets entirely for a few years.

Rabbit hunters should get no little satisfaction from the new hunting regulations which extend their season to January 31 instead of December 31 as formerly. The new regulations didn't change the situation which gives the upper peninsula fellows a month longer season, for they can

Translated into less pedagogic language, Michigan is, verily, the "Lake State."

When J. Lee Barrett, of Detroit, manager of the Southeastern Michigan Tourist association, proposed that Michignn be known officially as the "Lake State" and that automobile license platea carry this advertising slogan, he probably felt that the word "peninsula" was too coldly scientific, being the cause rather than the effect, whereas the word "lake" conjured immediately a happy mental picture of outdoor enjoyment.

The dictionary defines a peninsula: "A piece of land almost surrounded by water and connected with the mainland by a neck called an isthmus."

Without getting sidetracked into an embarrassing discussion about what counties constitute the "neck," consider for a moment the following facts. Most of them, we venture to say, are unknown to the average native who looks at Michigan with complacent indifference just because it has become commonplace to him.

CAMP CHARLEVOIX WEEKLY NEWS COLUMN

Edited by Herbert W. Johnson

Camper Willard Carr remarked this morning that he "never knew how much fun there was in always having something to do until he came to camp" and this reminds us that we are a pretty happy group up here, because each week has been a very busy one in this Limberlost.

On Monday the campers changed their activities, and new boys were with the counsellors in sailing, handicraft, photography, boating, artcraft, metalcraft, boxing, baseball, tennis, swimming and the other groups. We noticed that Dick LaFever, Al Loeb, Bob Kerr and Charlie McGuire started work immediately on their leather belts, metal trays, book covers and burned-wood "treasure" chests that Andy Frostic supervises in the handicraft shop. Barney Goljnvaux, Dogao Arthur, Al Birdsall and Guy Culver were down at the dock learning how to master canoes and their peculiar whims and fancies. Jack Jetton, our Texan cowboy, had a group of fellows developing their horsemanship. They included Russ Gardner, Jason Bloomberg, Bob Honer, Bill Nelson, Jim Cault, Charlie Brainard, Jim Kendall, Jack Lehnard and Dick Windisch. The boys call horseback riding the activity with "20,000 jolts."

The big event on Wednesday was the Lewis Bros. Circus in Charlevoix. Almost everyone went in to go under the big top. Elephants, peanuts, pop and clowns were in order that day. That night we saw Edmund Petty, John Nixon, Rowland Burnstan and Jerry Burke trying to make the camp's goat—named "So and So," for very good reasons — grunt like an elephant and jump through a hoop.

In the evening, Ralph Heikkinen, our All-American guard, who seems to be rating all the newspapers in the country these days, showed moving pictures of the Michigan-Michigan State and Michigan-Northwestern games of the last season. The campers enjoyed it no end and called for more.

The "T" in Thursday must mean "Trips" at camp here, for on that day a trip on horses went to Mt. McSawby on Lake Michigan. The riders were Dick Koebel, John Squier, Jason Bloomberg, Hugh McPherson, Bill Wilson and Robert Honer. Camper McPherson made quite a name for himself by riding home from this trip without his boots. Another trip that went out was Junior Cahin two. Bob Stevens was the counsellor and along with Charlie Marcus who was skipper, took a boat trip on our recently launched "Alert." The sailors included William McConkey, Albert Bonner, Edmund Petty and John Nixon. The return home was an exciting one with the waves dashing over the prow giving the boys chance to develop their "sea legs."

Saturday was a gala day with special "all-camp" features. Jim Sterrett won the award for looking most like a cowboy—or what a cowboy should look like on a Dude Ranch. Herb Dow, who comes from Midland where there are no cowboys that we know of, learned from somewhere and with his sombrero et al, took honorable mention. Saturday has become our "Dude Ranch Day" and our campers have a sartorial craze for looking like "Pecos Bill" and his friends.

In the afternoon our first baseball game with neighboring camps was played. Camp Algonquin was our first victim of the season to a tune of 17-1 in hard ball. In soft ball the shouting was not so loud. Algonquin won with a score of 20-5. Guy Culver covered himself with no little glory for some super-fine pitching which drew applause at dinner that night and called for a speech which he gave in the Calvin Coolidge manner. He simply said, "Thanks."

In the evening the camp actors performed for the camp and guests who attended. A mystery thriller with leads played by Jim Whittemore, Dogan Arthur, Bob Honer and John Squire played to an awed audience. John Squier achieved recognition by drinking a glass of vinegar on the scene without realizing until it was too late. Another play taken from one on Broadway was presented with Guy Culver, Fred Matthael, Jean Reimann, Don Horton, Bob Million and Wiley Hitchcock. Fred Matthael won plaudits for his line "Phi Beta Kappa membership is something you never forget, and if you're son of one you never forget it either."

On Sunday morning the Sunday worship service was held in the chapel in the woods. The camp sang many good hymns, Herb Johnson spoke on. "Counter-balance Wheels" and the quartet sang "Fairest Lord Jesus." In the afternoon the sections went on various trips to the surrounding countryside.

Plans for Dad's day to be held on July 29th are occupying much time already. John Schilling has been elected chairman of the planning committee, and that should mean a good program. Will we be seeing you?

Michigan has 4,187 named inland lakes, ranging in size from Houghton lake with 18,950 acres and Torch lake with 18,000 acres down to lakes of ten acres or less. Nine lakes are larger than 10,000 acres; ten lakes have areas from 5,000 to 10,000 acres.

And then, in the wilderness areas of the north, are an estimated 1,000 additional unnamed lakes.

The shore line along the Great Lakes, together with the thousands of inland lakes, have made possible an outstanding system of state parks. How many? Guess again, for the total is 57 exclusive of approximately two million acres of state forest lands—which have been made available to the public for camping. In an average year the state parks are visited by 9,000,000 people who come from all sections of the United States as well as Canada and Mexico.

Michigan's white fleet at the Straights of Mackinac may be commonplace to you, but it is a source of great interest to tourists.

The ferry service between the two peninsulas is the only one of its kind maintained by a state highway department. Five state-owned and one leased vessel are now operated at the Straits during the summer tourist season. In 1937 the state purchased a car-ferry of the Ann Arbor railroad and re-named it the "City of Cheboygan." Last year a Pere Marquette car-ferry was purchased, modernized and named the "City of Munising."

Automobile traffic has grown from 10,000 vehicles in 1923 when the state went into the ferry business to about 275,000 annually at this time. Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner has stated that the saturation point has been reached in the number of boats that can be handled efficiently between present terminal docks.

Trapped in a Web of Evil Intrigue

How a blood-stained flower . . . among several meagre clues . . . were enough to unravel an amazing tangle of blackmail that had baffled police, will be told in "The Red Carnation," a thrilling new tale of mystery by Burton Stevenson, opening chapters of which will be found in The American Weekly, the great weekly magazine, with the July 23 issue of The Detroit Sunday Times. Be sure to read this thriller about strange deaths and evil intrigues in New York's high-living, sophisticated cafe society.

LANSING LETTER

Leads in Shore Line

Michigan has more shore line than any other state in the Union.

Four of the Great Lakes—Superior, Michigan, Huron and Erie — create the two peninsulas.

There are 492 miles of frontage on Lake Superior, the largest body of fresh water in the world. Along Lake Michigan the coast line extends for 855 miles with harbors and inlets adding another 90 miles. Lake Huron borders the state from Mackinaw City to Port Huron, a distance of 455 miles, and there is another 107 miles of shore line from St. Ignace to Detour. The Lake Erie shore line totals only 47 miles.

In addition to these waters of the Great Lakes, the St. Mary's river, connecting Lake Superior and Lake Huron, is 89 miles long; the St. Clair river and Lake St. Clair have a Michigan shore line of 85 miles, and the Detroit river between Lake St. Clair and Lake Erie stretches for 33 miles.

4,187 Named Lakes

And this is just the beginning, as the showboat captain would say.

VACATION JOYS ARE HERE... IN Michigan!

THE time for planning your vacation is here . . . and the place to spend it is here too! Perfect for adults, our own State has advantages that make it a paradise for boys and girls of any age.

Proof of this lies in the 225 licensed camps for children that are maintained by various organizations . . . State Forests and 57 State Parks . . . thousands of lakes and streams . . . many spots of educational and historic interest . . . endless miles of scenery that Nature must have designed for the special benefit of youthful hiking parties!

Give your children a chance to know their native State. It will be good for them . . . and good for Michigan too!

Rural state trunkline highways are this year carrying more traffic than ever before in the history of Michigan, it was indicated this week by a report of the highway planning survey.

There was also a substantial increase over 1937, the previous peak year.

GAS TAX COLLECTIONS REACH ALL-TIME HIGH

Gain of $895,314 Reported for First Six Months of 1939

Harry F. Kelly, secretary of state, reports a gain of $895,314 in the gas tax collections the first six months of 1939 over the same period of 1938. This is an all time high for the gasoline tax division. The total amount collected from January 1 to June 30, 1939 aggregates $13,928,037, topping the previous high record for a six month period in 1037 of $13,736,999 by $191,038. For the first six months in 1938 the total gas collections were $13,032,723, so the gain for 1939 is more marked.

Report of the Secretary Board of Education, July 10, 1939

Attention is called to a lowering number of children on the school census, resulting in a lesser school membership. State aid is based on membership. The new schedule for distribution of state monies is to the disadvantage of school like Charlevoix. Plans for another year provide means of operating within our income.

Consolidation with other school hns been considered for years. This conclusion has been reached that consolidation up to a point where present facilities can be used, to capacity would be desirable, but when additional buildings would be necessary the cost of such buildings would fall mainly on the present school district. The board is encouraging transportation of outside pupils to our school where such addition will not increase operation costs but would result in greater state aid.

This year the school will take over the entire expense of running the Library. Some time in the future it is proposed to make use of the basement for a children's library.

For the past year a course in sewing has been provided as well as 4-H club work in the grades.

The board has made provisions to match any money contributed to school band uniforms. Uniforms of a sufficient number and quality for our growing band will make necessary a considerable amount of money.

Additions to the heating and ventilating equipment has increased the safety and efficiency of this service.

Two years from January the school debt will mature. For the past several years this item has accounted for more than fifty per cent of the taxes. With a balance for this purpose it is very probable that the present 4 mill rate can be gradually reduced.

For the past two years a certified public accountant has been employed to make a thorough audit of the school accounts. It is the board's intention to continue this practice.

C. B. MEGGISON, Secretary.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT

Treatment of Athlete's Foot

The prevention of athlete's foot depends upon the care of the feet rather than an attempt to avoid the infection in bathroom, locker house and swimming pool which are so commonly and erroneously thought to be sources of the infection. There is absolutely no point in developing an elaborate ritual of precautionary measures in an attempt to prevent contact with the specific organism which causes athlete's foot.

The yeast-like fungus is present everywhere and will develop between the fourth and fifth toes of the feet when they become moist and the skin is macerated. The tons of advice about prevention are of no value as long as this condition persists on the feet and such directions as drying the surface of the body from the head downward, using the towel on the feet last to prevent the spread of infection, is a thing which everyone does instinctively without medical advice and which has no relation to the infection anyway.

While it is probable that the blame attached to swimming pools has brought them to a high standard of hygiene with antiseptic foot baths, frequent dis-infection of locker room floors and the use of impervious material in their construction, it has not proved to be a successful anti-ringworm of the feet.

To prevent ringworm of the feet so commonly present during the summer months: First wear light, loosely fitting shoes and thin cotton or rayon socks or stockings, thus imitating the footwear of women and children.

Secondly, bathe the feet frequently, using soap freely. Thoroughly dry the spaces between the toes and dust the feet freely with boracic acid or talcum powder to which may be added 10 per cent salicylic acid.

Third, if you still have the bug, to fumigate the shoes, it may be done very simply by using formaldehyde. Place a pledget of absorbent cotton moistened with a few drops of formalin in the toe of the shoe and put them away in an ordinary shoebox or metal container over night.

Fourth, as soon as the itching between the toes is noticed or an unusually moist area with bliatera is seen, scrub the feet carefully with soap and water, dry them and then apply a weak solution of tincture of iodine, one-half strength, or a 1 to 1,000 alcoholic solution of merthiolate. A simple foot bath using one-tenth per cent potassium permanganate is always effective.

Fifth, the condition can be quickly cleared up if taken when the first symptom appears and can be almost entirely prevented by keeping the spaces between the toes dry by the liberal use of talcum in those people who wear the same pair of shoes 14 or 15 hours a day. In severe and longstanding infection home treatment is of no avail.

The average father doesn't hnid his baby on his knee anyways near as long as he used to hold the baby's mother.

Proper Method of Applying Grasshopper Bait Shown at Demonstration

The Charlevoix county grasshopper control program received added impetus last week when a demonstration, conducted by Frank Parmelee, state grasshopper control supervisor, showed the proper method to apply bait. This meeting was held on Wm. Pearson's farm last Thursday, July 13th. We have always made the statement that from ten to twenty pounds per acre is a sufficient quantity to apply per acre but the majority of farmers have repeatedly said that such a small quantity could not be broadcast thinly enough to cover an acre. If this demonstration accomplished nothing else, it certainly showed that this small quantity could be efficiently spread on this amount of land.

Close to 40 farmers were sufficiently interested in this protection to their crops to come and learn what they could nbout controlling grasshoppers. Mr. Parmalee emphasized the point that the poison bait should be applied when the temperature is between 70 and 90 degrees. He said that with a temperature of 60 degrees and less grasshoppers do not feed and are sluggish and more or less in a resting stage.

The easiest method, as well as the most efficient, in broadcasting the bait is to use a truck with low sides. Place the bait in u basket snd use both hands in long sweeping motions in spreading it. When the truck is traveling at from five to eight miles per hour complete coverage can be secured by this method. In fact, Mr. Parmelee stated that he could cover ten acres in slightly less than thirty minutes.

Charlevoix State Savings Bank

A member of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation—deposits insured up to $5,000, this bank is one of our most necessary institutions.

Consistent, solid, steady growth is perhaps the most easily understood measure of the success of a bank.

The Charlevoix State Savings Bank has enjoyed such growth, as shown in successive statements of condition, published regularly in accordance with laws governing banks.

There are, however, other important factors to be considered in measuring the success of a bank. One is adaptability to meeting the needs of its customers and the community. The first need, of course, is to pay depositors on demand whenever required. The second is to unite with business in the program to hasten economic recovery along sound lines.

This calls for the loaning of money, the extending of adequate credit accommodations to meet legitimate credit requirements. Lending money is the business of a bank—but it must never be forgotten that the money belongs to the depositors and that while a good loan business stimulates business, a bad loan is a brake upon recovery. This bank has done, is doing and will continue to do its part to provide the credit needed to keep sound business moving forward.

There is no reason why they should not occupy a prominent place in the better class of dairy markets and the above are some of the reasons why their brands are more and more popular with particular buyers and why this concern is prospering far beyond expectations.

DETROIT

AT THE MOVIES

"Susannah of the Mounties," Shirley Temple's latest starring vehicle, will be shown July 23-24 on the screen of the Palace Thentre.

Based on the famous story of the northwest by Muriel Denison, this script was chosen in accordance with Production Chief Darryl F. Zanuck's policy of giving Shirley increasingly dramatic roles and is also an expression of the producer's almost uncanny sense of what the picture-going public wants today.

To Shirley herself, however, it was the most exciting episode in her remarkable career simply because it gave her the opportonity to make friends with a dozen Blackfeet Indians, braves who had been brought from their reservation in Montana to appear in the film. Randolph Scott and Margaret Lockwood have supporting roles.

Stellar Trio in Heart-Stirring "Rose of Washington Square"

A whiff of lavender, the sight of a once-loved book, the taste of "penny candy"—such are the little inconsequential things that can bring back the past to many of us in a rush of memory. But there is one thing dependable above everything else to work this result, and that's the popular song.

So bound up in the individual romances of our daily lives are the heart songs and hit songs of yesterday and today that just overhearing a familiar refrain opens the gates of memory. This was one of the reasons for the popularity of the recent film, "Alexander's Ragtime Band." To this nostalgia, also, is largely due the acclaim which has greeted the newest entertainment highlight from Darryl F. Zanuck and 20th Century-Fox, "Rose of Washington Square." The romantic stars of "Alexander's Ragtime Band"—Tyrone Power and Alice Faye—are joined by Al Jolson in "Rose of Washington Square" which opens July 27 at the Palace Theatre.

"How much money did he leave?" is often the first question asked when a man dies. That's no way to judge any one. You may save but little money in life, but if you have saved a lot of heartaches for other people you are a rich man indeed.

DON'T PILE STRAW TOO HIGH UNDER POWER LINE

This Warning Issued to Farmers Served by Rural Electrics

Rural electrification, with all of the improvements brought to rural communities, is the cause of some concern among line operators, if letters received by the department of agriculture may be accepted as an indication. Power companies are requesting lists of threshers that they may warn them of the dangers of building straw stacks too near to power lines, or starting stacks under lines without thought as to the height of the stacks.

The department of agriculture does not maintain list of threshers, the law requiring their registration with the department having been repealed 10 years ago. The trend of the letters received by the department indicate that there is little danger from the power lines if reasonable judgment is used, one of the most common violations being the building of stacks too close to the line.

BEAN, POTATO SHIPMENT IN JUNE SET NEW RECORD

Previous records for the shipment of beans and potatoes during June were broken doring the past month, according to inspection records of the department of agriculture, with an equivalent of 1,196 cars of these products being shipped in and out-state. Rail and truck shipments combined boosted total potato shipments to 342 cars, as compared with 60 cars for the same month daring 1938, when shipments were above their normal level. Records disclose that shipments of this product in this state are usually discontinued late in May, to be resumed early in August.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS MADE FOR '39 YOUNG STATE PARK

now hunt from October 1 to March 1, but it does give the nimrods in the upper half of the lower peninsula an extra 30 days. Below townline 16 the rabbit season remains October 15 to December 31. The bird hunters are going to have a longer season, too. The upper peninsula season is from October 1 to 20 and the lower peninsula season from October 15 to November 15. This season also applies to pheasants in the lower peninsula. There were plenty of "pats" in the woods last fall, so it would appear this game can stand another couple weeks of shooting.

After reading Governor Luren Dickinson's remarks after his visit to the recent governor's conference in the East, there's no doubt about the fact that he doesn't approve of "whoopee." He said: "When I say a thing no one mistakes what I mean," and that sure is a lot of true words.

It's going to be awful disappointing to a lot of people who come to Charlevoix every summer for tennis to find out there isn't going to be any Michigan Riviera tournament this summer, or any other attraction for tennis devotees as far as I'm able to find out. Maybe we can induce them to change their favorite recreation to shuffle board or something.

Two pages of Al Weber's Cheboygan Observer which came to the writer's desk last week were printed upside-down, which reminds us of some of his theories—they're upside-down, too. Some folke may think it mean to pick on Al thusly, but they don't happen to get a copy of his paper so they can see how he "takes the hide off" the other fellow whenever he takes a notion to do so.

PLANS FOR KIWANIS CONVENTION BEGUN

EXPECT ATTENDANCE OF OVER SIX HUNDRED PERSONS

Request Privato Home Owners to List Room Accommodatioos With the Board of Commerce at Once

With the time for the 1939 Kiwanis State convention but five weeks distant, plans for the event are under way by state officers, members of the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club and tha board of commerce.

Forney W. Clement of Ann Arbor, Michigan district secretary, was in Charlevoix on Tuesday arranging preliminary details. He made a conservative estimate that the eonvention would draw 600 persons and, following a survey, made the statement that summer hotels, all with heavy bookings for the Labor Day week end, would not be able to provide sufficient accommodations.

In this connection, it is requested that all persons having rooms available in private homes, list them immediately with Cordon B. Todd, secretary of the board of commerce. It is pointed out that the successful handling of this convention, the largest ever to come to Charlevoix, will require tha eooperation of everyone with the local Kiwanis Club. A call to the board of commerce office with information regarding accommodatlons avallable, will allow preparation of a list of places where visitors may be cared for.

The convention is scheduled for August 31, September 1 and 2, with headquartera at the Belvedere Hotel.

MICHIGAN TITLE ASSOCIATION COMES AUGUST 24-26

The next convention to be held in Charlevoix will be that of the Michigan Title assoeiation, August 24th to 26th. Headquarters will be at Lakeview Inn, with Mr. and Mrs. R. F. BACHMAN COMES TO CAMP CHARLEVOIX

DIRECT FOOTBALL TRAINING NEXT FEW WEEKS

Has As Assistant Ralph Heikkinen, '38 All-American Guard from University of Michigan

(By H. W. Johnson, Scribe)

Charles Bachman, football coach of Michigan State college, East Lansing, is directing football at Camp Charlevoix during the next few weeks. He is one of the best liked and most developed football men in the country and is spending his second year at the camp.

Bachman is father of Charles Bachman, Jr., who has been a camper at Charlevoix for two years. He is an ardent supporter of boy's camps and considers Camp Charlevoix the best camp in the state. He said recently, "The best way to bring up a boy in our modern world is to keep him as husy as possible. Boredom is the path to trouble and bad habits. I believe that camps that develop boys as they keep them going are the answers to parents' summer problems with their children. My experience at Camp Charlevoix, which I consider the top-notch camp in the state, has made it possiblo for me to see almost uncanny development of character and nctivity among boys."

While at the camp, Coach Bachman will be assisted by Ralph Heikkinen, All-American guard '38, from the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor. Heikkinen is athletic directon of the camp for the season.

Other officers named were: 1st vice-president, Henry E. Jacobson, Munlsing; 2nd vice-president, Robert A. Davison, Alpena; treasurer, John A. Hagman, Howell; secretary Allan C. Hyde, Pontiac.

Following eustomary procedure, the next convention follows the first vice-president and will be held in 1940 at Munising.

Friday's business session closed one of the most successful association conventions on record. Thursday morning's roll call revealed that 58 of Michigan's 83 counties were represented, a record number, and guests of county clerks swelled the attendance to well over one hundred.

One of the convention highlights was the annual banquet Friday evening. Addressing 300 delegates and guests, Secretary of State Harry F. Kelly appealed for vigilance against interior forces aiming at destruction of the democratic government of the United States—"The only free government in the world."

Oscar P. North acted as banquet toastmaster. County Clerk Bulow introduced state and county officials present as well as members of the board of supervisors. He also presented a prize to Eugene DeVincent of Rogers City, Presque Isle county clerk, for the longest period of service—33 years; also to Rudolph H. Anderson of Cogebic county, who came 511 miles, the longest distance to the convention. Past president pins were presented five former association heads and a gift to Allan C. Hyde, Pontiac, the retiring president.

Bottoms Up!

A BARREL ROLL!... Hard on the dare-devil air devil... Safe for his engine, because it's still well-oiled though it's upside down. Just think: Your motor car—newest model or veteran—would actually get better engine lubrication if somehow you could always park it upside down!... Silly notion?... Just the same, you can see that by standing "bottoms up" your engine would have to stay oiled to the top! Then it certainly couldn't start dry—oil-starved. And that one worst source of engine wear would be ended for you.

Get this same great benefit for your car without any "topsy-turvy"... Get your engine OIL-PLATED. And that takes patented Conoco Germ Processed oil, with its "magnetic" power of mating to the working parts as intimately as chromium-plating is mated to the bumpers. Chromium-plating can't drain down; OIL-PLATING can't either. All the way up in your engine—all the while it stands or runs—all the time you use Germ Processed oil—you've got durable OIL-PLATING.

Then every start is well-oiled—wear-proofed. Every stroke of your engine, every mile you go, takes place on lasting OIL-PLATING. And you're not adding oil every other time you stop, once you change to the only Germ Processed oil... at Your Conoco Mileage Merchant's. He knows your correct Summer grade. Today have him drain and refill, and at once your engine's OIL-PLATED. Continental Oil Company

Edited by Herbert W. Johnson

If all the letters in "Camp Charlevoix" were used to tell of the major activities we have had at camp during the past week it would go something like this:

"C" is for the Chapel service held Sunday morning in the chapel-in-the-woods over which Ken Smith supervised and at which Tom Hart, who teaches English at the University of Michigan, read "The Death of King Arthur" by Alfred, Lord Tennyson. Special music was sung by the camp's quartet which includes Wiley Hitchcock, Tom and Bill Hart and Edward Moran.

"A" must be for the Arts at camp under the able direction of Wendall Gates, for the boys have been doing some interesting work painting and making puppets out of everything and anything. Billy Smith, Jim Kendall and John Squier seem to be the chief artists.

"M" undoubtedly is for the movies which "Chief" Reimann gave Wednesday evening which showed the points in the fine art of fishing, and warmed the hearts of the many Isaac Waltons at camp.

"P" is for photography and the great impetus it has received since the arrival of director, Don Horton. Don has taken the pictures of all the cabin members in cabin groups. In addition he is developing the photography equipment into good form for the intense use it will get in a little while, and he acts as adviser to every boy who has a camera and takes pictures. Charlie Bachman, Jr., John Squier, Jason Bloomberg, Bob Armstrong, Jim Whittemore and Charlie Marcus are the leaders in this field.

The "C" in "Charlevoix" probably belongs to Cabin 12 for their Canoe trip down the Jordan river and into camp. The paddlers, under John Schilling's capable supervision, were: Barney Golinvoux, John Osmer, Dogan Arthur, Robert Kerr, Howard VanAntwerp, Albert Birdsall and Humphrey Windisch. Another canoe trip that went out earlier in the week was headed by Harry Bingham. His campers included John Squier, Dick Koelbel, Jason Bloomberg, Hugh McPherson, Billy Wilson and Bob Honer.

"H" must mean the Horse trip that Cowboy Jetton and Doc Weaver took out on Monday. Nesl Bissell rode, as did Sandy MacDonald, George Riviere, Bill Kampe and Jack Kirsch.

Another "A" is for the "Alert" trip down the lake that brought so many stories of queer adventure to the camp for a few days afterward. Bob Million was the skipper assisted by Charlie Marcus and Herb Johnson. Bill Carr, Ned Greenthal, Herb Dow, Jim Gault, Gene Sikorovsky, Charles Brainard and Jim Kendall were along to help and have some fun too.

"R" can mean only one thing at Camp Charlevoix — Riding. Every boy in camp is making the most of his opportunity to ride more than he probably will for the rest of his life. This "Dude Ranch" of ours is developing so many horsemen that Horsemaster Jetton promises an elaborate and skillful Horse Show on August 13th.

"L" is for "Laff-at-ics" the name applied to dramatics at Camp Charlevoix. The play that has received the most laughs of the season, a hit from Broadway, will be presented for the guests on Dad's Day and is now in the process of being polished, revamped and prayed for. Fred Matthaei and Guy Culver have the leads.

"E" is a hard one. Guess we'll give that to the Elephants that we saw at the circus last week, and which the Juniors don't seem to forget. Rowland Burnstan, Konrad Matthaei and Allen Hunting told us it was the best circus ever.

"V" is for Victory, and we had a taste of that on Saturday when the hardball team won the game with the fellows from Algonquin again with a score of 8-7. The riflery team won with a score of 293-260. The softball team didn't fare so well and lost the game to the tune of 8-1.

"O" means "Oval" which is the term used for a football in Evansville, Indiana, according to Bob Million. The "Oval" up here has been having some championship kicking around with Coach Chas. Bachman and his All-American assistant, Ralph Heikkinen.

"I" is for "Interest", not the commercial kind, but the kind that Mr. Bach, our Bavarian woodcarver is creating with his craft on our campus. Mr. Bach is now completing the elaborate Totum Pole which he has been carving since last year and hopes to have it up for the Dad's Day celebration. The pole is a rarity and represents some of the most skillful and beautiful carving in the country. Wendall Kates, head of the art department, Wooster college, has done the artistic painting of the pole.

"X"—Well, that is a humdinger! "X" can do only one thing in our day and age—it marks the spot. The only spot we are interested in these days is this spot—Camp Charlevoix. Now, guess we had better put someone on the spot for this week. Wonder how the Dads would do Guess that's it. Dad's Day is this weekend and the boys are all anxious for their dads to be here on the spot ready at breakfast to spend a day of camp life with them. We wait to see you, pop! The program will begin at 8 a. m. eastern standard time. The banquet is scheduled for 6:30 p. m.

AT THE MOVIES

Jack Benny Stars In Gay New Film

America's undisputed king of comedy on the screen and on the air lanes, none other than Jack Benny, has the best role of his screen career in the gay new comedy, "Man About Town," a big production abounding in hilarious gags, amorous nonsense, Patty Girls, new hit songs, sensational dancing by "Rochester" and the Merriel Abbot Dancers, and everything needed for ninety minutes of rib-rocking fun. Produced by Arthur Hornblow, Jr., the "Ziegfeld of Hollywood," directed by Mark Sandrich, it will be presented locally on July 29 and 30 at the Palace Theatre.

Co-starred with Dorothy Lamour and Edward Arnold, Jack plays the role of an American theatrical impressario who is planning to present a show in London. Miss Lamour plays the singing star of his troupe.

"Stolen Life" Offers Bergner in Dual Role

The incomparable, inimitable Elizabeth Bergner, after an absence of many months, returns to delight her millions of followers in a drama worthy of her genius, "Stolen Life," which has its local premiere on August 1st at the Palace Theatre. The picture is produced and directed by Paul Czinner.

The unusual story, adapted by Margaret Kennedy from the best-selling novel of K. Benes, places Miss Bergner in a dual role—an entirely new departure for her.

The same group of people who were associated with "Escape Me Never," namely Miss Bergner, Dr. Czinner, Miss Kennedy and Capt. Richard Norton, had a part in the production of "Stolen Life." Michael Redgrave, the young ex-schoolmaster who gave up teaching to follow a screen career, is the male lead. Wilfrid Lawson, who played "Dolittle" in "Pygmalion" also has an important part. Others in the cast are Mabel Terry Lewis and Richard Ainley.

Dunne, MacMurray Star in Great Love Story

One of the greatest love stories to reach the screen in many a year has its local premiere August 4-5 at the Palace Theatre where Paramount presented "Invitation to Happiness," co-starring Irene Dunne and Fred MacMurray, and featuring Charlie Ruggles, Billy Cook, William Collier, Sr. and Marion Martin.

FARM PRODUCE STORAGE ACT IN EFFECT SEPT. 28

Date Announced by Agrl. Dept. for Information of Farmers

With the harveating of wheat in full swing throughout Michigan, the department of agriculture is being deluged with requests for information regarding the new farm produce storage act, according to Commissioner Elmer A. Beamer.

The department head pointed out that the act does not become effective until September 28 and that storage of all varieties of beans, wheat, oats, barley and other cereal grains, potatoes, grass and leguma seed atored prior to that date will not be effected by the operation of the new law.

The department has ao interest or supervision of farm produce stored previous to the effective date, other than for knowledge of storage of produce on hand at any warehouse on the date of issuance of license and its subsequent liquidation. A series of meetings of elevator interests covering the entire state is being planned for late August and early September to acquaint those affected with the steps necessary to become licensed and to comply in their operations with the terms of the act.

UNWELCOME CRITICISM

Michigan has been making headline news in some of the leading newsmags the past few weeks. We refer to tha unkind references and news stories about our octogenarian governor, which are not much appreciated here in Michigan.

We don't believe in worshipping tha Lord in public, but if that is the Governor's method of worship we say it is distinctly his business. There has been too much belittling of the word of tha Lord these last few years and we are firmly convinced that neither the editors of Life or Time are in a position to criticize.

At least we know that the pipeline to God is definitely not o horn of plenty to tha scheming politicos down at Lansing, so we say . . . let him have his pipeline, as long as we see that he keeps all the "boys" in their places.

HOW'S FISHING?.

An incident reenacted dozens of times daily on Michigan's streams and lakes as officers of the Michigan department of conservation go out on patrol. An occasional law-evader is brought to book, more often the officer supplies information about spots where fish are biting or advice on baits and sunburn lotions.

NEW FISH LICENSE TO BE ONE DOLLAR

FEE COVERS ALL FISHING FOR RESIDENT ANGLERS

Daily Limit of Five Mackinaw Trout Included in New Fishing Laws Effective in 1940

Several important changes have been made in the laws governing fishing in Michigan and the new code becomes effective January 1, 1940. Last year's law will govern fishing up until that date.

A new fishing license fee was established. It calls for the payment of $1 and covers all species of fish. The 50 cent license has been abolished. Although the attempt was made to have this apply to the Great Lakes and their connecting waters the legislature turned this down so no license will be required of a resident fishing over these waters. Out of every $1 license sold 40 cents will be set aside in a special fund to be used by the department of conservation for the purpose of buying land to provide public access to and for the improvement of our lakes and streams and for fisheries research. Non-residents will be required to buy a license for fishing in either inland or Great Lakes waters.

New Name

The act carries the title of "Michigan Sportsmen Fishing Law," and sets the open seasons and limits, first through classification of waters and second by species of fish. Mackinaw or lake trout have been added to the list of protected game fish. This was due to the growing popularity of deep water trolling for them for the state desired to increase their number by protecting them during their spawning season.

Fishing on Lake Huron one mile out from shore running from Pointe-Aux Barques light down to Harbor Beach will be confined solely to line and hook. This eliminates spearing.

Turtle trapping also comes in for some moderate regulation. Traps must be placed where they will not take or interfere with fish. Each trap must carry the name of the owner and his address and the operator must inform local conservation officers where he is operating. All operators must have a fishing license for taking turtles.

The season for inland stream spearing which formerly was limited to the month of April, in lower Michigan, has been extended to May 15. The closed fishing season in all inland pike lakes will be extended to May 15, instead of opening on May 1.

Bluegill Law

No bluegills may be taken from any inland waters by fishing through the ice from 6 p. m. to 6 a. m. This stops night fishing.

The daily limit of small-mouthed black bass that may be taken from the Great Lakes and their connecting waters has been increased to 10 while the old 5 limit in one day persists over inland waters.

A daily limit has also been placed on lake trout and this is five while whitefish taken in inland waters is limited to seven in one day.

The license fee for taking and transporting at wholesale of minnows is now $25. This is for minnow dealers who sell to retail dealers.

These are among the most important changes which become effective January 1, 1940.

Birthday Tripled

Romeo—April 7 is an eventful day each year in the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin M. Dailey, for it is the birthday of all three of their children, born over a period of 13 years. So when April 7 rolls around, a triple birthday celebration is held at the Dailey home, usually with three cakes and three candles on each cake.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT

Pure Water—Best of all Drinks

John Norton, writing in Hygeia the health magazine of the American Medical association, has this to say about pure water:

"What may be called pure water used to be regarded more or less as a luxury. Today purity is conceded to be a perfectly proper demand on the part of the consumer."

Speaking of an ideal water supply, Norton states that it is one that is hygienically safe, attractive in appearance, tasteless and odorless, comparatively soft and which does not corrode distributing pipes. A public water supply that conforms to such requirements would be an asset to any community; but it is not always feasible to provide such an ideal water. Under practical conditions there generally has to be some modification of requirements.

For more than eight years it has been known that certain specific diseases are spread by sewage-contaminated water. The most important of these diseases as for the United States are dysentry and typhoid fever. Typhoid fever still occurs in both urban and rural districts. In fact, reports of the United States Bureau of the Census show that at present typhoid is more than twice as prevalent in rural districts than in the cities. Besides dysentry and typhoid fever, intestinal upsets of undetermined cause may follow the use of a polluted drinking water.

Typhoid fever may be spread by milk, by other foods, by means of flies or by direct contact with a patient suffering with typhoid as well as by the water route. But until a comparatively few years ago water was the chief means of its spread. It is due to the increased use of water purification as applied to municipal water supplies that has been responsible to a large extent for the decrease in the death rate from typhoid fever in the United States during the last thirty-five years.

The falling death rates for typhoid fever are not only a result but a cause of our water supplies becoming safer. As typhoid fever becomes less prevalent the danger of contamination becomes correspondingly less. The number of new typhoid carriers is also reduced. If we put into practice the knowledge that we now have, never again will this country suffer from typhoid as it has suffered in the past.

The primary demand of a water to be used for drinking, for brushing the teeth, for cooking and the miscellaneous uses of the household should be freedom from the germs of disease; that is hygienic purity. In addition, it should not contain any poisonous metals such as lead.

Bitter experience has shown that from some person sick with the diwater may cause typhoid fever by transporting the living typhoid germs sease to some well person. This is a simple mechanical transfer of the germs. The water plays no part other than that of floating the tiny bacteria along. Typhoid germs do not multiply in water. On the contrary they die out gradually and so lose their power to do harm. But they do live long enough in water, as experience has shown us, to cause a lot of sickness.

Some of the milder forms of diarrheal diseases are also water borne on occasion. The germs of these diseases vary in their ability to survive in water; some may live longer than the typhoid germs, others die more easily.

The germs of these intestinal diseases leave the bodies of sick persons or of well persons who are carriers in the urine and bowel discharges. Sewage is thus always liable to carry them. If sewage finds its way into a lake or stream or if the contents of a cesspool or water closet soak into the ground and percolate to some well, the germs may be carried along ready to start the disease in some one who drinks the contaminated water.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE NEWS BULLETIN

Buy Plates Early—Kelly

Comparative figures released for publication today by Harry F. Kelly, secretary of state, reveal a total of 1,565,463 automobile registrations for the year 1939. This total shows an increase of 13,456 registrations over the entire 1938 period.

Full year plates issued for 1939 number 1,001,093 sets, while half-year plates total 564,370 sets.

During the next 5 weeks more than a half million sets of half year license plates will expire. These plates must be replaced by full year plates not later than August 31, 1939.

Mr. Kelly fears that unless prospective purchasers buy their plates early, the same hardship that was invoked upon the public in 1938 will be repeated this year.

LANSING LETTER

Fruit Prospects Good

The family fruit cellar should be amply filled before snow flies.

Michigan consumers, because they live in a famed fruit belt, have always had easy access to choice fruit for canning purposes.

The peach yield is expected to near the all-time record set in 1898 with a 88 per cent normal crop which indicates a production of 2,730,000 bushels. Peach growers are somewhat concerned, according to reports, with a steady increase in the planting of orchards. In any event the consumer will have plenty of peaches to can this summer.

The apple crop is also reported to be at 75 per cent of normal, compared with 42 per cent a year ago and a 10-year average of 57 per cent. The May freeze was nature's method of thinning out the fruit, and even then hand-thinning will be needed on some varieties to insure good quality at the bumper yield.

Grape Yield Heavy

The 1939 grape crop in Michigan is headed for approximately 59,600 tons compared with 16,900 tons from the extremely short yield in 1938 and a 10-year average of 62,990 tons. However, bearing capacity is declining through removal of vineyards which are not being replaced.

Cherries are also plentiful and of good quality. The July outlook was for 34,190 tons compared with 14,940 tons in 1938 and a 10-year average production of 29,423 tons. The full bearing capacity of all cherry orchards in Michigan has increased 28 per cent in the past 10 years.

Plums, blackberries, raspberries, strawberries and even cantaloupes are also in the better-than-average class.

Good Field Crops

Good news comes also from growers of field crops.

Here are the crop acreage ratings for Michigan:

Spring wheat — 18 per cent increase.
Barley—15 per cent increase.
Potatoes—0 per cent increase.
Soybeans—75 per cent increase.
Flax—50 per cent increase.

Decreased acreage in planting exists for the following crops:

Beet sugar—4 per cent less.
Winter wheat—21 per cent less.
Corn—3 per cent under last year.
Field beans—6 per cent decline.

23 Per Cent More Pigs

Pigs is pigs, so the old saying goes, and Michigan's spring pig crop is 23 per cent larger than the crop of a year ago and the largest since 1927.

The number of sows that farrowed this spring is estimated at 124,000, or 31 per cent more than the previous spring and 32 per cent more than the 10-year average.

Yet, although there has been a gain of pork on the hoof, the price of pork at the counter recently went up. All in all, the outlook for pork profits is reported to be exceptionally good.

It all fits into the picture of good times on Michigan rural routes and Main Street this fall.

Retail Business Good

Despite strike clouds and the ever-present relief worries, Michigan's retail business is better than it was a year ago.

Retailers in Detroit, which is the automobile center that sets the pace for all the state, report a gain in sales of 15 to 18 per cent over a year ago. Wholesalers have the smallest carryover of consumer goods in years.

Furthermore, the tourist business—second only to automobiles in economic importance—has buoyed the state's retail sales away above the national average. The traditional "summer slump" just doesn't exist in many parts of the state. A count of outstate automobiles by the state highway department also indicates that the 1939 season, contrary to world fairs, will be about average and possibly better than normal. The capricious weatherman will have much to do with the final tally.

Back to the Farm

"I Want to Go Back to Michigan," the official song of the 90th annual Michigan State Fair at Detroit September 1-10, is fully in keeping with 1939 trends.

Whereas over two-thirds of Michigan's population of 4,840,000 resides in cities and towns, the population trend today is back to the farm. On January 1, 1939, the national farm population was 32,059,000, almost an all-time high (it was 32,077,000 in 1910). Between 1910 and 1927, the farm population declined two millions. But between 1929 and 1939, a decade of marked unemployment problems in cities, the population on farms actually increased two millions.

This condition is true particularly in the southern half of the lower peninsula. For the recreational area north of the Muskegon-Bay City line (this division is recognized by the 1939 state land board act whereby the state conservation department holds title to tax land north of the line, and the state board is to offer the rest at public sale) populations have declined since the turn of the century. Actually 57 counties had fewer people in 1930 than at some previous time.

Labor Relations

Governor Luren D. Dickinson won his first skirmish on the labor relations front.

Notifying local authorities that failure to enforce the law would result in state action, the state executive was instrumental in bringing about an early peace in the Pontiac automobile body strike.

Representative of the manufacturers' attitude to the law is the following comment made by John L. Lovett, manager, Michigan Manufacturers' association, at Battle Creek: "Michigan's newly enacted labor relations law is a decidedly fair piece of legislation because it protects the non-union laborer from coercion and browbeating by union men, and gives him the right to work if he wants to . . . The law will not be much good unless it is properly enforced."

Special Session

The present WPA controversy inspired Mayor Reading of Detroit to predict acute relief troubles in industrial cities before 1940.

In the opinion of many legislators, the welfare appropriation for the fiscal year that began July 1 will not last out the twelve months. The lowered sum was justified at the time on the grounds of economy and a hope that administration expense would be lowered while local communities shared more of the load.

A special session of the legislature is likely early in 1940 to consider additional appropriation for relief and old-age assistance. The school people, too, will probably ask for additional state aid.

Thus the present "budget balancing" achievement may be on paper only.

the lower channel while fishing off the railway bridge pier. He had a very narrow escape from drowning and owes his life to some unknown man who held him from sinking until his companions, attracted by the rescuer's cries for help, aided him from the water. In the excitement, the man dropped his pole. After going home for a change of clothes he returned, regained the lost equipment through the efforts of a colored fisherman who was rewarded with a gift of $2. The fellow who saved the man's life didn't get anything. You figure that one out!

If you believe football and basketball require the pink of physical condition, you should see one of those jitterbug contests Bill Kerns has out at The Argonne. If that dance isn't a physical work-out, I never saw one in my life. And do the patrons like to see the young folks perform!

Thought perhaps we'd get by the 1939 summer season without reports being circulated through the north that Charlevoix hotels were closed because of unsatisfactory business conditions. It appears, however, that the tongue-waggers are up to their old tricks, for it is said persistent reports are circulating in Petoskey and Harbor Springs that the Belvedere Hotel is closed. Of course Mr. and Mrs. Carl C. Steiner, Belvedere managers, emphatically deny the reports and assure the public the hotel will operate, at least until September 12.

Would like to remark that those persons who will not eat lawyers (the fish species) because of their appearance, perhaps, have missed a dolicacy in fish food. Somewhat skeptically following the advise of a local fancier of lawyer meat, we had a mess of them fried the other night and want to tell you right now that I never ate fish which was finer flavored. After this experience, it certainly seems too bad to me there is no market for this specie of fish. Would venture to say lawyers would not be thrown away if more people had an opportunity to find out how good they are.

Trolling camp operators, particularly those fellows who have a property investment in Charlevoix, will no doubt be looking forward with interest to the outcome of the arrest of Bernie Ward, well known fishing guide and camp operator, for alleged use of non-commercial city docks for commercial purposes. That the fellow with a heavy property investment deserves protection from what might be termed the "squatter" seems only right. That they have not had such protection has resulted in contention for a couple years at least. There was action by city officials only when all the trolling camp operators threatened to move their boats into the city-owned docks as a means of meeting competition. That the city council had the correction of this matter in mind when they adopted an ordinance in the spring of 1938 prohibiting the use of city-owned docks for commercial purposes, is to be assumed, but the tardy enforcement of the ordinance is something everybody interested in the situation has been trying to figure out.

MARK REED COMEDY IS IRONTON FEATURE

OPENS TUESDAY, AUGUST 1ST, FOR A WEEK

Players Present "Yes, My Darling Daughter" for Fourth Vehicle of Summer Season

Mark Reed's "Yes, My Darling Daughter", provides the vehicle for the Ironton Playhouse's fourth week in its second season of summer stock attractions at Ironton, Michigan.

This delightful play, which is a combination of the social problem play and a laughable comedy, is presented under the direction of John H. Jennings, and the cast of characters includes Cherry Hardy, Priscilla Towers, Ann Driscoll, Gene Benedict, Philip Dakin, Charles Baker and Robert Russell. The action of the play tnkes place at the country home of the Murrays, and concerns the very difficult predicament presented to a former exponent of the free life and woman suffrage in the early Greenwich Village manner, when she finds herself confronted with a daughter who wishes to live her life according to the freely voiced opinions of her mother, twenty years before. It is an interesting idea, and the author, Mark Reed, has done an extremely creditable job of playwrighting in arriving at the denouement of the piece.

With a Thursday matinee, which has proved to be one of the most popular dates of the week at the theater, this attraction opens on Tuesday, August 1st, and plays through Friday, the fourth.

The Resorters, who saw action the first time last Friday night, copped their initial game from the Indians by an 8 to 1 score, and Monday night won 7 to 6 from Ironton. In the seennd game Monday night, the K. of P.'s defeated the Indians by a 3 to 2 score.

300 MILES OF LINE NOW IN SERVICE IN DISTRICT

Expect Electric Project Will Serve Two Thousand Homes When Completed Early This Fall.

The Top O' Michigan Rural Electrification Co-operative company at present has approximately three hundred miles of energized line in service in Charlevoix, Emmet, Otsego and Antrim counties, Superintendent LeRoy Hardy said this week.

In Charlevoix county, South Arm township has 30 miles of line, Melrose 12½, Wilson 28, Marion 26, Norwood 17, Eveline 22, Evangeline 8, Boyne Valley 2½, Bay 16½, and Hayes 15, making a total of 177 miles of line in use now. Antrim county has 50 miles of line in operation, Emmet 58½ and Otsego 41. At present, according to Hardy, construction work is centered in upper Emmet county, and in Otsego county east of Gaylord.

Monies Total $700,000

Total appropriations for the project, the last of which was received last fall, amount to more than $700,000. This money will be sufficient to complete the present project, totaling approximately five hundred and seventy miles of line expected to serve at least 2,000 rural homes. Hardy said the project would probably be completed about October 1st. Then extensions to present lines, which will total about one hundred and fifty miles of line, will make necessary additional appropriations, he said.

Beaver Island Staked

The proposed project on Beaver Island has been staked and construction has been held up pending an O. K. from Washington which, Hardy said, was expected at any time.

Of fourteen such projects in the state, the Top O' Michigan is third in size. Those larger are the Thumb project and the Tri-County project.

Power at present is being obtained from the high lines of the Michigan Public Service company and Hardy said the situation was very satisfactory.

BANG'S DISEASE TEST WILL START AUGUST 7

County Agent Mellencamp Announces Second County-Wide Survey

Of great interest to all dairymen and consumers of milk as well is the announcement that Charlevoix county is again to have a county-wide test for Bang's disease.

As a result of the visit of Dr. C. H. Hays, state inspector in charge of Bang's disease work, and Dr. Rader, arrangements have been made to startt the testing the week of August 7th. This county will be the second one in the state to have the second test on a county-wide basis and possibly the second county in the United States.

Because of the limited appropriation available, indemnity money is now only available for an average of four hundred reactors per month. Last year funds were sufficient so that indemnity could be paid on eight hundred head par month. Because of this, the state force will be located in northern Michigan where the infection is much less than in the southern Michigan counties so more work can be accomplished and not run over the quota for the month.

WATER CARNIVAL A SUCCESSFUL EVENT

RECORD ENTRY IN WATER CONTESTS, VENETIAN BOAT PARADE MARKED INTEREST IN ANNUAL FEATURE

Edward Moran, Ohioan, Winner of Feature Half-Mile Swim; Large Entry Boats in Venetian Parade; City Packed to Overflow With Spectators Gathered for Program

Perfect weather, a well conducted program and a large and appreciative audience combined Sunday to make the Charlevoix Marine Club's 5th annual water carnival the most successful event of its kind ever held here.

The afternoon program of swimming and diving contests drew an entry in excess of any previous year and the large crowd which witnessed these events was but a very small portion of the thousands who heard the evening's band concert and special attractions and witnessed a Venetian boat parade which drew the unreserved praise of everyone.

The many points from which contestants entered swimming races gave an indication of the interest in water sports and the increasing popularity of the Charlevoix program.

Edward Moran of Toledo, Ohio, co-captain of the Ohio Wesleyan college swimming team, captured the ½-mile feature swim for the Charlevoix Marine Club trophy. Bud Bergman, three times a winner of the event, placed second and Billie Ochs took third.

Spectators saw a champion in action when Willard Harris took the 1-mile canoe race. Harris, a counsellor at Camp Hay-O-Went-Ha, is the champion of the Canadian Province of Saskatchewan. John Schilling, Boston, Mass., was second; Glen Arvilla of Charlevoix, third.

COAST GUARD FETE TO SHOW BREECHES RESCUE

Saving of 500 at Charlevoix 30 Years Ago Was "Perfect Rescue"

Among the thrilling spectacles at the third annual U. S. Coast Guard Water Fete at Grand Haven August 3 to 5 will be a breeches buoy rescue from the Oliver H. Perry, old three masted sailing schooner anchored off the Grand Haven State Park.

It was the Coast Guardsmen of Lake Michigan who hung up such an amazingly "perfect rescue" near Charlevoix thirty years ago when they took more than 500 persons from the floundering steamer "Illinois" without loss of a single life by means of the breeches buoy. Two of the men who took part in that rescue are still in the Coast Guard service and are expected to take part in the drill.

The breeches buoy, which has figured so conspicuously in rescues all over the world, can best be described as a rope suspension bridge between a stranded ship and the shore. It is used principally when seas prevent launching of boats.

BUILD MORE SHUFFLE BOARD COURTS

FOUR UNDER CONSTRUCTION AT EAST PARK

New Battery Will Provide Eight Courts — Will Install Lighting for Night Play

Work was started Monday morning on the construction of an additional battery of four shuffle board courts at East Park.

Recognizing the increasing popularity of this entertainment feature, the council authorized construction of the new courts under a city-wide WPA parks and water front improvement program which has been under way the past year. The courts are being built on the south side of the sidewalk leading to the Round lake yacht slips and will duplicate the battery now in use. Plans call for erection of flood lights for night play. It is expected the courts will be completed within 10 days, thus providing eight in East Park.

The council has also taken under consideration a request from the Board of Commerce to provide flood lights for night play at the Lake Michigan municipal bathing beach shuffle board courts. There has been an increasing demand for facilities for night play at the bathing beach, but whether the provision will be made in view of the additional facilities being provided at East Park, is not known.

A tournament for the July city championships now in progress at the Lake Michigan courts will be concluded with this afternoon's (Wednesday) matches. Results of play have not been turned in at this writing.

CAMP CHARLEVOIX ENJOYS DAD'S DAY

ANNUAL FEATURE WAS EVENT OF LAST SATURDAY

Nearly Hundred Parents of Campers Went Through Activities Furnishing Rivalry for Sons

(By Herbert W. Johnson)

Camp Charlevoix played host to ninety-three parents and friends of the campers on Saturday. The event was primarily for the dads of the boys, many of whom are outstanding men in Michigan and surrounding states.

The boys and their fathers had breakfast together in the attractive camp clubhouse after which they went to their various activities; with the boys and dads rivaling in sailing, riflery, football, tennis, swimming, boxing, wrestling, photography and many others.

In the afternoon the annual baseball games were played with the boys winning in each of the three sections. Jack Jetton, the camp cowboy from Texas, then staged a riding show which was well received by the guests, and gave the boys opportunity to display the many skills they have developed under the "Dude Ranch" features of the camp. Alex Galton of Detroit, gave a skillful exhibition on his own horse "Rinkey."

A banquet in the evening for over 200 people was given, presided over by Don Horton of Grosse Pointe. He introduced Lewis C. Reimann, the camp owner and director, who spoke of the spirit and tradition of the thirteen year old camp. He was followed by Dr. Mont Wickham of Detroit, who was elected head of the Charlevoix Fathers Committee. H. G. Gault, prominent lawyer from Flint, spoke in thanks to Mr. Reimann and his staff for the opportunity offered to the boys to attend the camp and grow with it. The master of ceremonies closed the banquet with the sentiment that we in America are fortunate having our camps devoted to body and character building rather than the regimentation of concentration camps.

CHURCH OF GOD CAMP MEETING AUGUST 4-13

Northern Michigan Churches Take Part in Annual Gathering

The annual camp meeting of the Church of God will be held at the Charlevoix camp grounds near the Loeb school beginning August 4 and continuing to August 13.

This camp meeting is held each year at the same camp grounds for the benefit of the churches in northern Michigan.

Rev. J. W. Denton and Mrs. Denton of Richmond, Ind., will be the evangelists. With them will be a blind musician, Oscar Wiles, who plays the accordian and is a great entertainer of children and young people. Several ministers from out-of-state, besides several state ministers, will be present.

SHOT AT RANDOM

By Kon Usher

Well, the 5th annual water carnival and Venetian boat parade was another successful event. More entries and by far more people witnessing it. Certainly was an awful crowd of people here Sunday night. Interest in the affair seems to be growing year by year. Ed. Drier, who does photographing for the West Michigan Tourist & Resort Association and the Michigan Conservation Department dropped some good hints to this writer. Course Ed. looks at such an event from the angle of photographic publicity possibilities and suggested sailing or speed boat races to add more thrills as material for photos. Sounds reasonable enough, don't it?

Does me a lot of good to remark that the mackinaw trout "famine" in Lake Michigan is apparently over. The big ones started "hitting" a week ago today and during the intervening period quite a number of fish have been caught. That should make the trolling camp fellows happier than anyone else and the aportsmen just as happy. August is usually a good month for mackinaws and of course we all hope this year will be no exception. Some old timers say the reason they don't bite during July is because they are loosing their teeth. Whether that is true or not, we'll all have to admit there must have been some reason for the shortage last month.

And while on the subject of fish, want to mention an item I saw in a recent exchange paper. A Chicagoan named J. B. DeFord displayed two small-mouth bass he caught in a lake near Ellsworth. They weighed 5 pounds 5 ounces and 4½ pounds. Those were some fish! The only trouble with this fellow is that he sort of bragged about catching his limit of fish daily Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday. Sounds hoggish to me.

The Evening Serenade

LANSING LETTER

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

The "home rule" policy of the late Gov. Frank Fitzgerald, which the legislature followed in enactment of the new welfare act, is now coming home to roost.

Counties "must take up the slack" in cost of relief, it is announced by Walter F. Gries, chairman of the state social welfare commission.

With the state "broke" (at least $30,000,000 in the red) and with a reduced state appropriation available for the present fiscal year, the state commission allocated $650,350 to counties for August relief. Counties had requested a total of $1,207,672. Wayne county alone wanted $489,000.

Under terms of the new act, counties are given final authority over relief expenditures. When state funds are exhausted, responsibility for maintenance of welfare — according to the new act—falls back on home-governments. Are all counties doing as much as they can for relief or unemployed? The commissioners think not. Jackson county, for instance, expended $440,000 for a new court-house in 1938 when it contributed only $9,000 for relief while the state was giving it $553,000.

Officials of some counties, however, think otherwise. Quoting G. R. Harris, Wayne county welfare sup-

Young America Surveyed by Stanley High

A decade ago, the depression stopped a young generation in its tracks. Now, ten years later, where does youth stand? This Week, the magazine published with the Sunday Detroit News asked Stanley High, famous for his brilliant articles on American conditions, to find out. He spent months covering the country, talking with leaders who work with youth, talking with young men themselves — discovering what they are doing, thinking, hoping — analyzing their new opportunities for happiness and success. Be sure to read this series of three articles. The first will appear in Sunday's Detroit News.

FOR boys and girls, no less than for adults, Michigan is an ideal vacation land.

Here are delights that appeal to the young and the young in heart—camping, swimming, fishing, sailing . . . scenic beauty . . . hiking parties . . . trips to great industrial plants and places of historic interest . . . in a State rich in opportunities for recreation that is healthful, educational and economical too.

With roads that are a credit to the State Highway Department . . . and bountifully blessed with State Parks that provide free picnic facilities . . . Michigan offers almost everything that your children (and yourself!) could ask for a perfect vacation.

CAMP CHARLEVOIX WEEKLY NEWS COLUMN

Edited by Herbert W. Johnson

Saturday was Dad's Day, and what a day it was! Ninety-three parents and friends were in camp, and the first ones arrived even before breakfast. John Schilling and his capable committee did a splendid job with the program so that the Dads had an excellent opportunity to get into the spirit of our camp and learn something of the crafts and skills the Charlevoix fellows finally master. The baseball games in the afternoon were very successful and the boys for the first time in many years managed to win all the games. The dedication of the totem pole was a significant feature and we shall never forget Mr. Bach's presentation speech and his words of wisdom and guidance. The banquet was a primary event and along with the specialties was a speech by Dr. Wickham and Mr. Gault, fathers of Mont Wickham Jr. and Jim Gault. The dramatic department did its best later on to give a good presentation of "What a Life," a Broadway play of this season, and were flattered by the response. And then, when it came time for the gathering to break up everyone lingered as long as possible, goodbyes were said and everyone knew it was just the best Dad's Day ever.

And now the fellows are getting ready for another main trip of the season—a lake trip, for Intermediates. The boys chosen for the adventure are Al Birdsall, Neal Bissell, Charles Brainard, Guy Culver, Bob Honer, Chuck Kirsch, Dick Koebel, Sandy McDonnell, Chuck McGuire, George Reviere, Howard VanAntwerp and Jerry Vroman. The boys leave on Monday and by this time are somewhere in the wilds of the north country on one of the lakes to be covered.

Meanwhile other cabin trips have been going out with great enthusiasm. Cabins number 2 and 3 of the Junior section went out on an overnight horse trip on Monday. The riders included Loring Kampe, Howland Burnstan, William McConkey, Conrad Matthaei, Mont Wickham and Allen Hunting.

Counsellor Bingham took out his boys for a sail trip on the "Alert" which gave Dick Koelbel, John Squier, Jason Bloomberg, Hugh McPherson, Bill Wilson and Bob Honer a chance to develop their "sailormanship." Counsellor Schilling left Tuesday on a sail trip with Barney Golinvaux, John Osmer, Dogan Arthur, Robert Kerr, Howard VanAntwerp and Albert Birdsall.

On last Wednesday night the annual "Gyp Night" was held with tricks and stunts galore. Many a camper was fooled, even the committee-in-charge was tricked once. Gene Sikorovsky won't forget his experience for a long while or will Allen Hunting, Jim Kendall, Herb Dow and others. Wiley Hitchcock and Andy Frostic did much to make it a good party.

On Monday evening the juniors, seniors and intermediates were the guests of Charlie Bachman for a time. The "Coach" showed the talking picture, "100 Years of Baseball" —its history, outstanding players and technique of playing. It had a very enthusiastic audience and once again "Coach" scored up another goal.

Quite a few of the parents came over on Sunday morning for the chapel service at our outdoor quarters in the woods. Mrs. Burnstan, mother of Alex and Rowland Burnstan of the junior section, won all hearts with an inspiring talk on the value of doing little things well. Jim Sterrett and Douglas Stock acted as "deacons" greeting the guests and taking up the collection which is turned over to the University Fresh Air Camp for underprivileged children at Patterson lake.

We are pretty proud of the fact that the fathers were so enthused over camp when they visited. Already some of the fathers have applied for enrollments for next year. And we are glad that the Dads could become boys again and become part of our young existence. We are told that some of the fathers even refused telephone calls in their efforts to be real campers. "A man stops being a man when he loses the boy in him."

The next two dates on your calendar should be August 12th, when we have our annual Carnival, and the day following, which will mark the second annual Rodeo and Horse Show which is not to be missed.

MICHIGAN BAKERY INTRODUCES NEW "CREAMO" BREAD

Reviving the shorter, more compact type of loaf which harks back to the earlier first principles of good bread-making, Michigan Bakeries, Inc. comes forward with its newest product, "Creamo" bread, which goes on the Charlevoix market Wednesday, August 2.

According to Jack Jansen, manager of the Traverse City unit of the company, the loaf is like the original type developed in the home, a type neglected by most commercial bakers who devlated from the long-favored size and shape which distinguishes the new "Michigan Creamo." The maintained moisture is greater than in most white breads, assuring "Creamo's" freshness to the last slice.

Jansen further pointed out that as the result of an exhaustive survey it is proven that thuusands of consumers favor this type loaf. The consumers gave as the reason for their preference the detection of greater flavnr in this type of loaf with compact texture. In tests made its toasting qualities and particularly pleasing flavor were emphasizeil, and made into sandwiches it appeals particularly to picnickers and holiday makers.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY

Sunday morning service, 10:45.

Sunday school, 12 o'clock.

Meets first Wednesday evening each month at 7:45 p. m.

Reading room open Saturday, 3 to 5 p. m.

We cordially invite the public to our service and reading room.

"Spirit" will be the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, August 6.

The Golden Text (I Corinthinns 2:11) is: "What man knoweth the things of a man, save the spirit of man which is in him? even so the things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God."

Among the Bible citations is this passage (Galatians 5:16): "This I say then, Walk in the Spirit, and ye shall not fulfil the lust of the flesh."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the follnwing (p. 167): "It is not wise to take a halting and half-way position or to expect to work equally with Spirit and matter, Truth and error. There is but ono way—namely, God and His Idea—which leads tn spiritual being."

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

By B. C. Mellencamp

Cows Will Need Fall Rye Seeding

Thousands of Michigan dairymen are laying plans fur fall rye pasture to take up some of the dent that summer heat and drouth have made in normal feed supplies.

It's time now to make plans so that seedbed preparation and seeding is completed in August, suggests E. C. Scheidenhelm, extension dairyman at Michigan State college. By lengthening out fall pasture with rye the year's feeding costs usually are lowered..

Permanent pastures are deteriorating rapidly, Scheidenhelm finds. Additional grain will have to be fed the balance nf the summer, and protein content of the ration will have to be adjusted so that production remains satisfactory.

In 84 dairy herd improvement associatlnns now operating in Michigan the nverage cow in June produced 1.05 pounds of butterfat daily. More than 1,800 herds including 27,000 cows are represented in the testing reports received now in headquarters at Michigan State cnllege.

Culling in June on the basis of low production exceeded that in May by 10 per cent. Among animals discarded for disease, udder trouble remains the most serious of the various causes. Other shifts in dairy animals, the reports indicate, are due to the high number of animals being sold for dairy purposes in other herds.

73 Acres of Certified Potatoes Being Grown by Five Growers

This year, 73 acres of certified seed potatoes are being produced. This is slightly larger than last year's average. Roy Hardy, Boyne City, has 8½ acres of russet rurals, and Jensen, Walloon lake, is growing 12 acres of russet rurals. Lawrence Straw, Charlevoix, is producing 4 acres of russets and 9 acres of Irish cobblers. H. C. Stephens, Charlevoix, has 10 acres of russets and 2 acres of Chippewas, while Lee Sneathen, Charlevoix, is producing 12 acres of russets and 8 acres of Iris cobblers.

A recent visit to Lawrence Straw's field of Irish cobblers near Boyne Falls, revealed the benefits of irrigation. He has already applied four applications on his field of 9 acres. The appearance of this field indicates a fine crop. On each application nearly one inch of water was applied, and during the present drought, this certainly is a lifesaver. Lawrence is using 13 sprinklers, each covering a radius of approximately 50 feet. Any farmer interested in irrigation should certainly see how efficiently this unit operates. Right in the middle of this dry spell would be the proper time to see, for yourself, its value.

In common with other counties, the number of certified seed growers has greatly decreased. In fact, not so many years ago, we had over 30 in Charlevoix county. In the state, the entire number has dropped from over 600 to around 200.

MICHIGAN BELL COMPANY AIDS POLICE WITH NEW DIRECTORY

For the purpose of aiding the federal, state, county and municipal law enforcement officers in their war on crime in the state, the Michigan Bell Telephone company has issued the sixth edition of its Police Telephone and Teletype Directory. Copies are being delivered to the authorities throughout Michigan, including Police Chief Clarence Heise and Sheriff Floyd Ikens, according to C. L. Johnson, the company's manager in this area. Copies also are being supplied to newspapers for the use of their editorial staffs in getting into quick touch with the authurities.

Listed in the directory are the names and telephone numbers of the chiefs or heads of all municipal police departments; sheriffs of the 83 counties; commanding officers at all the 39 State Police posts and the several Federal law enforcement bureaus or branches in Michigan, including the Alcohol Tax Unit, Bureau of Narcotics, Customs Service, Federal Bureau of investigation, the Immigration and Naturalization Bureau, Postoffice Inspectors, Treasury Department, Secret Service, U. S. Marshals, and their several units and branches.

Mimeograph supplies of all sorts handled at Courier office.—Adv. 8tf.

Natinnal dairy week reminds one of increased care taken in selecting dairy stock. We recall the time when a cow was just a cow, and when its lineage was not regarded important in connection with milk production. We have milked cows that were so ugly they would kick out the side of a barn. We found the kick from an ill-nature dcow, while relieving her of lacteal fluid, was no gentle caress.

A cow's disposition and butterfat possibilities are now given first consideration. Testing to guard against diseases is eminently essential. Facilities for handling milk and converting it into edible fugn — cream, butter and cheese—have been wonderfully improved. And nothing contributes more to health and n satisfied appetite than dairy products.—Wayne (Neb.) Herald.

D-X SERVICES TAKES STUDEBAKER AGENCY

New Car Now on Display Invades Lowest Priced Field

Studebaker has invaded the lowest price field.

Often rumored, this move by the country's oldest manufacturer of transportation, was confirmed here when the new Studebaker Champion was introduced to the public at the showrooms of D-X Service, located at 200 Antrim street.

The new Studebaker is a six and its delivered price here places it in direct competition with the very lowest priced cars. In addition to its low price, the new Studebaker has merits of comfort, performance, economy and appearance that, according to Mr. Hansen, augur for popular acceptance by the public.

"This new Studebaker is a new type of automobile," said Mr. Hansen. "It has everything that the other full-sized automobiles possess, except useless weight. It weighs about 600 pounds less, because Studebaker engineers have designed a new car, starting from scratch, and by use of new materials and advanced design have taken out the unnecessary heft that gives nothing but added expense of operation."

ASK CAUTION AGAINST SETTING FOREST FIRES

Conservation Dept. Warns About Mid-Summer Danger Period

At this time when the forest fire hazard threatens Michigan's wild lands, it is urged by Robert J. Furlong, department of conservation supervisor of Otsego, Cheboygan, Emmet, Charlevoix and Antrim counties, that all possible precautions be taken to prevent conflagrations which might blacken from one to thousands of acres.

Smokers, campers and brushburners are particularly cautioned to use great care in and near the woods. It is important that persons planning to burn brush get a permit from the department of conservation, at Boyne City, or at any fire tower. These permits may be issued by telephone, and charges on long-distance calls may be reversed.

Communities are urged to place furrows around the local dumps, in order that catastrophies, such as the one which recently burned a large part of East Jordan's 40 acre arboretum, may be prevented. At East Jordan, several days were spent in completely extinguishing the fire, which started in the town dump, and which killed several acres of Norway and white pine plantings.

Coals of Fire

"FACIAL?"

Edna May grinned a cheerful dismissal to Miss Cummings and approached her 10th customer of the day. It was really Miss Cummings' turn, of course, but it was almost 5:30, and Joe would be waiting outside in his rakish runabout.

Edna May hummed happily to herself as she shook out the fresh cover-all apron and selected the towels for the hot applications. She was comparing Joe, with his florid face and wilted collar, to crisp, well-built Jim. Nothing wilted about him! No, sir! Still, Cummings seemed to like Joe. Funny world!

She was almost glad Jimmy was not coming for her tonight. She felt a shy, delicious thrill in missing him. Tomorrow he would come, all the more glad to see her since that out-of-town friend kept him tonight.

The creams were ready and the violet ray apparatus was adjusted. Edna May turned to her customer, her manner briskly professional.

"Good looking wave," she noted with the instinct of the professional hairdresser. "Natural, too."

And then, for a second, her hands stayed their brisk massaging as her eyes met those of her customer in the mirror. She recognized her now, of course.

Jim's "girl back home!"

There were pictures of her in that old album of his, taken on canoeing trips, on picnics, at ball games, and at the county fair. Jim had told Edna May something of their times together. She was suddenly certain of the identity of his out-of-town guest.

"Live here?" she ventured, trying to make her voice impersonal, like that of a masseuse talking casually to pass away the time.

"No, I've come rather far," she confided, "for a very special occasion."

Edna May bent her head a bit lower. She was glad that the other girl had closed her eyes and could not see the dark flush that reddened her cheeks. Customers sometimes waxed very confidential, especially about "very special occasions." The little beauty doctor fairly prayed that this one would not grow confidential about her Jim!

Her Jim! What a fool she must have been to fancy for a moment that he had forgotten the girl back home! He had jested about the old attachment, it is true, and she had thought—

Well, she was, anyhow, doing her best to make the other girl attractive for Jim; Jim, who had poked fun at her little beauty parlor, who detested the artificiality of it, even while he applauded the spirit of independence that prompted her to carry on; Jim, who hated any pretense or artificiality in anything or anyone.

A sudden naughty thought possessed Edna May. She had nearly finished the massage—the rouge pot stood there, close by. A tiny daub of rouge, there, near the ear, where it would escape her customer's hurried inspection, yet would stand out — a telltale against the natural coloring of her cheek; Edna May hated herself as she whisked the powder puff over the other girl's skin, leaving a malicious little smear just below the ear, out of range of the mirror; yet, some little imp of jealousy urged her on, and the thought of Jimmy's avowed disgust at the use of rouge.

A second's suspense, and the trick had passed. Her customer was out of the chair, putting on her wraps.

At the door, she paused, with the same friendly smile as before.

"The occasion is very special," she said. "You may be interested to know that I am going to be married tonight."

She was gone. Edna May leaned against the empty chair, her world very desolate. The thing she had done was petty, of course, and she felt helpless and childish before this new turn of affairs. Thinking to stop a wedding with a daub of paint!

Wearily she went about the routine of closing shop, trying to picture Jimmy married, gone out of her world. Why, it would be like losing her ballast in life; like losing everything.

In her pain she had no thought of blame for him yet, but only the knowledge she had been petty, and that now she could never make it up. She avoided her own gaze in the mirrors that were all about her.

Yet that would never do! Her self-respect was more precious than anything else, for she was the one person whom she could never escape. She must phone Jim what she had done. He would never understand—no man ever would. But she would play square this last time with him.

"Hello, Jimmy? Yes, this is Edna May. I called you—that is, I want to tell you—well, it happened this way! She came up here, Jimmy, and she told me. And I knew how you hated such things. And I just couldn't help it—honestly I couldn't. What? Tired? No, I'm all right, I tell you! I just want to tell you how it happened, Jimmy. I can't bear to spoil your day if you are happy—and—What? Crying? No—of course not. It doesn't make any difference to me— only I just can't bear to have you think—What? Hysterical? Go home and go to bed? Theater tomorrow night? But, Jimmy, how can you talk so of your own wedding? Not yours? You are best man? O-o-h, Jimmy!"

WE LIKE OURS COOKED

"What next?" we are compelled to say, when we view this year's jewelry for milady.

We pass from counter to counter and see bracelets and necklaces of peach stones, raffia, wooden beads and even corks. Now the "next" is green beans, lima beans, corn and all fruit and vegetable seeds. Some are used in their natural colors, others are dyed and all are highly lacquered. Seeds of course have a natural tendency to sprout, but they are chemically treated to stop that process.

We may think we're "seeing things" when we see a pretty miss wearing a navy bean necklace—but our eyes aren't playing us tricks. The lowly bean is now too exalted for the bean pot and is substituting for a pearl!

Good Health
—TO YOU AND YOURS

PEOPLE often borrow to pay medical expenses. This is a very worthwhile purpose—one for which we are always glad to make loans. If your family's health is threatened, or if you have any other sound need for funds—come in and apply for a personal loan. We will explain our requirements, and advance the money promptly if you qualify.

USE GOOD RATIONS FOR DAIRY CATTLE

Cows Relish Grain Mixture of Different Feeds.

By John A. Arey, North Carolina State College—WNU Service.

Even the humblest dairy cow has her own ideas about what she likes to eat, and only palatable feed will tempt her to eat enough to maintain a full milk flow.

A good dairy cow has a tremendous capacity for converting feed into milk and to make full use of this capacity, she should be induced to eat all she can.

A healthy cow relishes a grain mixture containing several different feeds, but she usually gets tired of a ration containing only one or two kinds of grain.

Variety in the grain mixture not only makes it more palatable; it also insures against a shortage of minerals and provides needed proteins.

The grain mixture should not be too concentrated. If it weighs about one pound per quart it has the right amount of bulk.

Such feeds as wheat bran, ground oats, ground barley, and beet pulp are often used to add bulk and variety to the mixture.

But grain is only a supplementary feed. Cows need plenty of good pasture when it is available or a full feed of silage in legume hay.

Dairymen who buy feed for their cattle will get better results if they purchase only feed in which the percentage of nutrients is fairly high. When the percentage of crude fiber runs high, the fiber fills up the cow's stomach without providing the digestible nutrients she ought to have.

Warm Water for Layers Increases Production

In feeding laying hens, we usually think of the feed as the most important part of the ration. However, numerous experiments as well as practical observations of poultrymen have demonstrated that when water is withheld for any period of time from a flock of birds in heavy production, there is an immediate and very marked decrease in egg production and oftentimes an entire loss of production in a very few days, says J. S. Caryer, head of the poultry department, Washington State college.

Water plays a highly important part in the digestion and metabolism of fowl. It comprises over 55 to 75 per cent of the body and more than 65 per cent of the whole egg. It serves to soften feed in the crop. It plays an important part in digestion.

It is important in blood. It cools the body by evaporation through air sacks, lungs, and skin, and helps to equalize the temperature of various parts of the body.

While all feedstuffs, such as mash and scratch grain and green feeds, contain a certain percentage of moisture, the amount from all these combined sources furnish but a very small percentage of the large requirements for hens in heavy egg production.

Ways to Stop a Fire

This is the season for farm fires. Once started, a fire in a farm building is pretty hopeless to stop. But there are simple precautions worth taking, Country Home Magazine observes. A bucket of sand is useful to have in case fire starts around a car, tractor or oil stove. Every home should have a fire extinguisher or two. Even a portable pressure sprayer kept full of water is useful. We read recently of a man who makes fire grenades of old bottles filled with salt brine. He wires two bottles together which break when thrown on the fire, creating a vapor which smothers the flames.

To Prevent Egg-Eating

It is not good practice to feed chickens broken eggs. They acquire the habit of egg-eating very readily and some birds can puncture the shell of sound eggs. In preventing the flock from getting started at egg eating, says a writer in the Boston Globe, it is best to screen the roosts so that broken eggs will be out of their way and that they are not getting a taste of them. Adequate litter should be kept in the nest to prevent breakage. The dark front nest also prevents egg eating from getting started, and a close watch can be kept over the flock for birds that show evidence of egg eating as indicoted by yalk material on the beak.

Creosote Not Dangerous

The dark and sticky deposits that collect in flues and chimneys, and which are commonly called "creosote," are mostly condensed moisture mixed with smoke and soot. They usually contain just enough of the creosotic or tarry material to make them sticky and give them the distinctive creosotic smell. These deposits, while troublesome, says Wallaces' Farmer, do not in themselves present any dangers of asphyxiation or explosion.

The Traverse City Record-Eagle announces a total of 639,000 ragweed plants have been removed from the community as the result of this year's city-sponsored campaign. Seems that's quite a substantial way to announce to the hay fever sufferers that Traverse City is interested in their welfare. Makes mighty fine publicity material, too.

Hunters who do not believe the black bear is such a nuisance as painted and for this reason frown upon the law enacted by the last legislature removing all protection from them, perhaps can take a little satisfaction in the fact that the State Conservation Commission has decided that upon petition of the board of supervisors of any county for protection of this animal, an order will be issued restoring protection and hunting bear will only be allowed during the regular deer hunting season as in the past. Undoubtedly most counties will take advantage of this offer, as they should, and help save the bear from complete extermination.

If you want to see one of the finest summer estates on Lake Charlevoix, if not in northern Michigan, would suggest a visit to Clarence M. Mills' Clarelen Acres on the south arm between Ironton and Isle of Pines. Formerly the F. C. Pillsbury property, the residence has been transformed into a beautiful, modern home, the grounds landscaped, a dock constructed and extensive other improvements completed. It is a show place. Mr. Mills, who came with his family early in July, is treasurer of the American Products Co. of Cincinnati, Ohio. This region can be justly proud of such developments.

CAMP CHARLEVOIX ENJOYED DAD'S DAY

A significant feature of the day's program was the dedication of a hand-carved totem pole which has been worked upon since 1938. The guests gathered around the elaborately carved feature and were introduced to George Bach, outstanding wood carver of Grand Rapids, Mich., who, although past 70 years of age, carved the pole very skillfully and artistically for its place at the camp. Wendall Gate, head of the art department of Wooster college, Ohio, who painted the pole with great artistry, was also introduced. Coach Charles Bachman of Michigan State college, then gave the thanks of the camp to Mr. Bach for his patient work and dwelt on the lovable character of the man. The ceremony was closed by encasing in the pole notes and data about the camp which may not be opened for one hundred and fifty years.

Men were acclaimed better than women in a dish-washing contest, which merely proves the idea the ladies have been trying to put over for some time.

Senior Girls—First, Estelle Livingston, Charlevoix; 2nd, Kit Fribleman, New Orleans, La.; 3rd Elaine Ockrant, Cincinnati, O.

Senior Men—First, John Kleis, Detroit; 2nd, Wilbert Wilton, Petoskey; 3rd, Leo King, Detroit.

Bud Bergman and Leo King, the latter of Detroit, won the canoe tilting contest by upsetting John Harris and Al Rogers.

Judges of the diving contests were Mrs. Tom Darling, Grand Rapids; Al Rogers, Chicago and Camp Hay-O-Went-Ha, and John Harris, also of the Torch lake camp. Rogers and Mrs. Darling gave a near professional exhibition of fancy diving following the contests and drew the deserved applause of spectators.

The water program was in charge of Stewart Coleman. W. H. Wallace, local Mobil dealer, provided a Socony Vaccum Oil Co. sound car with George Pepin, announcer, to broadcast the program. Dean Davenport, WPA district recreational supervisor, was score keeper and awarded trophies.

The evening program opened with a concert by the city band in East Park. All available space was occupied by the crowd gathered for this program. Especially appreciated was a group of chanties (sea songs) by counsellors and campers from Camp Charlevoix, led by Director Lewis C. Reimann and John Schilling.

Boat Parade Colorful

Equal in grandeur and in number of participants to any previous event, the Venetian boat parade and fireworks display over Round lake harbor climaxed the day's activities.

The throng witnessing the spectacle, estimated as high as 10,000 persons, occupied every vantage point around Round lake harbor. Cars were parked solid in every block considerable distance from the lake, creating quite a traffic tie-up following the parade.

An entry of 34 boats, ranging from large cruisers and sail boats down to small launches, was divided into three strings behind a tow boat for the maneuvers. It was a beautiful sight, climaxed by an overhead display of fireworks.

Those entering boats were:

Max Scamehorn, two boats, Culver & Beaudoin, four boats, Don Clothier, three boats, Bernie Ward, three boats, Dale Bradley, Don Campbell, Clure Webster, Henry Partridge, Allen Campbell, Clarence Wood, Dr. F. W. Young, W. H. Wallace, Bruce Withers, Art Wexstaff, Ray Kipke, John Nordrum, Bill Novak, Lyle Auce, W. C. Bellinger, Fred Bergmann, Tim Whitley, A. P. Taylor, Milo Todd, Harold Hallett, L. S. Bisbee, Wm. Ockrant, W. B. McIlvaine, A. L. Fochtman, Moiru Hara, Mr. Lesser, Mr. Cohen, and three unidentified boats, two from Chicago, one from Detroit.

WHEAT PRODUCERS GET ALLOTMENTS FOR 1940

Appeals for Reconsideration Must be Filed on August 10th

Charlevoix county wheat producers are now being notified of their 1940 wheat acreage allotments. These allotment notices are being mailed well in advance of wheat planting time in order that farmers may plan their farming operations with respect to wheat so that they may cooperate in the 1940 farm program and be eligible to receive a wheat price adjustment payment.

Planting in excess of wheat allotments will result in a penalty on 1940 farm payments, unless a wheat allotment option is elected. Farmers electing wheat allotment options become ineligible to receive price adjustment payments.

Notices have not been mailed for farms having an allotment of less than 1.0 acre. However, farmers having these small allotments may request the allotments at this office and be considered as having a wheat allotment farm for 1940.

All farmers receiving notices may file an appeal for reconsideration of their allotments, providing they submit in writing facts to substantiate their claim for an increase. Appeal letters must be mailed to the Charlevoix county agricultural conservation office, Boyne City, by August 10.

A PRESS AGENT

One more Michigan man follows the ex-governor to Washington. Joseph A. Mulcahy, manager of the Murphy political machine within the unemployment compensation group in the last campaign, has been called to Washington to act as press agent for the Attorney General. His job will be to see that Frank's picture is in the papers of the country very frequently if not oftener. The taxpayers of the country will pay the bill.

This is looked upon as just one more move to try to build the "X" from Michigan into a formidable candidate for president.

Mulcahy is well known in Detroit and Michigan political circles and was long associated with Hearst newspapers until that publisher quit Murphy. He will be stationed at Washington along with the 1,000 other administration propagandists. — Detroit Legal Courier.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE NEWS BULLETIN

Check With Your Local Postoffice

Harry F. Kelly, secretary of state, suggests to applicants for motor vehicle operators' licenses who have moved since making application that they inquire at their local post offices if their licenses do not reach them within 14 days after application has been mailed. Usually five-day service is given. Delay is occasionally experienced when mail sent to old address is not forwarded promptly to new address by their local post office.

Mr. Kelly also advises you to notify your local police or sheriff's office of any change in address, in conformity with the motor vehicle laws. Officers will then notify the department of state.

LANSING LETTER

erintendent: "Counties are limited by the 15-mill amendment and some of them can't raise enough taxes altogether to meet their relief costs."

Problem of State Aid

The relief problem into which home rule was injected by the 1939 legislature is but an example of how state aid to local governments has mounted in the past few years.

Back in 1933 the total of revenues collected by the state and turned over to counties, townships, cities and school districts did not exceed $40,000,000 a year. Within six years the state's tax load in behalf of local governments only has grown approximately $65,000,000, for a grand total of more than $100,000,000 or half of all the money that the state collects.

The schools obtained more than $25,000,000 each year.

County and township relief commissions last year absorbed nearly $40,000,000.

County road funds received $30,000,000 from the state treasury.

And so the story goes.

What is the answer? Will "home rule," which taxpayers talk about so fondly, stop the apparently ever-increasing trend toward more spending of money for governmental public services? Here is a pent question. The property owner and consumer, who together constitute Mr. Taxpayer, must provide the answer. After all, he is the fellow who foots the bill.

Vulnerable G. O. P. Spots?

Conferences between Murray D. Van Wagoner and Frank Murphy at Washington over 1940 politics are said to have elicited a comment by the former governor that the Michigan Republican administration has two vulnerable spots in its armor at present:

1. Revision of civil service by the legislature. Murphy's belief is that civil service is now largely a figure of speech, instead of safeguard for good government. Kenneth C. Pennebaker, whom Governor Dickinson appointed to succeed Brownrigg as civil service director, apparently shares Murphy's ideas, for he recently declared that the administrative board's action in refusing an additional $101,500 had assured that the law "from now on, is a gesture." And he added: "We might as well close shop."

Facts are that civil service cost money. The department spent $250,000 last year; the legislature cut its request for $300,000 down to $75,000. Of this amount, $15,000 goes for salaries of the five civil service commissioners.

2. Non-partisan public health department. On August 1, Dr. H. A. Moyer, personal physician for Governor Dickinson, succeeded Dr. Don W. Gudakunst as health commissioner. Dr. Gudakunst, who a Republican, was appointed by Murphy on recommendation of the American Public Health association.

A report just released by the association, after a 11-month survey of Michigan's health facilities, recommends a non-partisan appointment of the commissioner by the state council of health. A sentence says: "The fact that the commissioner of health is appointed directly by the governor and may be removed by the succeeding administration, without any consideration other than that there has been a political change, makes for a lack of efficiency and results in a periodic lowering of the morale of the entire personnel."

Dickinson's Crusade

City slickers can laugh all they want to about Governor Dickinson's crusade against "high life," but a lot of folks respect him for it just the same.

Gov. Earl Long, brother of famed Huey, has decided that a governor should set an example. Hence the Louisiana governor's mansion no longer will serve liquors of any kind.

We inquired of an upstate newspaper editor about how people there had reacted to the Dickinson drive on sin. He said: "It has been popular with most people. I would judge that he has made votes."

Of course the governor's attitude on drinking and gambling and immorality in general is very much a personal matter. It is not a political issue. James Thomson, state republican chairman, has made that clear.

The governor's famous expression, "pipeline to God," elicited this explanation the other day: "It's simple enough—you have electric and gas lines passing your houses, bearing comforts you can only get by making a connection. There is not a place on God's earth without one of those spiritual lines. It's near you and it's up to you to make the connection."

Medics to Serve

Apropos to the home rule situation in which the welfare problem finds itself is that resulting from the current curtailment of state aid for care of crippled and afflicted children.

The legislature, economy-bent, limited such state aid to $800,000 for the entire state. This sum was only $100,000 more than the 1938 quota for Wayne county alone. If any county feels that the state aid quota is insufficient, it may supplement the amount.

When the cut was applied, criticism was voiced that the administration was neglecting the welfare of children. The Detroit Medical Journal, publication of the Wayne County Medical society, took a middle-road position to the effect that doctors could not afford to quarrel with the legislature in the latter's effort for economy. This stand was applauded widely by the press.

The Michigan Medical society has taken a fairly liberal attitude on the subject of public health. Physicians and hospitals say they will willingly do their part not to deny medical aid to anyone in an emergency. Furthermore, the society took the leadership this year to pioneer a new field of group health insurance. Incorporation papers have been filed, and the program will get under way shortly after September 18, when the society holds its annual meeting.

No other state has a comparable health insurance program.

More Liquor Stores

Whereas the late Governor Fitzgerald advocated that the state get out of the liquor business entirely, the opposite is about due to take place.

Additional liquor retail stores are to be opened soon by the state liquor commission in the hope of increasing the state's revenue to the treasury, the latter being sorely in need of money. Studies have disclosed that private retailers netted substantial profits from liquor sales, and the state commission believes this profit could well be utilized at Lansing.

Michigan, one of 16 states with state stores, enjoyed a net revenue profit last year of $19,210,827. Of this license fees produced nearly $3,000,000; state liquor taxes, $4,300,000; miscellany income, $[illegible]0,000, and the balance in retail sales profit.

Gross receipts were $45,000,000. Administrative and collection costs plus cost of goods and selling cost, amounted to $25,800,000. Michigan's "take" out of the liquor business thus was more than $19,000,000. Nationally, the net revenue of state and local governments from alcoholic beverages reached a staggering total of $318,000,000.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT

Gonorrhea

Of the two venereal diseases, gonorrhea is by far a more common and serious disease than syphilis. Gonorrhea has been known since earliest times, and Moses may be said to have been the first health officer, so far as it is known, to make sanitary regulations for its control. The disease was known to Hippocrates but it was not until 1832 that a Baltimore surgeon differentiated syphilis from gonorrhea.

The disease is extremely contagious. It is attended by serious and not uncommon complications. A little more than a million fresh gonorrheal infections—about twice that of syphilis—reach medical attention each year, but of course not all cases of either disease are reported. There are about four times as many new cases of gonorrhea as scarlet fever, 96 times as many as diphtheria, 50 times as many as typhoid fever, and three times as many as tuberculosis. The disease is the most common serious acute infection.

Although the great majority of Gonorrhea occur between the ages of 15 and 40 the disease is not uncommon in children and if it were not for laws demanding the prophylactic treatment of the eyes of the new born child blindness from gonorrhea would not have declined in twenty years from a figure of 28 to 9 per 100,000 people.

As mentioned above the complications of gonorrhea are numerous. Local persistence of the infection rendering the person sterile is perhaps the most common, with arthritis a close second. Other complications include those of the eye and heart. The arthritis of gonorrhea can be treated successfully, but the local persistence of the infection which gives rise to sterility is extremely difficult to eradicate in both sexes.

The control of gonorrhea is a personal problem with the individual, and protective measures against its spread should be carried out as rigidly as in the case of other communicable diseases. In its chronic stages the disease is more difficult to diagnose than syphilis and the evidence so far indicates that the trend of incidence is not downward, as in the latter disease. It is probable that gonorrhea will continue to be a curse in our civilization for several generations.

TWO-DAY PROGRAM FOR 13TH ANNUAL FEATURE

Big Parade Friday Afternoon — Rodeo Announced as Principal Feature of Sunday Program

(By Herbert W. Johnson)

It's here, the annual Camp Charlevoix Carnival and Horse Show with Rodeo combiaed on Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

The big parade will be held on the streets of Charlevoix, Friday afternoon. Beginning at 2:30 Saturday the concessions will open, stressing games of skill only such as targets, ring the bell, throwing darts at balloons, feats of strength and hit the nigger baby. Besides these there will be thrilling sailboat rides, the one-horse carriage, horseback rides, and several side shows.

The entire camp will turn out for the big parade on Friday. The best riding horses will be ridden by the best and most colorful camper-cowboys in costumes and under the direction of Texas Cowboy Jack Jetton. The camp trucks will be used as floats created by the campers. The old buggy, which has seen so many such parades, will of course be on hand. The younger boys will ride in decorated cars driven by the counsellors.

On Sunday at 3 p. m. Jack Jetton, the horsemaster from Texas and Arizona, will put on a big horse show and rodeo. There will be trick riding, pony express, calf roping, jumping, relays on horseback and features displaying all the color of early western pioneer days. The campers have been rehearsing for several days and will put on a show that will be thrilling.

Kamp Kairphree will be guests of the boys at the carnival, nlso many of the camper's parents will be in on the fun. The citizens of Charlevoix and neighboring towns are most welcome to attend.

A main portion of the proceeds of the events will be used for purchasing athletic equipment in rural schools in the vicinity of the camp.

CHILDREN'S FUND OUTLINE PROGRAM

WILL CONTINUE STAFF FOR TREATMENT EYE AILMENT

Children of Charlevoix and Beaver Island to be Cared for in Program Announced for August

The Children's Fund of Michigan in its desire to render maximum service to the children of Michigan, will continue its staff of ophthalmologists.

These specialists will devote all their time to the discovery and treatment of eye conditions. The need of such services among school children continues to be very great, especially in many counties where the expert services of a specialist cannot be readily secured. Dr. Carleton Dean, director of District Health Department No. 3, has arranged the following tentative schedule.

Ralph R. Sachs, M. D. will begin his work on Beaver Island on Tuesday afternoon, August 15th, to examine children with eye defects. He will remain there until Friday afternoon, August 18. On Monday morning, August 21, he will begin his eye correction program in Charlevoix at the school.

Any school child wearing Children's Fund glasses who has not had an examination within the last year should attend the clinic. Appointments will also be given those children who showed defective vision when tested in the school last fall. These appointments are being made by Miss Lawrence, county nurse, and consent cards must be signed by the parents before the child can be admitted to the clinic. Those children receiving an appointment should make every endeavor to be on time as only a certain number of patients can be cared for each day.

COAST GUARD SAVE SEA SCOUT VESSEL

FREED BOAT FROM SKILLAKALEE SHOAL MONDAY

Schooner Oliver H. Perry With 100 Sea Scouts Aboard on Rocky Shoal for 18 Hours

The Sea Scout schooner Oliver H. Perry, which figured in a mock rescue by Coast Guards at Grand Haven last Friday, had a taste of the real thing Monday after going hard aground in upper Lake Michigan.

The schooner, with its crew of 100 Midwestern youths, was pulled off the Ile aux Galets Shoals between Charlevoix and the Straits of Mackinac about 5 p. m. after being held fast for nearly 18 hours. Two coast guard crews, from Charlevoix and Mackinac Island, towed the ship off the rock and into the channel.

Lakes Only Three-Master

The ship, only three-masted schooner on the Great Lakes, went aground under full sail at 11:35 p. m. Sunday. She was not believed in serious danger at any time, but as a precaution the Coast Guard cutter Escanaba was ordered to her assistance from Grand Haven.

It was not known that the schooner was in distress until noon, when she was sighted by lookouts at the Grays Reef Light, about six miles distant. The keepers immediately called Coast Guard crews to the schooner's aid and kept shore officials in touch with developments.

Part of Outing to Scouts

Evidence that the Sea Scouts themselves considered the incident as an unscheduled attraction was revealed in a radiogram from Scout Ted Stein, of Chicago, sent via Grays Reef Light to Chief Koehler at Boy Scout headquarters in Chicago.

The message said, "Whole ship O. K. Ran aground at 11:30 p. m. Wish you were here."

Coast Guards were thankful that the lake was calm with no heavy weather expected. They said that in the event of strong winds the position of the schooner would have become dangerous because of the rocky nature of the reef. Orders had been issued to remove the Sea Scouts immediately if any signs of a storm were seen.

SHOT AT RANDOM

By Ken Usher

Last Wednesday's heavy shower was a God-send to all of this region. Wilting crops were freshened, pastures nided and a most serious forest fire danger eliminated temporarily, at least. The rainfall was general. Happened to motor down state and ran through heavy rain clear to Grnnd Rapids, where it was the first fall in six weeks. Conservation headquarters at Boyne City reported .55 inches fell in this district.

Drew Pearson, noted newspaperman and co-author of the popular column "Washington Merry-Go-Round," speaking last week before a Bay View audience, made the significant statement that the Roosevelt administration will go down in history as the most idealistic in our history, and it will also be shown as the most inefficient. That the Roosevelt administration is on its way "down" may be seen by the set-backs Congress has handed it the past few weeks. For the first time in eight years our representatives in Washington have followed the mandates of the voters who put them in office by keeping the promise of economy they made before election. While it is taken for granted some government spending will be necessary before private employment takes up the slack, it is to be hoped that the era of passing out billions for vote-teasing purposes is past.

The value of radio transmitting and receiving equipment recently installed in coast gunrd stations and lighthouses was unquestionably proven Monday through its use as a means of niding in the release of the Sea Scout training schooner Oliver H. Perry, which grounded on Ile Aux Gnlet shoal Sunday night. Notification of the plight of the ship and its 100 mid-west youths wns first transmitted by radio from Grey's reef lighthouse to Mackinac Island coast

The Crop Report

LANSING LETTER

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

Because heart throbs are involved, the state administration's handling of medicnl care for crippled and afflicted children was certain to stir up a rumpus.

And it did.

Bent on economy, the 1939 legislature whacked the hospitalization budget to $800,000 from an expenditure total of $2,366,000 between March, 1938 tn June, 1939. The maximum payable per day at any hospital was reduced from $4.50 to $3.50.

The University hospital at Ann Arbor has closed two children's units and has dismissed a staff of 50 members, officials explaining that the average cost per pntient has been $4.43 a day. Not subsidized by state funds in any manner, this institution then announced thnt only emergency cases of medical treatment would be henceforth accepted.

The prospect of hundreds of crippled children being deprived of modern hospital care, just because of economy demands, is one of those things that inspires revolutions. The immediate reaction was just emotionally that; Governor Dickinson was spanked verbally. "Didn't he have a heart?" And so on.

Norton Pearl has recovered from his recent nuto accident and is doing some repairing on his resort at Eastport, where he and family spend the summer vacation. He is still teaching athletics in the Detroit schools.

The Misses Mary and Grace Boice and Mrs. Gladys Boice Addington left last week for their home in Fresno, California, after a few weeks' vacation here. The two former are teachers in California schools.

Miss Kinney Dawson's condition still remains critical. Chas. Dawson, from Detroit, and Hiram Dawson, of Ellsworth, have been called to see her. She is very much respected by people here, where she has lived nll her life.

Mrs. Fred Musser, another one of our rural Sunday school people, is very ill at Lockwood Hospital, Petoskey. If any of the Sunday school people or others can call on or send her a card, it certainly would help to cheer her lonely hours.

The Wildfongs, Bradleys and Starks have been doing some extensive cherry picking for the Porters nt East Jordan the past few weeks. The two former did some fine work cherry picking at the Morse orchard two weeks ago, also the Batterbees.

W. L. Foote and Frank Bingham of Detroit, have been calling on old friends in the vicinity the last few weeks. They were formerly in the well business here, nnd later in the plumbing work in Detroit. We remember of Geo. L. Thurston, then editor of the Torch, making the remark in the paper, that "W. L. Foote, the well man, is sick."

Misses Bertha and Beulah Hooper, livewires, assisted Rev. Weaver in serving ice cream to 320 children for free cones, besides the other people at Twin Bridges picnic last week. Twin Bridges picnic was represented by people from different parts of the county as well as other counties. Miss Betty and Kenneth Griebe from farthest west in the county, Thelma Johnson Thomas farthest east, Mrs. Hughey and the Riffets farthest south, and William Sherman of East Jordan, north. Among those receiving free ice cream were the Morris twins, Jordan; Morse twins, Bay View, and Riffet twins, Tilley school. Touchstone, Patton and Hooper twins were not present. There are six sets of twins in the rural Sunday school association.

The people of this vicinity have Mr. Rood of the Ellsworth Canning company to thank for the two cent cherries this year. The cent-and-a-half variety offered by the Traverse Co-ops would have meant almost nuthing to the fruit growers after expenses were paid. Mr. Rood would have paid three cents had the other canners stood by him. It is hoped that another year the Co-op plan of sliding scale will be eliminated from the picture, and independent packers not held down to low prices as has been done for many years. Many growers on Old Mission peninsula, and several Antrim county farmers stepped out and signed up fur not

IT'S BLUEBERRY TIME

Hundreds of blueberry pickers soon will be swarming over Upper Peninsula uplands, gathering this succulent wild fruit for big-city markets. The pickers are recruited from all sections of Michigan and from states to the south. They combine work (and blueberry picking is hard work) with recreation in the north woods. The above scene was taken in a berry pickers' camp northeast of Newberry in the Lake Superior State Forest. A camp of 500 pickers has gathered $60,000 worth of berries in a senson which continues until the first frosts. Note the crate carrier on picker's back.

CAMP CHARLEVOIX WEEKLY NEWS COLUMN

Edited by Herbert W. Johnson

Time is going much too fast for us here at Charlevoix, and from a look at the many things yet on the program, the rest of the time is going to go by in a "whizz"!

The big specialty of this week is the Carnival and parade this coming week end on Saturday, August 12. Then on Sunday is to be staged the long awaited for Rodeo and Horse Show in the afternoon. All the parents and friends of the campers are invited to come in and be with us for both events. They are well worth it.

Last Saturday the boys on the Beaver Island trip arrived back in camp after five days of fun and adventure. Konrad Matthaei and Jim Gault have been anxious to tell everyone about their voyage on the "Mary-Margaret" thru Lake Michigan to the island. But Ed. Petty is back and is much more interested in the weekly allowance of candy which brings him much joy—and today a stomach-ache.

On Monday a group of campers started out on the trip to the Tahquamenon Falls and should return Friday with many tales of deer, porcupines and lake trout they will encounter on their trip through the north country by foot and canoe. The travelers include Bob Armstrong, Dave Bennett, Jason Bloomberg, Chas. Marcus, John Squier, Bill Wilson, Al Wright and Jim Whittemore.

While we are speaking of trips we might include the main sailboat trip that went out of camp this week. The crew was made up of senior expert sailors Ken Vincent, Charlie Marcus, Jim Whittemore, Charles Bachman with Bill Hart as skipper. The boys cruised up the lake for four days, stopped off at Ironton to see the Ironton Players perform, and returned home to tell many yarns.

Meanwhile the campers who have remained ashore have been having a pretty happy time of it with many special events on the program. The first was the sing at the Venetian Boat Night held in town. Forty of the campers sang a series of sea chanties with an appropriate setting and audience of hundreds of resorters and townspeople from hereabouts. Ken Smith was in charge and the whole thing was done well and well received.

On Wednesday evening the campers were taught some new indoor games by Nelson Opper and Dick Osmer in the clubhouse. Some of the boys who caught on especially fast were Charles Brainard, Bill Garr, Howard VanAntwerp, Rowland Burnstan and Jerry Burke.

On Monday afternoon a junior activity was held in the form of a mile swim acros sthe lake. Mont Wickham and Allen Hunting were successful and have earned the unstinted praise of the whole camp.

Wiley Hitchcock, who is our tennis director, entered the Bay View Tennis Tournament this week and captured a winner's trophy.

Ed. Moran, swimming instructor, brought home another trophy. This from the water carnival held in Charlevoix Sunday. Ed. won the half-mile feature swim. Camp had most of the winners that day for Jack Kirsh won the boys' 50 yard swim with Mont Wickham second. Wiley Hitchcock won the junior swim with Ken Vincent second. Jim Whittemore placed in the 50 yard breast stroke event, Jim Daniels in the 100 yard breast stroke, and August Brown in the same event.

Saturday afternoon was devoted to an all-camp program of "Capture-the-flag" under the Green and Grey competition. Fred Matthaei and Jim Kendall led the Greens on to victory while Dave Bennett and Jim Gault headed the Grays. Charlie Marcus provided the fun.

In the evening the clubhouse was given over to a silent movie picture entitled "Jerry Pulls the Strings." It was a very fine professional film and it was preceded by sometbing in the way of vaudeville by the campers. Some of the players in the skits included Jeun Reimann, Dick Osmer, Dick Toncray, Ken Vincent, Charlie Bachman and Johnny Squier.

Many other exciting things are huppening here, and too numerous to be mentioned. Let it simply be said that the boys are not at all anxious for the final banquet on August 23rd, which will mean the close of the best season ever.

PATROL BOAT RADIO ON COAST GUARD WAVE

Will Aid in Rescue Work on Lake Michigan Water Lanes

Rep. Fred Bradley, R., Mich., revealed last week that the U. S. coast guard has agreed to proposed radio contact with Patrol Boat No. 1 of the Michigan Conservation Department in case of emergency.

The conservation service operates the patrol boat, a radio-equipped vessel similar to those used by the coast guard, patrols waters of Lake Michigan and enforces fishing and gaming laws.

Bradley said he had talked to the captain of the ship who informed him that frequently the vessel finds stranded ships in inaccessable places that need coast guard assistance. Under present conditions, he said, the patrol boat is unable to contact coast guard vessels because their radio equipment is on a different frequency from that of the government ships.

PELLSTON MILL MACHINERY IS MOVED TO ST. IGNACE

An event which symbolizes the passing of the lumbering industry in this area is the razing of the Jackson and Tindle sawmill at Pellston. The mill was built in the fall of 1914, and operations began in April, 1915.

The Michigan Maple Block company of Petoskey has purchased the mill and will move it to St. Ignace.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT

Racial Tuberculosis

Tuberculosis, once known as the "White Plague," is by no means confined to the white race. Indeed, according to Dr. Esmond R. Long of the Henry Phipps Institute of Philadelphia, the average death rate for white victims of the disease, in the United States, is 57 per 100,000 while that for Negroes is three to four times as great. Although the death rate for tubercular Indians is not definitely known, it is assumed to be somewhere between the 220 per 100,000 of New York state and the 1,327 per 100,000 recorded in Montana.

There seems to be a correlation between tuberculosis mortality and the degree of white blood intermixed with Indian. The greater the infusion of white blood, the higher the resistance to the disease. It has been suggested and with some reason that the more white blood present, the higher is the probable living standard of the Indian, hence the greater attention to hygienie surroundings, proper food and the like.

From onset to fatal termination, the progress of tuberculosis in whites is fairly slow. Among negroes, the period from health to the final stages of the disease may not extend over three or four months.

In Indians, the disease frequently avoids involving the lungs and, instead, attacks the glands, bones, peritoneaum and the intestines. Among Indian children the glands are commonly affected.

There seems to be little doubt that whites, generally, even allowing for better living conditions, are more resistent to the disease than other races. Overcrowding almost certainly accounts for the rapid spread and the virulence of tuberculosis among Negroes.

Thus, in any campaign for the control of tuberculosis, elimination of slums, improvement of the average dietary and isolation of active cases is as important as the establishment of sanitaria and the provision of medical and nursing care. No program which fails to stress preventative measures can justify the expenditure it entails.

I find nonsense singularly refreshing.—Talleyrand.

URGES FARMERS TO DESTROY POISON WEEDS

State Agricultural Commissioner Elmer A. Beamer urges Michigan farmers to learn to identify poisonous plants that may infest their pasture lands.

Beamer explained that during the past week the department has received more than a number of reports that hogs and cattle have been poisoned.

He asked that all farmers become familiar with the dangerous weeds and with symptoms that indicate poisoning. He listed as poisonous plants, water hemlock, poison hemlock, wild cherry, bracken fern and white snakeroot.

FRIED CHICKEN NEEDS LOW HEAT

Summertime and fried chicken are coincident with many Michigan families. That means that a hint handed out in the recent World's Poultry Congress at Cleveland can help in making the delicacy even more popular.

The secret, homemakers were told at Cleveland, is to use moderate temperatures most of the time the bird is cooking, no matter what the method.

Young birds properly are broiled, fried or roasted so that no extra steam forms to force out meat juices. Because poultry, like all meat, is a protein food, the low temperature reduces shrinkage and lessens the toughening that can occur as a protein is heated.

No cover is needed on the pan while a young bird is being prepared. Some fat may be added as young fowl are likely to be lean and easily dried out.

An older bird lends itself to the stewing process. Long, slow cooking with a lid on the pan and added water helps soften the tough connecting tissue. Some of the flavor seeps out of the meat pieces, but that adds up to better chicken gravy.

Other tips on chicken cookery were suggested in the exhibit halls and meetings during the recent congress.

Avoid spoiluge on warm summer days by popping any chicken or broth into the refrigerator if it is not to be consumed immediately. If the food stays in the refrigerator any length of time, heat it thoroughly before serving.

TRAVEL AUTHORITY GATHERS MATERIAL HERE

James P. Welsh Gets Information for AAA Motor News Book

James P. Welsh, the Old AA Traveler of Automobile Club of Michigan, nationally recognized travel authority, radio commentator, magazine writer and newspaperman, was in Charlevoix this week gathering material for preparation of a book on this section and also for a radiocast in his Old Traveler series over WXYZ and associated stations and a story for the club's Motor News, with a circulation more than 130,000. A similar book recently was prepared on the Grand Traverse section of the state.

Tourists spent more than $315,000,000 in Michigan last year, Welsh said, and the club is doing its utmost to increase tourist expenditures to a minimum of $365,000,000 a year, or an average of a million dollars a day. He continued:

"Americans are tourists at heart and they'll go wherever there is something to attract them. Michigan has everything the tourist might want in the way of open water and beaches, forests and delightful scenery, and through its present project Automobile Club of Michigan is parading those lures as they've never before been paraded. The radiocast each week reaches hundreds of thousands of listeners and the booklets the club prepares are distributed through 29 club branches within the state and through 300-odd Three-A clubs throughout the United States."

While here the Old Traveler gathered up photographs and a mass of historical and informational material to be utilized in his project covering this section of the state.

Your little vegetable plot, however small, is a heritage from the whole world; corn, beans and squash were first civilized for it by the ancient cliff dwellers of the southwest; your onions came from Palestine; your asparagus from Siberia; north Europe gave you cabbage, broccoli, cauliflower; the tomatoes came from Peru; your muskmelons from Persia; watermelons from Africa; beets and carrots are native to south Europe; your peas came from Egypt and your lettuce from China.—Saturday Evening Post.

LIGHT RAIN BREAKS EXTENDED DRY SPELL

Friday Shower Aid to Farm Crops, Lessens Forest Fire Danger

Rain, the first to be recorded in this district in three weeks, fell in the eastern portion of the county Friday morning and soaked the entire region, virtually eliminating the forest fire hazard for a few days and bringing much needed moisture to field crops in this area.

Officials at the Boyne City conservation department district headquarters reported that danger of a serious forest fire in this area has been greatly reduced. Reports received from the various counties in this district showed the rain to be general and the woods are receiving a soaking which will bring the danger rating of "very high" in this region back towards normal, at least temporarily.

County Agricultural Agent B. C. Mellencamp stated rain arrived just in time to prevent serious damage to field crops. Corn, potatoes and grains which had been threatened by the weather of the past three weeks, were revived by the morning showers.

AT THE MOVIES

"Frontier Marshal" Thrilling Saga of Turbulent Action

The wickedest, wildest town in that dangerous West of old, Tombstone, Arizona, where the man fastest on the draw lived the longest, is the setting of "Frontier Marshal," which opens August 16, at the Palace Theatre.

Randolph Scott and Nancy Kelly head the great cast of this thrilling 20th Century-Fox production, which also prominently features Cesar Romero, Binnie Barnes and John Carradine.

Scott has his most colorful role to date as Wyatt Earp, the gun-fighting marshal who brought in the law at the end of his six-gun and stayed alive because no one ever beat him to the draw. The lovely Nancy Kelly is cast as the beautiful, brave, unflinching girl who followed Doc Holliday, the man she loved, to this God-forsaken borderland town to save him. Romero is cast as Holliday, elegant gambler and deadly killer, who for reasons of his own, had dropped his useful life back East to come to Tombstone, a bitter, desperate man, waiting for death.

Binnie Barnes has a made-to-order role as Jerry, volcanic dance hall queen, who is madly in love with Holliday and who violently resents the intrusion of the hometown sweetheart for whom Holliday feels the sort of love Jerry will never know.

Carradine is cast as Ben Carter, the villainous proprietor of the Palace of Pleasure, where a shooting was always in order.

The intense rivalry between the two women from vastly different worlds helps motivate the exciting screen play which Sam Hellman based on a book by Stuart N. Lake.

Allan Dwan directed "Frontier Marshal," while Sol M. Wurtzel filled the executive producer's post.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY

Sunday morning service, 10:45.

Sunday school, 12 o'clock.

Meets first Wednesday evening each month at 7:45 p. m.

Reading room open Saturday, 3 to 5 p. m.

We cordially invite the public to our service and reading room.

"Soul" will be the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, August 13.

The Golden Text (Lamentations 3:24) is: "The Lord is my portion, saith my soul; therefore will I hope in him."

Among the Bible citations is this passage (Psalms 63:1): "O God, thou art my God; early will I seek thee: my soul thirsteth for thee, my flesh longeth for thee in a dry and thirsty land, where no water is;"

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 477): "Soul is the substance, Life, and intelligence of man, which is individualized, but not in matter. Soul can never reflect anything inferior to Spirit."

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

By B. C. Mellencamp

Grasshopper Bait Station Closes This Week

The committee in charge of the Charlevoix County Grasshopper Control campaign announces that the station will be closed this week Friday, August 11th. While we desire to serve all farmers interested in protecting their crops during the last week, the demand has dropped off to a point where we cannot keep the station open.

As compared with last year very little damage from grasshoppers has been noticed. We feel that more of this bait should have been used as a year like this is the best time to eliminate the hoppers. We have a feeling that another year a more serious outbreak will take place as a result of not using this material which has been available free of charge.

The eyes of other men are the eyes that ruin us.—Franklin.

less than two cent cherries. Allen Aardema of this place was a sort of Paul Revere, who started out warning the people of the need of signing up against such practice, and got 37 signers for about a million pounds in a short time. Then Mr. Rood started the ball rolling with the two-cent cherry, and several packers at Traverse City followed suit. The Ellsworth factory have one of the finest equipments for cherry pack in the country and their product is known all over the United States. Recently the writer visited the factory and was shown around by Mr. Rood. He has four forty-four foot flowing wells back of the factory and another inside that furnish 44 degree water constantly poured onto the cherries in the vats. This keeps them so cool that they easily pop open when pitted, eliminating much waste of juice softening the cherries. The cherries, many of them put up in syrup, are greatly admired by the consumer. We were talking lately to a customer in Ohio, who praised this kind of a pack. Many people of the surrounding country and from the village are employed at the factory, which also cans beans, beats, carrots, etc. Mr. Petter, who has charge of the testing of cherries, is known by all for his fair testing. Cherries this year have varied in ripening, but as sorted by the ladies at the factory are of finest quality. We differ with the opinion as expressed by the press, that cherries are not of good quality this year. We have never seen better.

BUILDERS' BIBLE

If you are planning to build, here are ten very worthwhile Do's and Dont's:

1. Engage an architect and inform him in great detail about your way of living and your budget, your tastes and your wants. But don't expect him to plan for more than your budget is really able to afford.

2. Visit new exhibition houses in the price class in which you intend to build. Acquaint yourself with what you can expect to get for what you can spend and be satisfied.

3. Study your plans for at least 60 days before you submit them for bids. Imagine yourself living in every room before you approve your plans. Make paper changes. They are cheap.

4. Investigate all the wonderful new materials (as well as the old stand-bys) whose use stamps your house as up-to-date and guarantees it a longer life expectancy.

5. Build only on land with a future—land whose future value is protected by restrictions.

6. Think of the cost of upkeep when you decide what materials to use.

7. Don't fail to have automatically-fueled, automatically-controlled heat.

8. Provide enough closets, built-in cupboards, electric outlets and switches and enough windows — properly spaced for good furniture arrangement—for a light, cheerful house.

9. Have complete, tight specifications, written so cnrefully that your contractor will not need to add extra charges for forgotten items.

10. Insulate your side walls as well as roof or ceiling. Insulation will pay for itself in a short time.

COMBAT EXCESSIVE TAXES

The board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce of Michigan met in Detroit Wednesday, June 28, and decided to proceed with the following program to combat the high cost of state and other forms of government:

Organize economy groups in each county of Michigan, these groups to act as a "Taxpayers' Lobby" to combat the vicious activities of the various so-called "pressure groups" now running the state and nation deeply in debt.

Educate people generally on tax matters by pamphlets printed by the State Chamber and distributed by these economy groups and other organizations, showing what portion of their incomes really goes for taxes, hidden and visible. First pamphlets are now in the hands of the printer.

Twenty-five per cent of the people think they pay no taxes whatever and forty per cent of the lower-income group believe they pay nothing in taxes, so reports the American Institute of Public Opinion.

The establishment of a press service to Michigan newspapers with educational stories on taxation.

Submit legislative proposals affecting taxpayers to all groups. Expand "Taxpayers' Lobby," creating pressure from taxpayers "back home."

If Michigan industry is to be saved and work provided for Michigan labor, there must be concerted action on the part of the taxpayers everywhere.

Lansing reports indicate a special session for legislation on taxation alone. Your approval of this "Taxpayers' Lobby" is needed to oppose efforts of pressure groups to create new taxes.

The State Chamber of Commerce is carrying on a determined fight for lower cost of state government, which means lower taxes, to consolidating tax-collecting agencies and other money-saving reforms.

Happiness is the inevitable reward of duties well done, of big obstacles overcome, of some worth-while service done another. It can come in no other way. Others cannot give it to us, for happiness is the fruit of our own efforts. It is heaven's reward for a task well done.—Grit.

MR. VANDENBERG ASSENTS

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg will "consent to be drafted" as a candidate for Republican presidential nomination, he has let it be known in response to a petition from party leaders in his home state of Michigan.

Mr. Vandenberg was, of course, a possibility before this; he has been a possibility ever since he figured as a contender in the 1936 convention which nominated Governor Landon. One possible handicap is that, having heard the name thus long, politicians and some voters may merely end their survey of candidates with "Of course, there's always Vandenberg."

While some will wish in a president a broader international outlook and more friendliness to reciprocal trade policies, it is to be recalled that Senator Vandenberg took a useful part in the munitions investigations and has been what might be called constructive in his isolationism. He early made what have proved sapient criticisms of social security legislation and and unemployment relief policy, helping to formulate Republican policy on those subjects. More recently he has shown the courage to stick by his economy guns in leading the successful fight against the Florida ship canal and in voting against the $380,000,000 farm subsidy nddition to the department of agriculture bill when a number of republican senators voted for it or were absent.

In short, some of his friends may be able to turn the expression, "There's always Vandenberg" into a slogan for their candidate, to the effect that "Vandenberg is always there." Anyway, he will be among those to be considered at the 1940 convention.—Christian Science Monitor.

"Home Rule" Test

Although a totalitarian government is expected to assume welfare functions of all kinds, Michigan did not attempt this particular responsibility until quite recently. With the support of Gov. Frank Murphy, the 1937 legislature created the Michigan Child Guidance Institute and passed an Afflicted Children's act whereby the state undertook to pay the cost of medical treatment for youngsters who, otherwise, would not receive any. In 16 months the state treasury was asked to honor $2,366,000 in bills.

The 1937 act, however, provided: "Counties, cities and other political subdivisions of the state are hereby authorized to appropriate moneys from their treasuries for the expenses of transportation, care and treatment of children resident in their several jurisdictions."

This provision of the law is being emphasized today when local governments once again are being asked to assume the major responsibility of proper care for crippled children. Governor Dickinson, undaunted as usual by criticism, pointed out that no afflicted child should suffer if each county does its job.

Auditor General Vernon J. Brown commended a movement in Flint by the Charles Stewart Mott foundation, cooperating with city and local medical societies, to open a clinic for treatment of indigent children. He said: "Much of the work that has been done in the past by the state can be done more economically locally."

What Cost Crime?

Social welfare workers are fond of quoting figures on the cost of courts, jails and mental hospitals.

Since all these agencies deal with the effect of behavior deviations, rather than the cause, the net result is to make the expense of preventive agencies seem small by comparison. After all, a tax dollar is a tax dollar, regardless how it is spent.

Here is the social welfare side of the story:

83 jails, 1937-38	$1,165,216
Prisons and prisoners, 1936-37	3,001,500
Circuit judges, state police, etc.	1,267,316
State mental hospitals, patients	6,798,041
Handling juvenile delinquents, local and state	1,100,000

During the past three years, Michigan with a population of 5,079,400 for 1937 (state department of health) committed through its courts a total of 7,507 persons to state prisons. Of the 7,311 inmates in prisons December 31, 1938, just 47 per cent were first-termers. Twenty per cent of prison population is Negro; 37 per cent of all prisoners are between 15 and 24 years of age. And yet, here is a golden lining in this dark picture: Commitments to prisons declined from 3,759 in 1931 to 2,726 in 1938.

Just when you are duly appalled, the social worker clinches the case with this appeal, which comes from the Michigan Child Guidance Institute at Ann Arbor; "Unless boards of supervisors and other local agencies take advantage of their authority (quoted above) many maladjusted children in urgent need of hospitalization will fail to receive adequate treatment. This will mean that instead of paying $100 or $200 for treatment in time, taxpayers will ultimately have to pay many times $100 to put such cases in jail, in prison or in the mental hospitals."

In case you're still statistically minded, Michigan taxpayers pay the following per capita costs: Jails, $196.78; prisons, $390.16, and mental hospitals, $320.21.

Prosecutors Pledge Action

A recent survey of crimes committed by minors was conducted by Michigan State police, and the result, according to Lieut. Harold F. Mulbar, disclosed "shocking figures."

In an appeal to prosecuting attorneys in annual conference at Mackinac Island, the police officer said: "The major part of crime in Michigan today is perpetrated by young men. . . .They must have an outlet for excess energy, and boys' clubs and other boys' movements will go far to curb delinquency and direct their steps in the right path."

Oscar G. Olander, state police commissioner, proposes that community organizations in towns up to 4,000 population take the initiative in forming boys' clubs.

As juvenile delinquency is usually linked with liquor, Orrin A. DeMass, chairman of the state liquor control commission, put his finger on a vital point when he scolded the home officials: "The people of Michigan, wet or dry, are not going to continue to see 16 and 17-year old youngsters staggering out of these roadhouse dance halls that line our highways, blind drunk, driving 60 miles an hour, killing perhaps your mother or mine."

And again, as it often works out, home rule responsibility can check these abuses. Mr. DeMass reminded: Local communities are prone to put the responsibility of such places in the lap of the commission, but don't forget that each one of those local communities issue dance hall permits, which, if revoked, would put them out of business."

Sheriff on the Spot

That the local sheriff is directly responsible for law enforcement—not the prosecuting attorney, by the way, or other local officials—was a legal point in where the late Gov. Frank Fitzgerald sought refuge during the post-inauguration controversy over slot machines and other forms of gambling.

His successor, Gov. Luren D. Dickinson, made the same distinction when he instructed state police to investigate reported rioting in an automobile industrial center and to notify him if local officials were dodging their responsibility.

Prosecuting attorneys say that the remedy for disreputable liquor dives is to put the sheriff on the spot. Said William J. Miller, prosecutor of Delta county: "Call in your sheriff and other police agencies and tell them to clean house." A majority of the county prosecutors agreed that Miller's suggestion was sound. (And to this might be added one additional ingredient: Newspaper publicity. It was the latter, more than anything else, that restored the anti-gambling ban in Michigan this year.)

The prosecutors agreed that saloon keepers, who sell liquor to minors, should be prosecuted for contributing to delinquency instead of letting the state commission deal out punishment in form of a revoked license.

And yet sheriffs and prosecutors can go no farther than public opinion support them. To that extent, the ultimate responsibility rests with the men and women who go to the polls and who, during the other days between elections, are expected to exhibit some interest in good government through support of local officials.

Welfare at Home

In a hope that localized responsibilities would effect a saving of public funds, the 1939 legislature passed a new welfare act. County supervisors are to appoint two of the three county welfare commissioners; the state welfare commission is to name the third person. The three commissioners can appoint a salaried welfare director, or they can designate one or all three of themselves to be full-time, salaried executives.

The act also provides that the state shall match dollar for dollar the welfare contributions of a county. Wayne county would benefit from this provision, which is inoperative at present, as it now pays more than half of its relief costs. According to Melville B. McPherson, chairman of the state tax commission, who is the unofficial spokesman for supervisors, home rule of this kind must prove its worth in a saving of tax money.

guard station which relayed the information to Charlevoix. Power life boats of the two stations were dispatched to the scene and pulled the vessel off the rocks. The coast guard cutter Escanaba, ordered out of Grand Haven to aid the schooner, was saved a needless trip of great length because of radio communication which notified the ship of the schooner's release shortly after it had left its base. Constant contact with the situation was maintained by radio communication from Grey's Reef lighthouse, 6 miles distant from Ile Aux Galet, with coast guard stations in the upper Lake Michigan region. This writer sat in the local coast guard office and heard Angus Phillips send in the news at intervals from Grey's Reef. It all created a great appreciation of the wonderful value of radio in rescue work on the lakes. And even more satisfaction is gained from the fact that none other than our own coast guard commander, Capt. Oscar Smith, is largely responsible for the installation of radio equipment in Lake Michigan stations. I saw his vision and efforts rewarded Monday afternoon.

They tell me George Lord, well known Norwood pioneer, is in an awful predicament because his hat and collars won't fit him any more since the birth of a great-great granddaughter which arrived July 24th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harbaugh in Petoskey. Seems to be a Norwood community ailment, for Ed. Jones was afflicted the same way only a short time ago.

And here's another little tip, too! If the price of fish goes up, it's probably because of that new son born to Herb Campbell and the Missus.

It may sound insignificant to others, but personally, I have been unable to overlook the fact that our neighboring Traverse City Record-Eagle failed to make any mention of the recent convention of the State Association of County Clerks held in Charlevoix. Other newspapers thruout the state did, but perhaps the Traverse City editor saw no news value in a state-wide convention of county officials and the remarks of almost every one of our state officials as well as their own fellow-townsman, Judge Parm C. Gilbert. Traverse City's ambitious publicity department never fails to see that newspapers are provided with copy heralding conventions and other features staged in their city. It might be well to remember that granting of such publicity courtesies work both ways.

ROBERT WITHERS, PIONEER CITIZEN, PASSES

Died Wednesday, August 2, After Extended Illness—Funeral Friday

Robert Withers, Marion township pioneer and resident of Charlevoix many years, died Wednesday, August 2, following an extended illness.

Mr. Withers was born June 5, 1854, at Toronto, Canada. He came to Marion township with his brother, William, now deceased, in 1878. They purchased land from the railroad company and cleared farms at what is now Marion Center. Mr. Withers resided on the farm until moving to Charlevoix in 1906.

Mr. Withers married Christina Wakefield in 1883. To this union were born four sons, Monte, Charles, George and Guy. Mrs. Withers died in 1906. He married Mrs. Lucina Miller in 1908. She preceded him in death in 1920, and in 1923 he was united to Mrs. Jenny Parrish, who survives besides the four sons and eight grandchildren.

Mr. Withers served as justice of the peace for several years and was a member of the I. O. O. F.

Funeral services were conducted Friday from the See Funeral Home, Rev. G. R. Parker officiating. Interment was at Brookside cemetery.

"OLIVER OLIVER" NEXT WEEK PLAYHOUSE SHOW

Farce by Paul Osborne Has Proven A Hilarious Success Where Played

In the fifth week of its second season, the Ironton Playhouse is presenting "Mrs. Moonlight" for the last two times tonight and tomorrow night.

"Mrs. Moonlight," a fantasy by Benn W. Levy, is one of the so-called idea plays. Mr. Levy has taken an idea, one of the oldest, by the way, in the story-telling business, that of a person having a wish granted, and has written a beautifully delicate play around it, and the result is extremely engrossing.

Next week's attraction at the Playhouse is "Oliver Oliver," a farce by Paul Osborne, which has proven itself a hilarious success wherever it has played. The story concerns one Oliver, who is quite the rudest young man in the world, and the bland way in which he pursues his romance, in the face of objections from everyone, including himself. "Oliver Oliver" opens Tuesday, August fifteenth, and runs through Friday the nineteenth, with a matinee on Thursday, August eighteenth.

COAST GUARDS SAVE SEA SCOUT VESSEL

As it turned out, it was only slightly more thrilling to the scouts than the mock rescue held at Grand Haven, Friday. At that time Coast Guards had demonstrated the use of the breeches buoy, a device which would have been useless Monday since the schooner was nine miles from the nearest land, at Cross Village.

The schooner, hailing from Detroit, is engaged in one of a series of four cruises from Detroit and Chicago scheduled for this summer. The ship is used for training Sea Scouts from Michigan, Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin. She is under command of Oscar J. Michnel, of Danville, Ill., on the present cruise.

Once was Rum Runner

Constructed in Nova Scotia, the schooner was used in the Alfrican slow-cargo trade before the World War, then was employed as a rum runner between the Azores and the Eastern seaboard during prohibition.

The government seized the schooner in the prohibition period and held her for a number of years before she was purchased by Grant Piggott, of Detroit, who converted her to a lumber carrier under the name of the J. T. Wing.

Refitted last spring, the schooner was rechristened the Oliver H. Perry and set out with the Sea Scouts as a training vessel.

NEW CHAMPIONS IN OPEN TENNIS MEET

COMPETITION CLOSED MONDAY AFTERNOON

C. Legg and Mrs. Richard Lowenstein, Chicago, Roy Bradley, Detroit, Singles Winners

New champions were crowned in all divisions as the Charlevoix open tennis tournament closed Monday afternoon at the municipal school courts.

C. Legg of Chicago, number two player on the Harvard college tennis team, took the men's singles title through default of G. Plaut, Cincinnati, Ohio, who was forced to quit play with the games 5-3 in the first set because of a wrenched knee received in a fall.

Plaut's injury likewise caused default in the men's doubles finals. Plaut and partner, C. Kessel of Cincinnati, withdrew in favor of C. Legg and John Mithoefer, the latter of Cincinnati, Ohio. Thus Legg won one and shared another title.

Mrs. Richard Lowenstein of Chicago, returned to a familiar role by winning the women's singles crown. A former champion, Mrs. Lowenstein defeated Ann Allen of St. Louis, Mo., by scores of 6-2, 6-0 in Sunday's finals.

Roy Bradley of Detroit, became the new junior champion. He was victor over John Mithoefer, Cincinnati, Ohio, by scores of 6-3, 6-3.

The open tennis event, revived this summer after giving way last year to the Riviera championships, drew an entry of over 50 players in all divisions. The field was made up largely of local summer residents. The event was staged under sponsorship of the Board of Commerce, with Ed. Radle, WPA recreational leader, in charge. Beautiful trophies were awarded the winner of each division.

FINGERLING LAKE TROUT RELEASED

PLANT 56,000 IN LAKE CHARLEVOIX WATERS

Releases Made at Five Points in Lake Michigan; Balance Kept for Experimental Purposes

Improved lake trout fishing in Lake Charlevoix particularly, and in Lake Michigan generally is expected to result from the release of fingerlings from the federal fish hatchery during the past week.

Lige Geer, who has been in charge of the hatchery rearing program which started last spring, announced a planting of 24,000 fingerling off North Point by Ernest Smith, 24,000 off Fishermen's Island by John Cross, shipments of 12,000 each to Frankfort, Leland and Northport. Through efforts of the Charlevoix Sportsman's Club, two plantings were made in Lake Charlevoix, one of 20,000 at Horton Bay and another of 36,000 at Ironton.

Mr. Geer stated 10,000 fingerlings were transferred to the Oden hatchery for experimental purposes and that 35,000 have been retained at the local hatchery for the same purpose. One consignment for the sportsman's club was arranged thru E. R. Widmeyer, state federal hatchery superintendent, and the other through state hatchery officials at Oden.

The fingerlings, termed No. 3 lake trout, around three inches in length, were hatched from eggs this spring and reared to their present size through a combined state and federal WPA and PWA project which brought about change of the local hatchery from a hatching to rearing unit.

Also being reared at the hatchery for the Charlevoix Sportsman's Club are 8,000 native rainbow, raised from spawn taken last spring in the Boyne river, and 25,000 western steelhead trout obtained from the west coast. In the club's Stover creek rearing ponds are 49,000 German brown and 56,000 brook trout which range in size from 2 to 5 inches. These fish will be planted in late fall.

The above program is outlined to give an indication of the scope and importance of this Kiwanis welfare activity. LaBlance was arrested for use of a city improved dock which the Northern Auto Company claims is on their property. While not involved directly, title to other Round lake frontage used by private individuals at the foot of Antrim street, will also be cleared.

BELVEDERE CLUB ACTIVITIES BEGIN

ANNUAL GOLF TOURNAMENT STARTED TUESDAY

Dates Set for Tennis Tourney, Cabaret and Masquerade Parties, Annual August Events

The qualifying round in the Belvedere Club golf tournament Tuesday opened a series of recreational and entertainment features held annually by this summer colony during the month of August.

The golf tournament will be played during the remainder of the week with the finals Sunday; the annual tennis tournament opens Thursday, August 17; the annual cabaret party is scheduled Friday evening, August 18th, and the masquerade and children's party will be held Thursday evening, August 24th.

The 18-hole golf tournament qualifying round is open to Belvedere hotel guests, cottagers and their guests. The first eight low scores qualify for the Pingree cup championship flight. Play will be from scratch as a year ago instead of handicap as in previous years. Louis B. Morrow was the 1938 championship flight winner. Others qualify for subsequent flights of eight on a handicap basis.

The event is for both men and women. Match play, starting today (Wednesday) is 18 holes. The championship finals will be 36 holes. Trophies will be awarded in all flights as well as for low medal score.

The tennis tournament, providing competition in men's, women's, boys and girls singles, men's doubles and mixed doubles, is under the direction of George McKay.

Tom Tallman will be master of ceremonies at the cabaret party scheduled Friday evening and is arranging the usual outstanding program of entertainment.

Miss Calla Travis, assisted by Mrs. Tom Darling, are supervising arrangements for the annual masquerade and children's party, one of the Belvedere Club's most brilliant affairs of the summer season.

The boys are going to have a lot of territory to hunt deer in this fall. Leelanau county in northwestern Michigan is the only northern county that will be closed to deer hunting this season. The northern country is all counties north of M-46 from Lake Michigan to Saginaw bay and if you look on your map you'll see that's a whale of a lot of woods. Some reserves which have been closed are open this year also. The bow and arrow boys can hunt anywhere the gun totters do from November 1 to November 15, then the gunning season starts and runs to the 30th. Know some fellows who are already checking the days off the calendar.

That new law limiting the number of lake trout which may be taken by hook and line in one day to five doesn't go into effect until January 1, 1940, so anyone who might have been fratting about it can lay their worries aside for several months yet. Anyway, no one has been botharad a bit this year keeping within the law, and if mackinaw fishing doesn't improve over its present status, they won't have any trouble for years to come.

From people whose experience should well qualify them to know, comes the statement that Charlevoix's auto park is one of the best in 45 of the 48 states in the country which they have visited. Sault Ste. Marie—At this never failing economic barometer for the Middle-West, the world famous St. Mary's locks and canal, boat traffic is more than 40 per cent ahead of last season.

When iron ore and coal are in demand, times are fairly prosperous. There has been no exception.

Furthermore, according to Eugene Herman of Cleveland, editor of the Great Lakes News, who is spending August here, prospects are good for a heavy lake traffic during September and October. Barges are even being recommissioned for service.

That means steady employment this fall for hundreds of thousands of workers in the big industrial centers. When orders for goods are in sight, iron ore is in demand and so, if the actual count of ore boats at the "Soo" locks is an accurate yardstick, then we are enjoying better times, and the trade outlook for Fall is bright, indeed.

Production of fingerling trout at the Grayling state fish hatchery, shown above, will increase materially when remodeling activity now being carried on with CCC assistance is completed. New rearing ponds are under construction, a pump house is being built and grounds are being landscaped. The hatchery, producing principally brook trout, with smaller numbers of brown and rainbow trout, now supplies several million fingerling trout annually for planting in Michigan waters.

CAMP CHARLEVOIX WEEKLY NEWS COLUMN

Edited by Herbert W. Johnson

When the walrus to the carpenter snid, "Let's speak of many things" he had nothing on this writer who is trying to list main activities at Camp Charlevoix for a week. But out of the walrus' words "ships and shoes and ceiling wax" we have a good start with the word "ships".

Some of the senior sailors under the guidance of skipper Tom Hart set sail last Monday for a trip into Lake Michigan and then south along the coast into the Traverse Bay region. They encountered some of the worst weather ever noted on the lake and had many thrilling adventures with wind and waves. Ralph McReynolds distinguished himself by being seasick all the trip, and Fred Matthaei tells one about a wave that swallowed the ship. The boys did sail 60 miles one night, and by compass.

The trip to the Tahquamenon Falls, the most sought after trip of the camp season, also resulted in much fun and excitement for the campers who went along. The boys went by canoes and by truck. When they arrived at the Straits they found they were too large for the ferry and had to be hoisted around on an elevator aboard the thing to finally get placed. Further up, at Newberry, they engaged a driver to take them through the wilds of the peninsula some 7 miles down the Tahquamenon. They they were transported to the top of the "big falls". They spent a day at the top and made the descent the next morning. A beautiful and exciting paddle brought them to the "little falls". After the portage Charlie Marens, expert woodchopper, brought himself down with a slash on the leg. A rapid trip in a canoe and then in an auto brought him to a CCC camp and a skilled doctor. The next day's paddle brought them from beautiful landscape pitted with rocks to the sandy banks of Lake Superior. The truck then arrived and they headed for the Soo Locks where they saw the mechanism in operation. Since returning their lives have been divided between exclamation points and heavy snores.

The climax of the Juniors' camping arrived this week with the section jaunt to Mackinac Island. The campers who went along included Alex Burnstan, Pete Hanson, Jerry Burke, Loring Kampe, Rowland Burnstan, Bill McConkey, Konrad Matthaei, Mont Wickham and Allan Hunting. The boys visited Arch Rock, Sugar Loaf, Fort Mackinac and Fort Holmes. They saw the Grand Hotel and watched the lake steamers with great enthusiasm. Four of the boys were not convinced that Sugar Loaf was a rock and insisted on licking it with their tongues to find out. Ask Alex and Bernie Burnstan about it and Jerry Burke and Bill McConkey!

The Tahquamenon trip, and the Mackinac for the Juniors, are the trips that all the campers look forward to. It has been a practice of the camp for some time to limit the trip to the first 20 boys signed up for camp enrollment. Perhaps this information should be given out under the title "What Every Father Should Know."

Saturday's carnival with all the fellows back in camp was a bright spot. Side shows, games of skill—no chance—and pink lemonade were in order. A sudden rain had a strange effect on Bill Carr, who was the half-man, half-woman, and the "thin man" practically wilted. The midget hasn't been heard of since and probably drowned. The main proceeds of the carnival will be used to take the boys in to see "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" and the balance turned over to a local charity.

Hand-clasps and shouts for the successful horse show that Cowboy Jack Jetton ran on Sunday. A whole hoard of parents and friends were with us, and seemed to enjoy it too. Alex Galton made quite a name for himself with skillful performance on his own horse, "Rinky". The "Chief" did some fine showmanship with his "Cimarron" and Jack Jetton had the crowd on their toes with his performance. Too many of the campers were part of the program for us to list them all. Everyone wns a credit to the riding department, and many of the parents were proud no end. Many thanks to the Charlevoix band that played, too. We can say now that the Camp Charlevoix Horse Show has become an institution.

On Saturday evening a pageantsing was held out in the water aboard the "Alert". Sea chanties were sung under Ken Smith's supervision and skits were presented by Dick Osmer, Dick Toncray, Jim Whittemore and Wiley Hitchcock. The climax of the program was reached with Jean Reimann as "Water Queen" being pulled out of the "Alert" on a lighted barge surrounded with flares. The "singing sailors" were Rowland Burnstan, Bill McConkey, Konrad Matthaei, Mont Wickham, Allen Hunting, Billy Smith, Jim Kendall, Jim Gault, Ned Greenthal, Sandy MacDonald, Jack Kirsch, Dogan Arthur, Howard Van Antwerp, Allen Wright, Doug Stock, Charlie Marcus and John Schilling.

On Monday evening the annual Birthday Party was held for campers who have birthdays during the camp season. The boys had seats of honor and were given gifts by Mrs. Reimann, who had charge of the program. A very lavish birthday cake of many tiers was carried in—and demolished. Tricks and games followed the dinner and the quartet made quite a hit with "We Are the Bums Army". It was all good fun, and Herbie Dow got a comb for a present. It's going to be hard at first, Herbie.

This last week finds many things on the program. Monday is the camper-counsellors ball game; Tuesday the seniors visit Chippewa Trail for a do-jigger with the girls there; Wednesday the campers go in to see "Mr. Chips"; Thursday is the baseball game with Camp Walloon; Friday is the Boxing Show; Saturday evening will bring the last play performance; and on Monday the final Counsel Ring Ceremony with new campers initiated into the Tribe of Charlevoix and honorary mentions given out by the counsellors. On Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock is the final banquet, after which most of the boys will leave on the boats, trains and autos that brought them to this fun-country.

Mrs. Alfred Washburn's sister-in-law and family from Rochester, visited them over the week end, and took back with them some of the famous north Michigan cherries.

Mrs. Cora Dunlap returned last week from the Upper Peninsula, where she visited her sons and also picked some huckleberries. They were found to be rather scarce this year.

Miss Kinney Dawson's condition remains about the same. Mrs. McFee the nurse, in charge, took a day off Friday to move from east of Ellsworth to the Warner building in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Loper and wife of the Torch force, have been ill this week and unable to attend Sunday school at Grand View last Sunday. We missed them, as they are seldom ever absent.

The Philathea class of the M. E. church held a social party in the park Monday evening, with Mrs. Frnnk Hostler and Mrs. Dick Kirby as leaders. Mrs. Kirby was having a time with some lye she got in her mouth while cleaning.

Jerry Ardema has about completed his new barn on his farm. His uncle, Albert Ardema from Chicago, has been doing the carpenter work. Jerry has been doing some tractor farming for Mr. Fales of Flint on the farm at the top of Cook hill.

Greenwood Sunday school was in the lead of the other country Sunday schools last Sunday with an attendance of 34. Mrs. John Clark and Mrs. Quitman Clark have been helping toward increasing the attendance by inviting several new pupils to attend.

Creswell's attendance last Sunday was 27. The Misses Frances Dunmore, Thelma Windle, and Marie and Marvetta Hubbel sang a pleasing song, with Marie taking the alto part. They will sing at Grand View next Sunday, and at Turners in the near future.

The Misses Bullosek, Hubbell and Frances Dunmore, attended the services at Alden last Sunday evening. Miss Lawrenz, who is summering here, was in the choir, and her music was much appreciated. We also noticed Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Mathewson and Louis Mathewson of Mancelona.

Mrs. Kaiser, mother of Mrs. Allen Ardema, the nurse, of Bay View, passed away at her home there Sunday. H. L. Dawson of Ellsworth was funeral director. Mrs. Kaiser was an old resident, until a few years ago, of Mitchel, but lately had been living on the former O. R. Morse farm at Bay View. She will be much missed by relatives and friends.

The 4-H club members sing a song of thanks before each meal at their meetings. It was quite impressive to hear this song sung at Gaylord last week when there was a gathering of 500 boys and girls. There was no swearing, or liquor or tobacco using on the grounds. Bobbie McLachlan of Creswell Sunday school, was in attendance. We did not know of his presence there until we heard his name called on the loud speaker. Two former pupils of the writer, were there, Lloyd Stark of Green River.

If this person is a sample of your citizens' honesty and thoughtfulness, Charlevoix has right to be a very proud city."

The regard in which Judge Parm C. Gilbert is held hy constituents of the 13th judicial district in which he is circuit judge, was exemplified Monday morning by the number of persons present when a life size bust portrait of the jurist was presented the Court by the Charlevoix County Bar Association. It was a fine gesture!

Fire Chief Charles Marshall is quoted as saying copper pennies make mighty poor electric fuse plugs. Charlie claims they are very dangerous and points to numerous fires which have been caused by such a practice to prove his contentions. In other words—it's cheaper to buy fuse plugs than rebuild houses.

VanAllsburg's store front has been dressed up with a new coat of paint a fine lettering advertising the store name. Adds greatly to Bridge street appearance.

From all indications, Charlevoix should have one of its greatest week ends over the Labor Day holidays. The Michigan Kiwanis convention is expected to bring upwards of 600 visitors in addition to the usual heavy holiday patronage. If you haven't listed room accommodations with the Board of Commerce, you should do so at once. It is quite generally granted all accommodations Charlevoix affords will be taken at that time.

MANY ATTENDED CLINIC FOR CRIPPLED CHILDREN

Over Hundred from Four Counties Examined Here Thursday

A total of 110 crippled children from the counties of Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego attended the crippled children's clinic at Charlevoix on August 10.

Of this number 37 attended from Antrim county, 40 from Charlevoix county, 28 from Emmet county and 5 from Otsego county. There were also a large number of x-rays taken which were made by the Charlevoix Hospital.

The orthopedic surgeons in charge were Dr. J. T. Jerome of Traverse City, and Dr. Carl E. Badgley, of Ann Arbor. Also present were Dr. W. S. Ramsey, director of the Michigan Crippled Children Commission and Mrs. Buckley, member of the State Crippled Children Commission.

An attempt is being made at this clinic to classify those children that are in urgent need of care as it will be impossible with the limited funds available to take care of all of our crippled children.

The District Health Department wishes to express their appreciation to all Child Health leagues and other groups of lay people who contributed so generously of their time and assistance to make thia clinic a success.

"Glad" Sunday

Speaker: Dr. Horace A. White. Pastor Plymouth, Colored, Congregational Church, Detroit

Subject:
"The American Negro and His Problems as We See Them in Detroit"

At Ironton: 10 a. m.
At Charlevoix: 11 a. m.

Sunday we will have our annual "Glad" Sunday. It is an event that we have observed for at least eight years. The gladioli make a colorful display as well as expressive of appreciation to our summer guests.

The coming of Dr. White will be quite an occasion. First because he is a Negro minister, and second because of his message. If one wishes to view the Negro situation at first hand don't miss this opportunity of hearing Dr. White Sunday morning at 10 in Ironton and 11 at Charlevoix.

"OLIVER OLIVER" CURRENT PLAYHOUSE SHOW

Next Week's Presentation Is "Love From a Stranger"

The Ironton Playhouse this week is presenting the story of the world's rudest young man; Oliver, whose duplicated name makes up the title of the play, "Oliver Oliver".

The play next week at the Playhouse is reminiscent of "Night Must Fall", in that it concerns a murderer, and depicts him in the midst of his plotting. But "Love From a Stranger", as the play is called, differs from "Night Must Fall" in this respect, that it deals with an entirely different type of man, who moves in a different schere than did Danny, who after all, was just a waif grown up. Bruce Lovell is smooth and polished and clever, and his crimes are motivated by a curious mixture of commercialism and insanity, he is in fact a particularly dangerous type of paranoiac.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT DISTRICT W.C.T.U. FETE

Annual Picoic Held Last Friday io Methodist Church

There was a large attendance at the Lower 11th District W.C.T.U. picnic held here last Friday in the Methodist church dining room, instead of the park, because of unsettled weather.

At the close of the dinner, fifty candles were lighted on a lovely cake made by Mrs. Emma Dickle, honoring Mrs. Annie Saltonstall and Mrs. Lois Campbell, past district presidents, who had been members of the organization for fifty years, and gifts were presented to the two women by Mrs. Gladys Palmer on behalf of the district. Mrs. Campbell gave a few reminiscences, and some original lines composed by Mrs. Louise Hansen for the occasion were sung by Mrs. Hattie Kemp, accompanied by Mrs. Alexander.

Mrs. Elizabeth Bailey of Gaylord conducted a very helpful devotional service. An oration, "Is Slavery Ended", by Miss Florence Palmer of Charlevoix, was well received. Miss Clara Siler of East Jordan, a missionary to India home on furlough, gave an interesting talk on the temperance work in that field. A true-false test on the department work was conducted by the directors.

Mrs. Marguerite Smith of Gaylord, district president, presided. Arrangements were made for a district Alcohol Education Exhibit at the East Jordan Fair, Sept. 5-8, and for the district convention to be held also in East Jordan late in October. A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Lucy Molet and other members of the committee in charge of the affair.

Annual Picnic Tuesday

Sixty young members of the Congregational Sunday school enjoyed the annual picnic at Young State Park, Tuesday. The trip was made by auto and truck, and swimming was the chief amusement. Rev. and Mrs. G. R. Parker, Mrs. George Jardine, Mrs. Charles Heise, Mrs. Harold Withers, Mrs. A. B. Saltonstall, Mrs. Allen Campbell, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Byers also attended as sponsors.

The primary department will picnic in the city park at a later date.

The Charlevoix County Junior Farm Bureau met for their social meeting in the recreational room of the Charlevoix high school on Tuesday evening, August 15. A few games were played, led by C. B. Carey.

An informal business meeting was then held to make plans for our meeting with the Traverse City Junior Farm Bureau group to be held on Wednesday evening, August 16. Mr. Carey reported that we were to meet at Eastport at the old Gleaner's picnic grounds for a pot luck supper at 6:30.

Plans were made for the supper, and for entertainment and transportation to the picnic.

A motion was made by Adolph Ecklund and seconded by Ronald Lyon, that our group send a representative to either the leadership camp the last week in August, or to the officer's training camp in September.

Elsie Hilton, Ive Howe, Cora Matchett and Ed. Vratinina were appointed to serve on a committee to arrange the Labor Day program.

The next meeting will be a business meeting to be held Tuesday, August 30, at the Charlevoix high school.

JULY STRAITS TRAFFIC IS HEAVIER THAN LAST YEAR

Expect Approaching Holiday Week End to Establish New Records

Traffic counts at the Straits of Mackinac continue to indicate a record breaking tourist season for 1939, it was announced this week by the state highway department.

With figures for July now available, the department revealed that traffic transported by the state ferry boats so far this year was 10 per cent above that for the same period of 1938 and 8 per cent above 1937, the previous peak year. State Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner said that there was no reason to believe that the increase would not continue.

During July, the state boats transported a total of 63,258 cars. In July, 1938, the total was 57,489 and in July, 1937, 55,552. This brings the totals for the year to date to 121,528 vehicles in 1939 as compared with 110,480 in 1938, and 112,319 in 1937.

"We believe that the Labor Day week end will see new records established for vehicles transported in a single day or a single week end," the commissioner said. "Unlike other seasons, however, there should be little or no delay. Because of more boats and expanded dock facilities, we will be able to handle the traffic with a minimum of difficulty."

BRADLEY TO MAINTAIN TWO DISTRICT OFFICES

Rogers City and Gladstone Headquarters During Recess

With the adjournment of Congress, Representative Fred Bradley announced the establishment of two offices in the Eleventh District to be open during the off-season; one in Rogers City in charge of Mrs. Anne Cook and the other in Gladstone in charge of his secretary, Joseph A. Sturgeon. Rep. Bradley may be reached through either office.

"It is my intention to visit every part of the district before congress convenes again," declared Rep. Bradley, "in order to learn, first hand, what the people want in the way of legislation."

The Michigan representative is among those who remained in Washington throughout the session to take part in the deliberations of congress. He voted on all important legislative proposals, leaving for trips into the district for speaking engagements before public gatherings only when he believed that he was serving the public interest better thereby. He looks forward to a few days of fishing and boating, enjoying Michigan's lakes and streams and its stimulating summer climate to offset the effects of the national capital's heat and humidity, before undertaking a canvass of the district.

Rep. Bradley's other hobby, flying, will serve a useful purpose when he makes his rounds of the 16 counties which comprise the Eleventh District.

STATE PARK ATTENDANCE IS EQUAL TO LAST YEAR

Mid-season attendance at the state's 56 parks totaled 3,750,000, conservation officials report.

Director P. J. Hoffmaster explained that park officials compute their mid-season figures at the half-way point between the Memorial Day opening and the Labor Day closing.

ROBERT KINNER, NINE, IS DROWNED AT ELLSWORTH

Funeral Services for Former Local Youth Held Last Saturday

Robert Kinner, 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Kinner of Detroit, drowned Thursday, August 4, in Eaton Lake, one mile west of Ellsworth.

The boy with a brother, Tommy, 5, and a sister, Phyllis, 11, was on a raft which capsized in five feet of water when the children crowded to one side.

The younger boy was saved by Phyllis, who was unable to rescue Robert. The body was recovered by Grant Kinner, an uncle, within 30 minutes, but efforts to revive him failed.

Surviving are the parents, eight brothers and sisters, and the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kinner of Ellsworth and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Woods of this city. Funeral services and burial were held here last Saturday.

APPLE ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN IS OPENED

State Commission Uses Radio and Circulars to Boost Product

The first advertising of Michigan apples, by the newly-created Michigan State Apple commission, got under way with a bang this week.

Radio announcements to housewives, featuring Michigan early cooking apples, are being used over all stations of the Michigan Radio Network, and over station WLS to cover the Chicago and Milwaukee territory.

In addition to this, a mailing has gone out to 15,000 selected grocery and fruit stores, in Michigan, Chicago and Milwaukee. This mailing included a bulletin called "The Michigan Apple", outlining the advertising and merchandising plans of the Michigan State Apple commission, and three pieces of window trim and wall display material featuring Michigan Early Cooking Apples.

To carry the message to the wholesale trade, a page was used in the August 5, Annual Apple number, of the Packer, trade magazine of the packing and wholesale fruit, vegetable and produce industry. This magazine page outlined the future plans of the commission for marketing the 1939 apple crop, and asked the support of the distributing end of the apple industry.

BEAR HUNTING BANNED IN CHARLEVOIX COUNTY

Nine Michigan Counties Seek Protection for Black Bear

The conservation commission has announced the closing of Presque Isle, Charlevoix and Mackinac counties to bear hunting this fall. Bans were placed on five other counties previously.

Commissioo Secretary Wayland Osgood said petitions had been received from boards of supervisors in the three counties and the closing orders automatically were granted. Alger, Marquette, Luce, Arenac, Keweenaw and the northern part of Houghton were closed earlier.

Petitions to close counties must be filed with the commissinn before September 1st.

LOCAL COAST GUARDS AT GRAND HAVEN FETE

Four Members from Charlevoix Station Took Part in Program

Four Charlevoix coust guardsmen participated in the annual coust guard water fete program held last week end at Grand Haven.

Robert Sommerville was a member of the Lake Michigan east coast rowing crew which lost by 6 seconds for the district championship to the west shore crew. Frank A. Noonan, Lloyd H. Hulett and Ira Weeden took part in the drills, exhibitions and parade which were features of the program.

Let's Get Together

St. Johns — "Let's get together" might well be the theme of St. Johns city park this summer. Recently it was announced that 51 reservations for family reunions in the park have been scheduled, nine more than at the same time last year. The first one will bring 350 to 400 persons to the park.

'39 DISTRICT SOFTBALL TOURNEY TRAVERSE CITY

Northern Michigan Teams to Compete for Titles August 21-27

The Michigan Softball association has awarded the fifth annual tournament for the twelfth district to Traverse City.

The meet will be held at Thirlby Park the week of August 21 to 27, inclusive, with the finals coming on the last day. This district embraces 17 counties.

Floyd Rose, district commissioner, stated that a total of twenty-three teams have already signed to make the largest tournament held in this region.

From Charlevoix will be Knights of Pythins and Knight Owls; Petoskey, Maus Men's Store, Petoskey Portland Cements, Potts Cleaners, Petoskey Beverage, Zaiger Beverage and Camp Wolverine; Oden Merchants; Harbor Springs, Independents and the Indians; and Cadillac, B. F. Goodrich, Chippewas and Axton. The remaining teams will be completed by the two Traverse City circuits.

Also expected are entries from Cheboygan, Alpena, Mackinaw City, Gaylord and Grayling.

CERTIFIED POTATO TOUR WILL VISIT STRAW FARM

Scheduled There August 23 as Part of Northern Michigan Tour

A stute certified seed potato tour, resumed after 10 years due to increased interest in certified seed potato plantings, will be held August 22-23, according to B. C. Mellencamp, county agricultural agent.

After stops in Otsego and Emmet counties, the tour will visit the W. K. Straw & Sons farm located two miles south of Charlevoix, at 9:45 Wednesday morning, August 23. The tour thereafter continues into Antrim and Kalkaska counties and on to Lake City for the annual Michigan State college field day on Thursday, August 24.

It is pointed out farmers who are able to do so should join the tour and attend the field day program for the information regarding production, marketing, digging and grading which will be available and under discussion and demonstration.

CANNED TOMATO HAS VITAMIN C

Questions as to whether canned tomatoes retain their vitamin C arise with the beginning of the season for putting up the home-raised crop, say members of the home economics extension service at Michigan State college. Women want to know whether the method of canning or the length of time the canned products are stored affects the vitamin C content of the tomatoes.

If canned in the right way, tomatoes lose practically none of this valuable vitamin. They may, however, lose from one-third to one-half their vitamin C if stored for six months or more at ordinary room temperature. But even after this loss, the tomatoes still supply a considerable amount of vitamin C.

The "right way" to can tomatoes, recommended from recent tests by the federal bureau of home economics, is to pack them either raw or preheated into containers, then process them in a boiling water bath. Tomatoes preheated to the boiling point, then packed hot into containers need a shorter processing than those packed raw. Tomatoes precooked and packed hot in pint or quart glass jars will need 5 minutes' processing. Packed raw, the processing time should be 45 minutes.

Processing consists in putting the containers into boiling water in a boiler or bucket that has a tight-fitting lid. This water back has a rack in the bottom so that the water can circulate under the containers as well as between and above them. Water must come up over the tops of the jars or cans from 1 to 2 inches. Processing time is counted from the moment the water comes again to a full rolling boil after the containers are put into it.

We are all asked to join Uncle Sam in a gigantic spending spree. Fair enough, but what shall we use for money?

BEAVER ISLAND POWER PLANT GIVEN APPROVAL

Work to Begin Next Monday on Rural-Electrification Project

The 600 residents of historic Beaver Island Monday stood at the threshold of a new era.

A brief message Saturday from the rural electrification administration headquarters in Washington to LeRoy Hardy, superintendent of the Top O' Michigan REA project, OK'd the building of a plant capable of supplying the entire island with light and power.

Engineers and workmen of the Lewis Electric company, under contract to the REA, began Monday the building of the island project with orders to finish in 30 days.

Formerly, the only electric lights on the island have been at the United States coast guard station there, and in two homes which have small independent plants. In one month electricity will be available in every home on the island and the little town of St. James, once headquarters of the famous Mormon King Strang, will have street lights.

The Washington office also approved the remodeling of a building at the corner of Lake and Vogel streets in Boyne City as permanent headquarters for the Top O' Michigan unit, Hardy said.

FOUR COUNTIES SEEK PROTECTION FOR BEAR

Marquette, Alger, Luce and Arenac Petition Conservation Dept.

Four Michigan counties, Marquette, Alger, Luce and Arenac, have asked the conservation commission to protect bears in their particular areas.

The last session of the legislature removed protection from black bears in the state but authorized the conservation commission to protect bears in specific counties if it considered such action necessary.

The commission has stated that it will protect bears in such counties as make specific requests. Requests must come from the Boards of Supervisors and must be made before September 1. It is expected that a large number of northern counties will ask protection.

Although black bears will be protected when official requests are made, bear hunting will be permitted during the period November 15-30.

MICHIGAN WINERS EXPERIMENTING WITH CHERRIES

Result of Tests May Provide New Outlet for Region's Cherry Crop

Possibility of a new outlet for consumption of Grand Traverse region cherries has been strengthened with the announcement made recently that Michigan wineries are experimenting this year with sweet and sour cherries for beverage purposes.

In these tests being made by wine makers, four varieties are being used chiefly because of their lower cost, with some dark sweets being used to deepen the natural color. The experiment is being observed with much interest by growers, who hope that a new market for large quantities of sour cherries has been found.

During prohibition consumers purchased large quantities of cherries for wine making purposes but this business was lost after repeal.

CHARLEVOIX DISPLAY AT CHICAGO PLANNED

Seek Hay Fever Vacationists Thru Information Bureau Advertising

Charlevoix's attractiveness as a haven for hay fever sufferers, its recreational opportunities such as fishing, golf, tennis, etc., will be portrayed in a window display at the Michigan Tourist Information bureau in Chicago, August 18-24.

Gordon B. Todd, secretary of the board of commerce, is cooperating with hotel managers, owners of trolling camps and other groups in arranging a display to occupy the entire display window of the Chicago information office during that period. Material for the display is now being prepared and will be shipped to Chicago.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

By B. C. Mellencamp

Albert and Bert Elliot's Registered Guernsey Herd Highest in Northwest D.H.I.A.

The annual report of the Northwestern Michigan Dairy Herd Improvement Association for the year ending June 30th, 1939, reveals an outstanding accomplishment by Albert and Bert Elliot, of Charlevoix. Their herd of purebred Guernseys has produced an average of 9455 pounds of milk and 427 pounds of butterfat per cow. This is the only herd of the sixteen who finished the past year that had above the 400 pound mark. This dairy combination has made rapid progress.

It is of more than passing interest to note that this herd was developed from two young animals purchased way back in 1924 by Albert and Arthur Elliott as 4-H club animals. By proper feeding, by the use of high grade sires, and by intelligent selection, this high producing herd has been the result.

Closely following the Elliot's herd, comes George Meggison, of Charlevoix, whose herd averaged 390 pounds of butterfat per cow. No one in the county, over a period of fifteen years, has had the high average production that Mr. Meggison can boast of. In fact, few dairymen anywhere can equal his record of having been in the cow testing association for sixteen consecutive years.

Glancing over the monthly report for July, the first month in the new year, we find Lavern McGhan & Son of Charlevoix led the association with an average of 37.8 pounds of butterfat per cow. Ecklund Brothers of Charlevoix, were well up the list with an average of 32.3 pounds of butterfat. Fred Willis of Charlevoix had the highest rating two year old, an animal producing 37.2 pounds of butterfat. Ecklund Brothers had the two high four year olds producing 53.1 and 46.3 pounds respectively. They also had the highest rating mature cow which produced 60.2 pounds of butterfat.

mortalized hy Henry Wadsworth Longfellow in "Hiawatha."

The international border city is only an hour's easy ride over smooth, wide concrete highway from St. Ignace. First you travel through pine forests, cross a series of hills, and then traverse a fairly level prairieland of prosperous farms in Chippewa county of which the American Sault Ste. Marie is the county seat.

The Michigan city has 15,000 population. Across from the St. Mary's river is the Canadian city of the same name with around 24,000 people. A dime bridge toll charge and you are in Canada.

But getting back to Paul Bunyon. Here is what we discovered:

World's Busiest Canal

In these Lansing days of state deficits, the St. Mary's locks and canal under proper state ownership and management would have been a virtual gold mine of revenue.

Here is the world's greatest waterway, and no fooling!

The three locks of the canal, which has been managed hy the United States government since 1880, serve more water traffic in one year than do the Panama and Suez canals combined. An average of 60 to 85 vessels, mostly ore-carrying freighters, pass through the locks every 24 hours. Modern machinery enables the locks to complete their job in about 13 minutes. The United States engineering department is on the job 24 hours a day, 200 employees working in eight-hour shifts.

The state of Michigan operated the locks from 1855 to 1881, and a toll was charged to cover operating and repair expenses as the state now does for the ferry service at the Straits. Even at the small tonnage in those days, tolls amounted to nearly $800,000.

If the state of Michigan were still in the canal business (shippers are thankful that it isn't), and if tolls were charged at the rate prevailing today for the Panama canal, the state's income would have been over $75,000,000 for 1929 and $31,840,000 for 1933.

Under the 1881 federal act transferring the locks from state to federal ownership, it was provided that the waterway shall be free for public use.

Mecca for Tourists

Sault Ste. Marie is an annual mecca for tens of thousands of tourists, especially during the hay fever season. Because not a rag-weed grows within 100 miles of the Sault, this region is the paradise of the hay fever and asthma victims.

The Sault is almost entirely surrounded by water. The prevailing direction of the wind is from the northwest, off Lake Superior which Paul Bunyon would proudly proclaim is the largest body of fresh water in the world.

The concentration of hay fever sufferers has been so heavy that a national club has been formed—the Ca-Choo club of the Hay Fever association of America, with headquarters here.

Because also of the always fascinating locks, this northern Michigan city has received a heavy influx of tourists. Within the past year tourist cabins have doubled in number, attracting many persons who formerly sought accommodations at hotels or in private homes. The latter two groups are beginning to complain. Modernization of hotel accommodations is said to be the next needed development to keep pace with changing times. Deluxe cabins can be found today in the Upper Peninsula.

Sagas of Early America

Here is a country rich in historical lore.

It was at the Soo that the first white man, Jean Nicolet, stopped in 1634 while on his way to find China.

It was here that Fr. Marquette established the first Christian church in 1668, and it was here that St. Lusson in 1671 in the name of King Louis XIV took over the lands that subsequently became British when nations were in the making.

It was at the Soo also that Henry Schoolcraft, Indian agent, married the daughter of John Johnston, first English settler, and his Indian princess-wife, and later wrote Indian history that gave Longfellow his material for Hiawatha.

In this poem "Bowating" is Sault Ste. Marie and refers to the rapids in the St. Mary's river. "Gitchi Gomee" is Lake Superior.

Michigan's Upper Peninsula is the background for the only sagas which America has mothered — Hiawatha and Paul Bunyon. Paul's birthplace is proudly claimed by the "Soo" whose citizens claim that it was on the old McNerney farm site, just around a bend in the river from Hiawatha's shipyard.

Seven Wonders

As the ancient world is said to possess "seven wonders", so the Upper Peninsula lays claim to seven spots of distinction.

First are the ship locks and canals at the "Soo" which overcome nature's obstacle of a drop of 20 feet between Lake Superior and St. Mary's river in the distance of only a mile or so.

Second is Isle Royale, 50 miles out in Lake Superior and now a federal park that merits the Bunyonesque description of being the "last bit of aboriginal, virgin nature in the Northwest." The National Park service is building docks and a few trails, but the intention is to let Nature alone and keep the island in as primitive state as possible. Here is the America's largest moose herd. Scores of prehistoric mining pits are a puzzle to antiquarians.

Third wonder is the huge copper mining plant of Calumet and Hecla, whose shafts contain some of the deepest telephone and railroad installations in the world. This mine is located in the picturesque Keweenaw peninsula whose rocky shores along Lake Superior rival those of New England for sheer grandeur and rugged beauty.

Fourth wonder are the Porcupine mountains and the Lake of the Clouds, reached from Ontonagon. Here is the highest elevation anywhere in the central west. Mountains in Michigan? Yes, it is true.

The fifth wonder is Tahquamenon Falls in a state park reached only by a boat trip down the river. The visitor drives to Soo Junction (off M-28) and takes a "Toonerville Trolley" to the river at Hunter's Mill. There he boards the Tahquamenon "show boat" for a 20-mile trip to the falls, a 40-foot drop of amber water, the second largest cataract east of the Mississippi river, being rivaled only by Ningara Falls.

Next is Kitch-iti-ki-pi, a big boiling spring near Manistique, called by the Ojibway Indians, "The Mirror of the Evening Star."

The "Pictured Rocks" near Munising complete the series. Near these rock formations along Lake Superior are the Nagow Wudjoo sand dunes in the vicinity of Grand Marais.

Straits Bridge

The "Soo" city, as you might guess, is an ardent booster for the proposed Straits bridge. It would mean much to this border metropolis, regardless of how it might affect the towns of St. Ignace and Mackinaw City. Some persons believe a bridge would ruin both terminal towns which now get a good slice of trade from tourists while they wait for the state ferry boats.

Personally, we always look forward to the restful boat trip across the Straits. It is a genuine tourist attraction, a welcome respite from hours behind an automobile wheel. But it admittedly requires time, and that means a lot to permanent residents in this Upper Peninsula country that belongs to Michigan and thinks in terms of Lansing for its state government.

Are you raising your boy to be president? Whether you are, or not, you'll enjoy reading the article by Frances Cavanah in next Sunday's issue of This Week Magazine, with The Sunday Detroit News. Miss Cavanah has gone back through the life stories of all our past presidents, and found that they were just like your boy—played hookey, got into fights, everything. Don't miss this interesting story, exclusively in This Week Magazine, with next Sunday's Detroit News.

The era of "yellow journalism" has passed, largely because the unvarnished truth these days is lurid enough.

"Mind" will be the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, August 20.

The Golden Text (Romans 11:34, 36) is: "Who hath known the mind of the Lord? or who hath been his counsellor? . . . For of him, and through him, and to him, are all things: to whom be glory for ever."

Among the Bible citations is this passage (Proverbs 3:19): "The Lord by wisdom hath founded the earth; by understanding hath he established the heavens."

LAST PLAYHOUSE BILL ANNOUNCED

CAROLE ARDEN, HOLLYWOOD STAR, MAY JOIN CAST

Plans Made for Reception of Film Player Coming for Part In "Personal Appearance"

It is understood that Carole Arden will arrive in Charlevoix from Hollywood next Tuesday, on the 2:24 train, to appenr at the Ironton Playhnuse in the play, "Personal Appearance", which opens Tuesday night.

Miss Arden will be met at the station by a reception committee composed of Mnyor nnd Mrs. Robert Bridge, Samuel Ach of the Chicago Club, Mrs. John Carpenter and Mrs. Arthur P. Taylor of the Belvedere Club, and a group from the Playhouse, including Gene Benedict, Cherry Hardy, Philip Dakin, James L. Dnggett, Rence Renaud, Robert Russell, and Charles Baker.

The Taylor cruiser, "A'Laise", will be waiting at the city dock to take Miss Arden to the Playhouse.

Pictures in which she has recently appeared include "A Modern Magdalene", and "The Patient in Room 18".

"Love From a Stranger", the current bill at the Ironton Playhouse, is a radical departure from the usual run of light farce that is served to audiences of summer theaters. Written by Frank Vosper from a story by Agatha Christie, it portrnys the final episode in the long cnreer of a murderer who is too clever to be caught by the police, and whose downfall is caused by the fact that his intended victim is a little too intelligent.

A psychological study, the play is like "Night Must Fall" in that it depicts the murderer at his work, and describes his mania, and the mental twists that make him act in such a fashion. Unlike "Night Must Fall", however, this play deals with a polished, educated, shrewd man of the world, where in the other play the character was ignorant, crude and blessed with nothing snve a native, foxish cunning. Bruce Lovell, in "Love From a Stranger", has developed his technique of murder to a point of mechanical smoothness, and the very monotonous workings of this routine are the things that finally give him away.

The final attraction at the Playhouse will be "Personal Appearance", the comedy made famous by Gladys George on Broadway, nnd by Mae West in pictures. This play, opening next Tuesday, the twenty-ninth, for its usual run through Fri-

ASK MOTORISTS COME EARLY FOR LICENSES

New Car Plates Must Be Purchased Before August 31st

An appeal was issued today by Fenton R. Bulow, manager of the branch license bureau in the court house, urging motorists who are drlving with half-year plates to purchase their new plates for the second half of 1939 and avoid the inevitable last minute rush.

According to legislative stntute the deadline for use of half-year plates is midnight, August 31, and there definitely can be no extension of this time limit. Therefore car owners who are operating their vehicles with six-month plates must huy their full plates hy the end of this month or else be subject to arrest for violation of this state law.

Sales at the bureau have been very light recently and officials fear that motorists are waiting for the final few days before buying plates.

SHOT AT RANDOM

By Ken Usher

"Bill" Ochs is making a little pocket money out of a hobby, not to mention giving Charlevoix a nice lot of publicity. "Bill" just recently took a prize in the Grand Rapids Press photo contest. Notice he uses the same subject for his pictures pretty much and will say it's no reflection on his judgment, either.

While speaking of pictures—did you happen to notice one of a former well-known Charlevoixan in last Friday's issue of "Life"? Well, if you didn't, just take another peek and you'll find a picture of Mr. and Mrs. James Bolton of Flint. Mrs. Bolton is none other than the former Dorothy Withers, dnughter of Mr. and Mrs. Monte Withers. The couple recently took a train trip to the west coast and a photographer for Life magazine was on the train taking a grnup of pictures. One taken and printed was of the Boltons peering out the window as the train rolled through New Mexico.

Heard from Loren Hart, a former Charlevoixan, recently. Loren is district manager of the Unemployment Service in Sioux City, Iowa. He has advanced from assistant manager to manager and then to his present position with 10 counties under his control. Loren says he enjoys the home paper, although many of the people in the news now are strange. Would suggest to Loren, if he can, to come home oftener and stay acquainted.

Bet the kids aren't complaining any about the opening of school on September 18. It gives them one more week of summer vacation than customary.

Week end showers certainly made up for the protacted dry spell of August. Over 3 inches of rainfall wns registered at the coast guard station. Farm crops were helped generally and a serious forest fire

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

Copper Harbor, Mich.—Mountains in Michigan?

Yes, it's true.

Thousands of residents of the Wolverine state may scoff at the statement, proof indeed that this strange, vast region of the Upper Peninsula is still the "great unknown."

Here is a country of mechanized mines and many idle workers.

It is n land covered 50 to 100 yenrs ngo by virgin pine forests, now being gradually restored by federal and state agencies.

It contains the cream of Michigan's nntural scenery.

Its people are generous and hospitable. They welcome the traveler, treat him royally, and all for a very good reason. For the tourist business has supplanted the exploitation of natural resources—copper, iron and lumber—as its lending industry.

That is why mountnins in Michigan are going to continue to pay millions of dollars in dividends, regardless of what happens to their mineral content.

Tuesday afternoon of last week, soon after threshers started work at Mr. Slough's, the stack of grain was set on fire by the tractor. By the time anyone could get anything to fight it with the fire had reached the barn and was beyond control. They succeeded in getting the horses out but everything else was destroyed, including all his hay and grain, a new hayloader and the separator. The man in charge of the tractor succeeded in moving it out of the way with only the loss of one tire. He was slightly burned. No one else was hurt. The loss was party covered by insurance.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT

Prenatal Blood Tests

According to health statistics, 60,000 babies are born in the United States each year with congenital syphilis. If treatment of a pregnant woman with active syphilis is started before the fifth month of her pregnancy she has nine chances out of ten of giving birth to a healthy child. Without treatment the child is likely to be stillborn or so diseased or deformed as to require constant care to live at all.

To prevent the transmission of syphilis to babies, many states have adopted laws providing for the blood testing of expectant mothers. The states are California, Iowa, Maine, Michigan, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey and Rhode Island. In Illinois, a blood test proposal has passed the house.

In general, such a measure provides that the physician must take the sample of blood which will be tested without charge hy an approved laboratory. If infection is present, the physician must report the case to the state health department. Some states have established fines up to $500 or imprisonment for failure of the physician to make such report.

This is the next logical step in the attempt to eradicate syphilis, following the general adoption of pre-marital blood tests. There are many arguments in favor of pregnancy tests and none against them.

As Dr. John A. Kolmer points out in a recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical nssociation: The law would lend to the detection of the disease in both married and unmarried women. It would result in a reduction of miscarriages and infant mortality. It would facilitate treatment of the infected mother and of the child after birth. It would moreover, aid in the disclosure and cure of the disease as it might exist in the father and other children.

There should be no hesitancy on the part of expectant mothers in submitting to the test. This is remarkably specific and the so-called "false-positive" reactions do not occur during pregnancy.

Ultimately, it is to be hoped, every state will make legal provision for pre-natal blood tests. But to be really effective, these must be made compulsory. Moreover, some means must be found for isolating and curing infected persons who, otherwise, would refuse or neglect treatment.

The Charlevoix County Junior Farm Bureau met with the Traverse City group Wednesday, August 16, for a picnic at the old Gleaner picnic grounds in Eastport.

The picnic started with a soft ball game in which Traverse was victorious. After the game a pot luck supper was served. After supper games were played around a camp fire on the beach under the direction of C. B. Carey.

CO. FAIR GROUNDS GREATLY IMPROVED

COMPLETE ERECTION OF NEW WIRE ENCLOSURE

Bulldings Reconditioned, Race Track Is Re-Surfaced, Many Other Improvements Made

Citizens of Charlevoix county, as well as surrounding counties will take pride in the improved and remodeled Charlevoix county fairgrounds, when this fall's classic opens officially at East Jordan, Tuesday, September 5th and will continue through a four day exhibition, winding up Friday evening, September 8. A great many improvements and changes have taken place since a year ago, and it is now safe to say that it ranks favorably with any in northern Michigan.

The spacious layout is now encircled by an attractive 6-ft. woven wire fence, bordered along the east side facing M-32, by new plantings of maple, elm, basswood and evergreen trees. Some one thousand of these plantings have been made. For many years the grounds, which are very attractive, have been hidden from the eye of the passerby, by a not-too-well kept up, high board fence.

Probably the most important of the many more improvements, is the repainting and reconditioning of every building structure on the grounds. All buildings have received new all steel roofing and their run down condition remodeled. The poultry shed and old dining hall both have been moved, the latter no longer to remain as a dining hall, having been cut in two and will be used as hog and sheep barns. All three of the above structures are now directly in line with the livestock barns. One of the livestock dwellings has been changed considerably on the interior and will be used entirely for the Jersey Parish Shows which has become a feature of the livestock exhibition.

New buildings erected include a fifty foot wing of bleachers to either side of the grand stand, a racing judges stand, and much needed dugouts at the ball diamond. An entire new lighting system will be put into use this year; all high tension wires having been removed from the midway.

With the leveling of the ground in many places, much more parking space is being provided within the grounds itself. An old traffic problem, which has always existed will be taken care of by the ¾-mile stretch of new road, which follows the back fence around to the speed barn, thus enabling outgoing traffic to leave the grounds without the interference of the incoming.

The newly-surfaced race track is being praised by veteran speed men as being the fastest in this section of the state. It is now fenced all the way around.—Charlevoix County Herald.

The officers for this year's attraction are: President, Jess Smith, Charlevoix; vice president, John F. Kenney, East Jordan; secretary—Charles P. Murphy, East Jordan; treasurer, George Nelson, East Jordan; marshall, Percy Riness, East Jordan.

All improvements have heen handled through a Works Progress Administration project in conjunction with added funds by the fair board.

Churchill Leaves U. P.

Transfer of Boyd Churchill from the Upper Peninsula experiment station to the staff of Michigan State college at East Lansing is effective this month. He receives the title assistant professor and research assistant in farm crops. In part time and since 1933 in full time at Chatham, Churchill is credited with introducing Iogold and Iowa 444 oats, Wisconsin 38 barley and O.A.C. 181 peas in the Upper Peninsula. He proved out other cultural practices in hay mixtures, rutabaga production, alfalfa-molasses silage, weed control, potato grading and Smith-Hughes judging contests. Evart VanderMeulen, graduate of Michigan State college in June, 1939, has been appointed to the Chatham staff.

For Good or Evil? Four Planets Nearer Us Than for Years

Not only ruddy Mars hut spotted Jupiter, ringed Saturn and green-tinged Uranus, with a combined weight many times greater than the other plants put together, now pull more intensely on atmosphere and continents—and maybe influence human minds—it is explained in an article in The American Weekly, the great weekly magazine with the August 27 issue of The Detroit Sunday Times.

"United We Stand," it may be true, but divided we are having a lot more excitement and fun.

Michigan Team Excellent

Michigan's 4-H poultry judging team which competed recently in the World's Poultry Congress at Cleveland shared a rating of excellent with teams from 11 other states. Three other teams were scored superior and 12 other state teams rated a good classification.

Cooperatives Numerous

More than 15,000 farmer-owned and controlled cooperative associations and mutual companies are in operation in the United States, it is estimated by the federal Farm Credit Administration.

SNEATHEN IS NAMED ON CERTIFIED POTATO BODY

Elected at 21st Annual Convention Held at Cadillac

The Michigan spud was scrubbed in constructive criticism Thursday at Cadillac as the Michigan Potato Growers Exchange concluded a two-day, 21st annual convention.

Principal speaker as the program opened was Elmer A. Beamer, state commissioner of agriculture, who stressed the importance of achieving a better grade of Michigan potatoes.

"Michigan dropped from first to 11th place in the quantity of potatoes marketed," Bemaer said.

Adoption of federal standards of grading brought the state back to third place on the national list after trial in 1936 and 1937, indicating that quality was the major factor in potato distribution.

"Consumers are the final judges of any commodity," said C. L. Nash, extension specialist of marketing at Michigan State college. "When the farmer realizes that by improving his product he will sell more at better prices, he will strive for better quality."

At a meeting of the Certified Seed Growers association which held its convention before the potato growers, Harold Bailey, Gaylord, was elected president to succeed Fred Crandell, Bellaire. Peter Weiland, Ellsworth, was chosen vice-president; Lee Sneathen, Boyne City, secretary-treasurer; and Ray Eppler, Petoskey and A. P. Kline, Stephenson, new members of the board of directors.

day with a matinee on Thursday, is the story of a Hollywood movie queen, whose speech and deportment betray her lowly beginnings, and whose frank behavior is the despair of a harrassed business manager. The action takes place in a country town, where the actress' car has broken down. She awaits its repair at the home of a filling station operator, who happens to be handsome and attractive, much to the interest of the actress. Her deceptive interest in the boy's invention, her ingenious methods of losing herself with the boy, and her enormously unsubtle attempts to publicize Super-Fine pictures, Inc. all go to make an extremely funny play that will delight any audience.

AT THE MOVIES

"Stanley and Livingstone"

How Stanley found Livingstone, how the world called the newspaperman "the most colossal liar of his age," and how he later became the greatest hero of his era, is the story of the 20th Century-Fox picture, Darryl F. Zanuck's production of "Stanley and Livingstone." It opens August 27 at the Palace Theatre, an important event for Charlevoix and a notable occasion for all.

Spencer Tracy, twice an Academy Award winner, portrays Stanley. Nancy Kelly, who rose into the front ranks of Movietown with her role in "Jesse James," and Richard Greene, who in a year's time has become one of Hollywood's top romantic stars, are starred with Tracy. Another two-time Award winner, Walter Brennan, heads the outstanding cast.

Bob Burns Stars as 100% American

"Our Leading Citizen," Parnmount's colorful, honest screen treatment of a vital contemporary American problem, will bring Bob Burns back to town in a role which is being hailed as the best of his career. When the picture is presented locally for the first time on August 29 at the Palace Theatre, Bob will be seen as a man who is a lawyer by profession, a philosopher by instinct, a real dyed-in-the-wool, down-to-earth, 100% American character who believes in the principles of democracy, of square dealing with his fellow men.

As in his other starring successes, Bob is once more aided by a grand supporting cast. Numbered among them are Susan Hayward and Joseph Allen, Jr.

"Second Fiddle" Boasts Dazzling Talent

Irving Berlin's new songs, Sonja Henie's sunny brilliance, Tyrone Power's gay romancing, Rudy Vallee's singing and Edna May Oliver's fun—one of the greatest combinations of talent ever gathered for one show is making Irving Berlin's "Second Fiddle" the sensation of the preview critics who have lavished on the 20th Century-Fox film a chorus of praise.

It's something new in screen entertainment, this film which will open at the Palace Theatre on August 30.

"Star Maker" Features Bing Crosby

Local lovers of the grand kind of entertainment dispensed by Bing Crosby on screen and radio can look forward to seeing Bing in a picture which really measures up to his talents when Paramount's "The Star Maker" opens on September 1 at the Palace Theatre.

The new Crosby vehicle, which might readily be termed a singing cavalcade of show business, gives Bing the best role he has ever had. It casts him as a tin pan alley song writer, a small time hoofer who believes that he can rise to the top in show business by taking talented kids from the sidewalks of New York, and building them into great acts.

State Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner ordered construction halted on all highways where traffic was continuing to move over roads under repair or replacement. District engineers were directed to inspect all highwnys for hazards which might be eliminated. All gravel highways will be dust-proofed before the holiday.

Olander asked all motorists to begin observance of regulations which will become law September 29. This law makes it a misdemeanor to cross the centerline on a four-lane pavement or cross into the center lane of a three-lane highway except when passing.

This joint state police-highway department safety program was put into action over the July 4 week end. Over the four-day holiday period, 12 persons were injured fatally. The toll for the same days of the previous year was 31.

Farmers Keeping Farm Accounts to Receive Follow-up Visit Week of August 28th

John Doneth, from the farm management department of the state college, will spend Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, August 28, 29, 30 and 31, in the county in making follow-up visits to some fifty farmers who are keeping farm account records.

A schedule is being developed which will permit spending one hour with each co-operator. Most important of all is the fact that the summary will be discussed with the co-operator. This indicates the activity in all farm departments. It shows what farm enterprises have most profitably been carried on and where emphasis should be placed in improving others.

Charlevoix county has always been near the top in the number of farmers interested sufficiently in their own business to keep accurate farm records. The fiscal year started the first of March so this visit comes at about the half way mark.

Child Care and Training Project is Being Organized

A project in child care and training is available to all interested mothers who will organize local groups and select local leaders to receive the four lessons given by Alice Hutchinson, specialist from Michigan State college.

Already one group is being organized in Boyne Falls and three others in Boyne City. During this week the ladies in East Jordan and Charlevoix will be assisted with their organization of local groups. The home economics division at the college offers to Michigan mothers four different projects. These are "The Growing Child", "Character-Building", "Successful Family Life", and "The Adolescent in the Family". Somewhat later the various groups will decide which one of these four projects they desire to study or what combination of each will be grouped together for the four lessons.

If you are interested in this project and have not as yet been contacted, kindly write or telephone the extension office in Boyne City for further details. We are extremely anxious to organize eight or nine groups throughout the county for this instruction.

tarry with me for an interesting sidetrip near Newberry—to the Tahquamenon Falls.

In this feverish age of hurried tourist travel when the American tourist spends much of the day behind an automobile wheel and expects to see the scenery at stops of an hour or so, the trip to the Tahquamenon Falls is delightfully old-fashioned. Its slow pace may be accidental, but nevertheless it is a positive asset.

You drive your car over M-28 between Sault Ste. Marie and Newberry to a spur highway going north to Soo Junction.

On an old narrow guage lumber railway line the famous "Toonerville Trolley" — two gasoline pusher engines, a couple of flat cars, and a string of open sight-seeing wagons on wheels—transports you lazily to the Tahquamenon river. Although the distance is only four and one-half miles across a blueberry marsh and cut-over pine land, the trolley requires nearly an hour. What's the hurry, anyway?

At the wide river you board a spacious two-deck "showboat", the Betty B, propelled by modern twin motors, and in dreamy comfort travel by water through a hardwoods forest for around twenty miles. That takes two hours and a half.

A brisk walk over a woods trail to the falls. Ninety minutes' time to view the second largest cataract east of the Mississippi, and then you're on your way leisurely back to the Soo Junction. The trolley leaves at 10 a. m.; it returns at 6:30 p. m.

We saw seven deer from the boats. On the day before the trolley party was startled with the sight of a bear running for cover.

Captain Joe Beach of Newberry, a former game warden, has developed this trolley-showboat trip into an ace tourist attraction. Two trips daily are planned for 1940.

Marquette on the Lake

Heading toward the Copper Country the traveler arrives at Marquette, a prosperous industrial center on Lake Superior which is less dependent on tourists and mining than most of the Upper Peninsula cities. North of the city is Sugar Loaf mountain with a blazed trail over which venturesome tourists may climb to obtain a breath-taking view of forests and islands.

Nearby are prominent iron mining towns such as Negaunee and Ishpeming.

To the east of Maarquette is Munising, well known for its "Pictured Rocks." Travelers may inspect a pulp mill of the Munising Paper company which consumes Canadian logs rafted across the lake each spring, and also a woodenware plant operated by the Piqua-Munising Woodenware company. An Upper Peninsula meeting of the Michigan Press association will be held at Munising on September 9 and 10.

At the lower tip of the Keweenaw bay is L'Anse, enterprising hub of Henry Ford's hardwood lumber holdings. One of the Ford boats, "Green Island", has a retracting stack and house which are lowered to clear bridges on the Erie canal between Buffalo and Albany. Lumber shipments are shipped by water from L'Anse to the Atlantic seaboard for sale on the open market.

More than 1,000 persons, employed by the Ford Motor company, dwell in model villages in the vicinity of L'Anse.

Houghton, Copper Capital

At Houghton and Hancock the United States government is spending three million dollars to improve the ship canal through Portage Lake, connecting Lake Superior with Keweenaw bay. The canal is being widened and deepened to accommodate large freighters.

Although Houghton has less than 4,000 population, it is the retailing center for a vast mining empire. The Houghton Mining Gazette, a morning daily, delivers more papers in Calumet (a city of 16,000) than does the Calumet News-Journal, an afternoon daily. Calumet, likewise, is a small municipality, actually being made up of a dozen or more villages having such unique names as Red Jacket, Yellow Jacket, Blue Jacket, and Raymbletown (which was renown in prohibition days for its moonshine.) Mining companies preferred to organize their own towns for taxation purposes.

The Calumet region once had 40,000 inhabitants; today, it has 16,000. When Michigan's automobile centers were booming, Calumet people departed by the trainloads. Detroit, for example, has a large Calumet "colony."

Mechanization of the copper mines, together with sinking of shafts to unprofitable deep levels and the low price of copper itself, brought widespread unemployment to the copper range. Old deserted mining towns present a picture that is strange to the average inlander. Contrast to this are well-filled theaters and taverns.

Brockway Mountain Drive

The Keweenaw peninsula is literally packed with scenic grandeur.

After traveling through numerous mining towns, most of them situated in a valley between two ranges of hills, you arrive at Eagle Harbor on Lake Superior and soon start ascending the Brockway mountain drive.

Devoid of billboards, hot dog stands and gasoline stations, the drive sweeps around and over the Keweenaw mountains, giving you a double view of forests and lake on one side and a rocky, forested shore line of the blue Lake Superior.

When the atmosphere is clear, you can see Isle Royale, 50 miles away.

A sleepy fishing village, Copper Harbor, comes into sight, and adjoining it is the million-dollar Keweenaw Park, built by the WPA in the depression days when most of the county inhabitants were on relief. Instead of keeping the jobless miners on a dole, the government put them to work creating a model tourist park from amid a wilderness. A clubhouse, cabins and a nine-hole golf course were constructed and then handed over to the county highway department to maintain.

Harold Wescott, aviator and proprietor of the Pontiac Resort at Copper Harbor, told us that more than 70 cabins are now available for tourists. This region is especially lovely in the fall between September 15 and October 1 when frosts turn the forest foliage into riotous gay hues of reds and yellows.

Lake of the Clouds

Within an easy drive from Houghton is Ontonagon at the edge of the Ottawa National forest and adjacent to the Porcupine mountains.

Ontonagon is enjoying a belated boom. Seven miles of streets are being paved. Many new homes have been built this season.

The state highway department is constructing several rustic bridges, the upper parts consisting of logs, on the Porcupine drive which skirts Lake Superior going as far west as the Lake of the Clouds. There the road terminates with a turn-around. Someday it will be pushed west along the lake shore through virgin white pine tracts to the vicinity of Ironwood with connecting roads to Duluth.

Guided by Claude Riley, publisher of the Ontonagon Herald, we climbed "Porky", abetted by a firm staff, and viewed the Lake of the Clouds. This body of water is cupped between two ranges of rolling mountains.

"This region has great tourist possibilities," enthused Riley. "But the average tourist doesn't know what to look for. We need rustic signs to guide the traveler over trails. We must acquaint the visitor with our historical lore as well as our scenic lure. The NYA is starting a sign project here, and James Jamison, former deputy auditor general, is supplying the wording for them."

Lake of the Clouds was formerly known as Carp Lake, an abbreviation for Escarpment lake, so named because of a high stone bluff on the mountain from which hikers obtain a rare vista of distant mountains.

SPEED SOLVES SUMMER STAINS

There's a cure for most summer stains if they are treated without delay.

A portion of a Michigan State college bulletin, "Modern Laundry," Extension Bulletin No. 184, is devoted to methods of removing various stains from clothing. Typical summer mishaps occur with fruits and beverages, ice cream, mildew, rust, grass green, scorch, and perspirntion.

Quick action is the first requisite with any sort of stain. It's best to take out spots immediately, or at least, before laundering the article, for hot water and soap will set several kinds of stains hopelessly.

Sugar and starch spots yield readily to gentle sponging with plain cool water. Carbon tetrachloride is valuable for taking out grease and oil stains.

Glycerin should be used first with stains containing tannin. And boiling water poured from a teakettle held 3 or 4 feet above the stained area, the cloth being stretched over a bowl and held with a rubber band, will usually carry off new grape juice and fresh berry stains.

Peaches, pears, and plums contain tannin, as do tea, coffee, ginger ale and other soft drinks, beer, tobacco, and damp leather. Tannin stains will be set by heat, alkali, and age. Except for stains from coffee containing cream, articles stained by any of the foregoing should be soaked first in warm glycerin. If necessary after rinsing, repeat.

If coffee has cream in it, sponge the spot first with carbon tetrachloride. Then pour boiling water from a height as for grape or berry stains.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY

Sunday morning service, 10:45.

Sunday school, 12 o'clock.

Meets first Wednesday evening each month at 7:45 p. m.

Reading room open Saturday, 3 to 5 p. m.

We cordially invite the public to our service and reading room.

"Christ Jesus" will be the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, August 27.

The Golden Text (John 1:14) is: "The Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father,) full of grace and truth."

Among the Bible citations is this passage (Isaiah 52:7): "How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, the publisheth peace; that bringeth good tidings of good, that publisheth salvation; that saith unto Zion, Thy God reigneth!"

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 333): "The advent of Jesus of Nazareth marked the first century of the Christian era, but the Christ is without beginning of years or end of days."

situation alleviated throughout the north.

Here's good news for housewives, and perhaps husbands, too. The Courier's annual cooking school is scheduled again this year on September 15 and 16. Don't miss it!

"Uncle" Mike Schradzki reports Mr. and Mrs. Harry Goldstein of Peoria, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. Abe Frey of St. Louis, Mo., took a catch of 32 wall-eyed pike, bass and one rainbow from a northern lake recently. The catch was one of the largest of the season taken from that lake, they reported. The event was celebrated with a big fish dinner at the Goldstein cottage on Dixon avenue.

And while on the topic of fish, I might mention the fact that fishing is on the "up" right at home. Saw a nice steelhead, apparently one of the advance guard of the annual fall "run", brought in Tuesday noon. The boys say they've really started hitting. Lake trout fishing has improved greatly, too, and bass catches have been better than average all through the summer. After spouting about the catch referred to in the above paragraph, wouldn't dare stick my head outside without doing a little boosting for our home waters.

FAMOUS TRICK SHOT IS TO APPEAR HERE AUG. 31

Claude Parmelee, Winchester Expert, Sponsored by Wood Brothers

Sportsmen of Charlevoix will have an opportunity to meet and see Claude Parmelee, nationally known Winchester exhibition shooter and hunter-photographer, in an exhibition at Mt. McSauby, Thursday, August 31 at 2 p. m., under auspices of Wood Brothers hardware.

Parmelee, a northern Michigan woodsman and Canadian big-game hunter, is one of the fastest and most deadly shots in the United States. He comes from Iron Mountain, Mich. His exhibition with his favorite rifle —the Model 71 .348 caliber Winchester—is one that will long be remembered. Aerial targets such as oranges, small wooden blocks, potatoes, brickbats and even walnuts, are pulverized and blotted out in flight as fast as they are thrown in the air.

Complete information is available to hunters on big-game hunting. Parmelee will give an exhibition at the Kiwanis Pioneer Celebration the same afternoon at Camp Charlevoix and will be at Wood Brothers store in the morning to meet hunters and answer questions.

TROUT FISHERMEN HAVE TWO WEEKS FOR ANGLING

SEASON FOR DUCK HUNTING IS FIXED

FORTY-FIVE DAY PERIOD FOR MICHIGAN HUNTERS

Season Opens October 1st, Closes November 14—Other Regulations Are Outlined

The biological survey has ordered a 45-day duck hunting season for 1939 for the second consecutive year and postponed the season opening in 27 states.

The biological survey issued regulations governing the hunting of waterfowl and field birds throughout the United States in accordance with the migratory bird treaty with Canada and Mexico.

The duck hunting season will begin October 1 in Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Vermont and Wisconsin.

It will begin three weeks later in the intermediate zone made up of California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Jersey, New York (including Long Island), Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Utah, Washington, West Virginia and Wyoming.

The general condition of waterfowl throughout the country, the bureau said, is showing "improvement" but populations are still below those of a decade ago.

The bureau continued the regulation against the use of bait or live duck and geese decoys, placed a three shell limit on repeating shotguns and limited shotguns to those not larger than No. 10 guage.

The daily bag limit on ducks is 10 and the possession limit 20. When any daily limit includes canvas back, red head, bullie head and ruddy, not more than three of any one, or more than three in the aggregate of these types may be taken.

No more than two days' bag limit may be transported in any one calendar week out of the state in which taken.

Waterfowls and coots may be hunted from 7 a. m. to 4 p. m. The bag limit on coots remains at 25. Persons over 16 must have the $1 federal migratory bird hunting stamp obtainable at postoffices.

The survey prescribed the hunting season for doves in specific counties in most southern and intermediate states. It also specified the seasons on band tailed pigeons, woodcocks, rails and galinules.

FAMOUS ENTERTAINER IS AT THE ARGONNE

Engagement of Karston, Prominent Magician, Is Announced

The Argonne, Charlevoix's popular entertainment place located on US-31 north of the city, has engaged the services of the highest paid entertainer ever to appear in any night club or resort in northern Michigan.

This fact was revealed through announcement by W. J. Kerns of the appearance for an indefinite engagement of Karston, whom thousands of persons the world over have both heard of and seen, and who is known the country over as having the fastest pair of hands the world has ever known.

He presents one of the most unusual types of entertainment on record. While at a patron's table, he reaches into mid-air and catches living pigeons from nowhere. While holding cages containing birds, he makes them disappear in thin air and this takes place while he is surrounded on all sides by spectators. He can cause a table to dance around as if alive.

Mr. Karston is not to be confused with the average so-called magician. His work is purely digital dexterity, using unprepared articles. His skill is attested in the fact he played three months as a feature attraction at the famous Pallndium Theater in London. Last season he played nine solid months in America's leading theaters.

When The Argonne management learned Mr. Karston was vacationing in the north, no stone was left unturned to obtain his services. Mr. Karston's first appearance will be Thursday evening, August 24th, and nightly thereafter except Tuesday.

CAMP CHARLEVOIX WEEKLY NEWS COLUMN

Edited by Herbert W. Johnson

The finishing touches to the Camp Charlevoix season, 1939, rounded out for all the campers a good 8 weeks of fun and frolic, with some good honest development thrown in.

The Green and Grey banquet was held on Friday evening with the victorious Greys in seats of honor while the Greens played hosts. Toasts—the camp kind—were given to the winners, the losers and to the whole party. Engraved over the fireplace the Greys made themselves another niche for the season '39. Allen Wright and Dave Bennett seemed to be having a grand time of it, and we saw Doug Stock trying to smuggle a second on the ice cream.

On Saturday afternoon a mile swim was held for the campers, and most of the boys swam it easily. Wiley Hitchcock came in first with Charlie Bachman close behind. Ken Vincent was in the lead as was that old walrus, Dogan Arthur.

Saturday evening was the time for the final play performance in the clubhouse. "A Morality Play for the Leisured Class" was given by Wiley Hitchcock and Herbie Johnson followed by scenes from "The Green Pastures." The thespians who were very excellent, were Jean Reimann, Joe Craig, Dick Osmer, Dave Bennett, Bob Welman, Ken Smith, Konrad Matthaei, Bernie Burnstan, Bill McConkey, Mont Wickham, Allen Hunting, Billy Smith and Ken Vincent. Dick Osmer rated a diamond studded horseshoe by beginning to smoke a cigar by biting off the wrong end. Haven't you ever been in back of the barn, Dick?

Monday evening served time for showing of some darn good slides that Don Horton had taken of camp, in colors. Some of the boys are aiming for Hollywood now and technicolor. Dick Toncray gave a showing of pictures taken on his trip recently, and they were well received. Who will ever forget his "Quiet, Koebel"?

Tuesday evening the final Council Ring Ceremony was held, and a very interesting and colorful ceremony it was. The boys were given honorable mention in activities in which they had shown the most growth. Some of the boys rated in as many as 9 activities, others are on the way up. All the campers had an excellent opportunity to develop under the skilled staff if they really wanted to—and most of them did.

The final banquet was better than ever, and John Schilling and committee deserve no little praise. The whole program was well planned and received. We saw many of the friends and parents back again; and some have again suggested that we run a camp for grown-ups too. Guess "Chief" feels that the campers are enough responsibility!

By this time the boys are at home or in various places throughout the country. "Chief" and Mrs. Reimann will stay on at Charlevoix to entertain the Kiwanis Convention, Doc Weaver is headed for his home in the southland, Dick Osmer is on to New York, Ken and Mrs. Smith are somewhere in the Cape Cod region, John Schilling is vacationing on the northern peninsula, Wiley Hitchcock and Herb Johnson will see you at the World's Fair—or will it be Camp Charlevoix—1940?

MEETING OF CAMP OWNERS IS CALLED

DISCUSS SANITATION AT HIGH SCHOOL, SEPT. 7TH

Operators of Charlevoix, Emmet, Otsego, Antrim Counties Meet With Health Officials

In inspecting the resort in District Health Unit No. 3 it has been frequently found that many camp and resort owners have made expenditures on camp sites, water supply and sewage disposal that have later had to be altered for public protection.

In order that the local health department may be of service to these resort operators a public meeting has been arranged for all camp and resort owners of Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties which will take place in the high school auditorium at Charlevoix on Thursday, September 7, to begin at 9:45 a. m. The program will be handled under the direction of John M. Hepler, associate director of the bureau of engineering, and LaRue Miller, assistant sanitary engineer, both of the Michigan Department of Health.

The program will be on the following subjects: Resort Sanitation, Selection of Sites, Water Supply, Sewage Disposal and Establishment of Standards.

The meeting will recess at noon for lunch and resume promptly at 1:30 p. m. This is an opportunity for all camp and resort owners to enter into discussion with state engineers on their problems, as a discussion will follow each one of these subjects. Since the system of rating will probably be changed for this coming season, it is to their advantage to be present at this meeting.

FIFTH ANNUAL COOKING SCHOOL SEPT. 15-16

Courier Brings Mrs. Helene Sailer for Another Two-Day Event

Under sponsorship of the Courier, a two-day cooking school will be conducted here on Friday and Saturday, September 15 and 16, by Mrs. Helene Sailer, noted home economist and head of the Helene Sailer School of Cooking and Home-making.

Classes will be held Friday afternoon and evening and Saturday afternoon at the high school gymnasium and women are asked to attend each session as entirely different programs will be presented each day. There will be no admission fee to the school and, in addition, free gifts will be distributed each day. The only requirement for winners of gifts is their attendance at the school sessions.

Housewives of Charlevoix and vicinity are asked to keep the date in mind and plan on attending the instructive sessions.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Warner and two children and Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Warner and daughter, were Sunday evening callers at the Clyde Smith home.

Mrs. Stewart Smith returned to Detroit after spending some time with her parents and helping to care for her mother, Mrs. Ed. Boss, who is somewhat improved in health.

CENTRAL LAKE

Gifant M. Mudge and wife of Detroit came Friday and are visiting relatives and friends in Central Lake. They are stopping at their cottage on the west side of Torch lake.

Elver Carrol and wife of Detroit were visitors over the week end with relatives and friends here and at Boyne City. They were in attendance at the funeral of Mrs. Orley Burlew of Boyne City last week, whose death occurred at that place recently.

Quitman Clark and family of Detroit are visiting, and the former Rena Carrol, now Clark, visited a short time here, after attending the funeral of Mrs. Burlew. Quitman Clark has been building a little cabin on his farm at Greenwood, west of town, and expects to spend a part of his summers here.

Norton Pearl, who has been summering at his resort cottage at the head of Torch lake, at Eastport, leaves this week for Detroit, where he is principal of the high school. His family will not leave for the city until about the 18th, when school starts. He tells us that school is delayed on account of children's sickness in Detroit.

Arvel Thompson and wife of Pontiac are visiting for two weeks at Central Lake, with relatives and friends. He has a position as photographer in that place. He was a former teacher at Bay View and different schools of the county. He expects to take a picture of the Grand View Sunday school some time in the near future.

A visit with the DeWaters family of East Jordan to Charlevoix "the beautiful" last week, found the city really beautiful. Since the recent rains lawns and shrubbery and flowers are at their best. Earl Young, whom we visited, could hardly find a small farm or home in country or city for sale. About every available place seemed to be occupied.

Greenwood school yard has been mowed and the building is in fine shape, and Paul Loui-elle has repaired the organ. Grand View has put in some fine mantle lamps, and Creswell, electric lights. Sunday school people should be careful to keep these fixtures in as good condition as they are at present, as we certainly appreciate the use of these school houses.

The Walter Anderson family of Creswell, Forest Dewey of Ellsworth, Mrs. Hattie Densmore and daughter of Detroit, Mrs. Nellie Emery of Turner district, Albert Dawson of Bellaire, Chas. Dawson and family of Detroit, and Hiram Dawson and family of Ellsworth, and Mrs. Ladema Chellis of Detroit were called here Saturday on account of the funeral of Miss Kinney Dawson.

Ed. Jones has a very pretty farm at Norwood. Mrs. Jones has some very fine shrubery and beautiful flowers that Mr. Jones says she makes him take care of. He says his brother-in-law, Melville McPherson, is a likely candidate for governor next year. We recently saw the home of Mr. McPherson at Lowell, now cared for by his son Donald. Mr. McPherson also has a fine summer home.

Home grown peaches are now on the market at as low as $1 per bushel. There appears to be an abundant supply this year. We saw a fine field of radishes on the Frank Matchet farm in Charlevoix county last week. A fine view of Lake Michigan and the surrounding country is obtained from there. Mrs. Matchet, as Gertie Sprick, was a former pupil at Mapleville, Antrim county, school. Her twin daughters are about the same age as she at the time of attending school. One son has been a 4-H club worker and another is now taking the work and was at Gaylord camp.

The funeral of Miss Kinney Dawson of Bay View was held at the Sydney Dawson residence there last Saturday afternoon on the lawn. Rev. Rector of Central Lake preached the sermon. Miss Dawson was a fine Christian character, and will be greatly missed by relatives and acquaintances to whom she has been a friend for many years, having resided in the same neighborhood since her birth. She was a momber of the Central Lake Methodist church for many years. She was of a home-loving disposition and never was away from her place of abode very much. She, with her brothers and neighbors, attended Sunday school for many years at Bay View, when Joshua Mudge was superintendent, and she taught a class in Sunday school. She often attended Epworth League, of which she was a member in Central Lake. After the death of her mother several years ago, she kept house for her brother Sydney, and later was helped in this by Mrs. Lester Dawson. Miss Dawson passed away at her home Wednesday, August 23, 1939, at the age of 68 years. Her suffering had been great for the past six months, but she bore it all cheerfully, and loved to visit with relatives and friends who called, and was conscious almost up to the time of her death. Mrs. McFee deserves much credit for her services as nurse during the illness of Miss Dawson.

CALAMITY

This morning when we turned on the water faucet, only a hollow sound of air pressure in the pipes resulted, but not a drpo of water. Workmen outside were repairing a leak and had temporarily shut off the water.

But what a sudden inconvenience, if not a calamity, it became. No water for washing, for bathing, for cleaning, for drinking, for cooking! There were a thousand little things suddenly that needed water for their doing. They weren't unusual tasks either. Every day one does the dishes, changes water in the flower vases, brushes one's teeth, cleans a table top and scours a sink; all little unimportant things, but how big they seem when they're all left undone for want of water!

It makes us pause in our thoughtless routine and appreciate the other man's job. The efficiency of the local water department is not truly appreciated "until the well goes dry."

TIGERS-RED SOX GAME TO BE BROADCAST FROM THE CITY PARK FRIDAY

Local citizens will get a chance to see as well as hear a baseball broadcast here Friday (September 1) when an actual play-by-play description of a big-league game is presented from a specially built platform at City Park in Charlevoix.

Marking a new high in novel entertainment, the unique broadcast has been made possible through the efforts of the State Kiwanis Committee, which has made arrangements with the Socony-Vacuum Oil Company to have their special broadcast car brought to Charlevoix.

A play-by-play description of the Detroit-Boston Red Sox game will be received by wire direct from Briggs Stadium in Detroit and will be re-created from the special car by R. J. McDowell, with the assistance of R. Pepin and Carl Merz. The three men, who are employees of the White Star-Ohio Division of the Socony-Vacuum Oil Company, are expected to pack plenty of thrills and action into the "long-distance" broadcast.

COUNTY PICNIC PROGRAM READY

Promptly at 1:30 the District Farm Bureau will sponsor a program featuring the appearance of Clark L. Brody, executive secretary of the Michigan State Farm Bureau and member of the State Board of Agriculture. All through America farmers are celebrating the occasion of the 20th anniversary of the American Farm Bureau and this picnic will be the occasion for this district. Following Mr. Brody, a fifteen minute floor show will be put on by the Junior Farm Bureau members. This will be filled with surprises.

At 2:15 a big boxing program will be staged featuring at least five well-matched, three-round bouts. Local boys will be the contestants but all have had golden glove tournament experience and can maintain a rapid pace. At 3 o'clock comes a baseball tangle between Barnard and the Boyne Falls Independents. This will be a hardball game and should be a closely contested battle.

The county 4-H club exhibit will again be featured. This year a larger exhibit is planned. Over forty head of young dairy stock will be exhibited by the young dairymen. Fully five hundred quarts of fruits, vegetables, meats, and jellies will be displayed by sixty canning club members. In addition a large exhibit of muffins, cookies and cakes will be shown by the food preparation project members. These exhibits will be located on the east end of the picnic grounds and will be judged by competent judges. As an added attraction, Clare McGhan and Lawrence Ecklund, Charlevoix, will give their quality milk demonstration with which they won a trip to the State Fair at Detroit.

MAIL FROM ENGLAND ARRIVED HERE IN 3 DAYS

Instance of Delivery Is Made Known by Postmaster J. M. Foster

We learn with no little surprise from Postmaster J. M. Foster, that a letter mailed from London, England, on August 26, was delivered in Charlevoix three days later on August 29th.

The letter came by Atlantic Clipper to the United States and airmail to its destination. That's quicker than mail is sometimes delivered between Charlevoix and Boyne City, a distance of only 18 miles.

Postmaster Foster further announced that Clipper planes leave this country every Saturday and Wednesday and that postal rates across the Atlantic to any European destination are 30c for each half ounce.

TURNING A PHRASE

We believe the phrase, "Third Termites", used in reference to that crowd which would promote Roosevelt for a third term, is the most expressive yet. It tells all by inferring the same qualifications to these people as the famed ant which bores from within until the house crumbles and falls in dust.

4-H Dairy Judging Contest at County Fair on Wednesday, Sept. 6

Many features connected with the Charlevoix County Fair to be held at East Jordan on September 5, 6, 7 and 8, will certainly attract a great deal of attention. Sponsored by the Jersey Breeders association, a 4-H club judging contest will be conducted on Wednesday forenoon, September 6th, beginning promptly at 10. All members of 4-H dairy clubs throughout the county are urged to enter this contest and compete for five prizes. The first prize will be a new halter furnished by the American Jersey Cattle Club. Second prize will be a year's subscription to the Official Jersey Breed publication.

Come and see the 4-H club exhibits in the administration building. In addition to the usual exhibits of canned goods, clothing, handicraft and crops, you will see a splendid display of muffins, cookies and cakes made by the food preparation club members. You will be surprised to see the fine work completed by this young group of boys and girls thruout the county.

The Jersey Parish Show will again represent the highest quality purebred Jerseys found throughout this district. Antrim, Charlevoix and Emmet counties will assemble a fine group of animals. Don't forget to visit the other departments, each filled to capacity.

SALT FOR SAVOR, GOOD COOKS SAY

Good cooks, they say, are known by their judicious use of seasonings. Of all the seasonings, one of Michigan's mined products, salt, is the most important.

Even when salt is not listed among the ingredients, the good cook adds a little, anyway. For salt improves the flavor not only of practically all vegetables, cereals, meats, nuts and eggs, but of some fruits, candies and beverages as well.

Here are some salt usages suggested by the extension service in home economics of Michigan State college.

Vegetables are cooked in water that is lightly salted from the beginning. While frying or broiling meat, salt should be added after cooking, since it tends to draw out the juices of the meat. But a meat roast can lose very little juice this way because the proportion of exposed surface is comparatively small. So a roast may be salted before it goes into the oven.

Foods such as corn-starch puddings, cooked cereals and fruits need a bit of salt to bring out the "natural" flavor of the starch. In a recipe for yeast bread, this amounts to about ½ a teaspoonful to a cup of flour. For biscuits, about 1/3 teaspoonful to a cup of flour; for muffins and griddle cakes slightly less. The standard amount of salt to use in cooked cereals like rice, oatmeal or corn meal is 1 teaspoonful to a quart of water.

Skillful cooks add a few grains of salt to cooked fruits and fruit drinks, cocoa, milk shakes and other beverages. Because salt seems to make "sweet things sweeter," it should always be included in candies, cakes, ice creams and sweet desserts. Sometimes the cake shortening contains salt. If not, from ¼ to ½ teaspoon of salt is enough for the ordinary cake recipe calling for one to two cups of sugar.

City of Charlevoix,
Charlevoix County, Michigan.

The United States of America hereby offers to amend the contract created by the acceptance by city of Charlevoix, Charlevoix county, Michigan, on January 3, 1939, of the offer made by the United States of America and dated December 27, 1938, by striking out, in Line 8 of Paragraph 1 of said offer, the figures "$29,025" and inserting in lieu thereof the figures "$31,846".

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

Resolved Further, That the city clerk be, and hereby is, authorized and directed to send to the Public Works Administration three certified copies of the proceedings of the common council in connection with the adoption of this resolution, setting forth this resolution in full, and such further documents or proofs in connection with the acceptance of said offer as may be requested by the Public Works Administration.

Adopted at a regular meeting of the common council held in the council rooms in said city on the 28th day of August, A. D. 1939, by aye and nay vote as follows: Ayes—Aldermen Bellinger, Hallett, Heise, Hooker, Lamphear and Wood. Nays—None.

Ald. Hooker offered the following resolution, seconded by Ald. Heise.

Whereas, the city of Charlevoix (hereinafter referred to as "Owner") and Muskegon Construction Company (hereinafter referred to as "Contractor") have entered into a contract for the performance of certain work, in connection with the construction of the City Hall and Fire Station Project, Mich. 1796-F of the Owner;

Whereas, it is provided in the said contract, that in the event the said work is not completed by the 26th day of September, 1939, the said Contractor shall pay to the Owner as liquidated damages an amount computed on the basis of $25.00 for each day the said work remains uncompleted after the aforesaid date; and

Whereas, for the reasons hereinafter enumerated, it has become impossible for the contractor to perform the said contract within the contractual date for completion; viz.

1. It will be impossible to complete the work by the aforesaid date because of the fact that the contractor has not been able to get an adequate number of skilled mechanics to carry on the work to the best advantage.

Now Therefore, be and it is hereby resolved by the common council of the city of Charlevoix (1) that the contractual date for completion of the said contract, be extended to the 26th day of October, 1939; (2) that the city of Charlevoix waives any and all claims for liquidated damages arising out of the failure of the contractor to complete the work prior thereto; and (3) that said contractual provision providing for liquidated damages shall otherwise remain in full force and effect provided, however, that liquidated damages may be hereafter assessed in accordance with the terms of the contract only from and after the aforesaid extended date for completion of the work.

LANSING LETTER

Mackinac Island, Mich. — What's "wrong" with Mackinac Island?

Here is an enchantingly lovely isle in the Straits between the lower and upper peninsulas, proclaimed by the Daughters of the American Revolution to be "Michigan's most historic spot."

Its past parallels the founding of the United States. In 1671 Father Marquette established a Catholic mission of St. Ignatius at what is now St. Ignace. Long before 1700 the French built frontier forts at St. Ignace and Mackinaw City, retaining control there until their disastrous defeat at Quebec in 1759 at the hands of the British. In 1763 the Ojibway Indians, inspired by crafty Pontiac, massacred the inhabitants of Fort Michilimackinaw through a ruse of playing a ball game.

In 1780 the British moved Fort Michilimackinaw from Mackinaw City to Mackinac Island, and Canadian border disputes kept the island under the British flag until October, 1796, when Fort Mackinac was turned over to the first American commander. This transfer was the final incident of the Revolutionary war. For nearly 100 years, up to 1895, the fort was manned by regular army troops of the United States.

Talk about history! Such, in a nutshell, is a glimpse of the glorious and stirring background of Mackinac Island. Yet for a decade the island has been declining as a place for summer residence. Only a few weeks ago Gov. Luren D. Dickinson suggested that the governor's cottage there be closed permanently.

With all this rugged history behind it, why should Mackinac Island have fewer summer residents than it had ten or twenty years ago? Intent on fathoming the reasons, we spent a week end recently at the Fort as a guest of the state park commission, following a tourist conference at the Grand Hotel. Here is what we observed.

Facts About the Island

But, first, a picture of the island itself.

In March, 1895, Michigan's senator, James McMillan, put through Congress an act authorizing the secretary of war, upon application of the governor of Michigan, to turn over to the state "for use as a state park, and for no other purpose", the military reservation and buildings and the national park lands.

The legislature created a commission, consisting of five members who serve without pay, to administer the park.

The park contains 1,041 acres of which 500 are covered with hardwood and 400 with spruce, hemlock, cedar and other soft woods. There are 10 miles of roads, 60 miles of trails and paths, and a boulevard which follows the encircling shore line for a distance of nearly nine miles.

On a rocky hill, reaching an elevation of 200 feet above the Straits, is Fort Mackinac (original) and Fort Holmes (a reconstruction).

Isolation, Pro and Con

Consider the geographic factor of isolation. The results are both good and bad.

Because the island is constantly "air-conditioned" by breezes coming over the waters of the great lakes, Mackinac Island has long been a summer haven for hay fever sufferers and a refuge from excessive heat. However, these virtues cannot be claimed exclusively by Mackinac Island; many other spots in Michigan possess climatical benefits of equal degree.

Then there is the little matter of mosquitoes. The island boasts, apparently without contradiction, that it is devoid entirely of the insect pest.

Before the advent of the automobile and hard roads, transportation to northern Michigan and Mackinac Island was mostly by lake boats. Travelers from the east came by way of Buffalo, Cleveland, Toledo or Detroit; from the middle-west via Chicago.

Tourist travel then was not mobile. The family stayed for the summer, or at least for the whole vacation period.

Lynn H. Clark, Grand Rapids
Official Song Leader of the Michigan District, Director of his own "Grand Rapids Kiwanis Singers."

Today, the average tourist travels in his own car. He parks his machine at either Mackinaw City or St. Ignace or puts it in a garage; he boards a steamer or a speedboat, 75 cents round-trip; on the island he hires a horse-drawn carriage to get his party and their baggage to a hotel or their cottage. This takes both time and money.

What Can You Do?

Consider next the island's recreational facilities.

If you can afford a sailboat or a horse, the island would probably keep you contented as a well-filled kitten for weeks on end. The waters of the Straits are ideal for sailing; a yacht club offers every desired service. Like Bermuda, Mackinac Island excludes automobiles, and 40 miles of roads await the equestrian —no honking of horns, screeching of brakes, and carbon monoxide fumes. But yachting and horse-back riding costs money, too.

If you like to golf, the island has a scenic course at the Grand Hotel. The grounds fee is $1.65.

Because the water at the Straits is uniformly cool (remember the big ice jam there last winter?) outdoor bathing is limited to n hotel pool the waters of which were being warmed artificially early in August. Lacking is the familiar sand beach at most Michigan resorts where youngsters and oldsters alike may relax, sunbathe, or swim at their heart's content and usually without cost.

If you are content to don a pair of boots, swing a staff, and hike over miles of shaded woodland trails, Mackinac Island is superb.

A motion picture house in the town offers current cinemas for 40 cents. For fishing, you must travel elsewhere. Dancing and entertainment are available at the smart Grand Hotel for a cover charge. Prices are comparable with those in the best night clubs, and the entertainment is astonishingly excellent (and also clean) when you consider the distance from Chicago or Detroit. (This is not press-agentry; we paid our own bill.)

Automobile-Age

In this speed-craze age of automobile, Mackinac Island is one place in Michigan that has defied mechanical modernization.

No automobiles!

Such is the restriction imposed by the town council with the moral support of island summer residents and the state park commission. The chief source of livelihood for year-round residents comes from carriage fares. Proprietors of most business shops, and we presume all hotels, live elsewhere except during the summer season.

A carriage ride for any minimum distance costs 50 cents.

Except for bicycles, horses provide the only means of transportation.

Harvey Campbell, Detroit Board of Commerce, thinks the island is destined to have a continued decline in tourist trade largely because, as he colorfully phrased it, "the island rests on a manure-dump." He deplores the swarms of flies. His remedy is the Detroit-made sightseeing bus, used at the New York and San Francisco world's fairs, with fares at popular prices.

Sentimental lovers of Mackinac Island rise in wrath at the idea. A chugging, noisy bus would ruin the island's tranquility. It would create hazards. Preposterous!

"Why put scores of townspeople on relief?" countered a member of the state commission. "Carriages provide their only means of earning a living. And what's the hurry, anyway?"

We present the situation as it is, without personal bias. Certainly, this island paradise for horses is unique today in the United States. And in all places—Michigan, home of motor transportation!

New Tourist Habits

Times have changed, and so have tourists' habits.

Each year the traffic count at the Straits goes up.

More and more the modern traveler, like a gypsy, takes to the open highway, lured by the fascination of new scenic conquests yet to be made.

In his trail have sprung up overnight cabins. During the past year at St. Ignace more than 80 new overnight cabins have been built. At Sault Ste. Marie the cabin facilities have been doubled in the same time. Then the house trailer is becoming a factor also. At Michilimackinaw stat park, adjoining Mackinaw City, 450 more trailers were accommodated there up to August 1 of this year than in the same period last year.

Where the great American family formerly stayed put in one spot, such as Mackinac Island, for a vacation season, now it is "on the go". Gasoline stations, barbecue stands, overnight cabins, hot-dog stands and the like are reaping a harvest. National park officials report the greatest attendance this year in history.

As all of these tourist facilities may be obtained at reasonable prices, today's traveler is economy-minded. He has a mental conception that Mackinac Island is a place which only the well-to-do can afford. This belief is seemingly shared by Governor Dickinson who preferred to rent a private cottage on a lake in southern Michigan than to use the state-owned cottage at Mackinac Island, reserved by the legislature for use of the governor as a summer residence. Maybe his reasons were that he preferred fishing. In a press conference he said he couldn't afford to go to Mackinac Island, clinching the point with a comment that it had cost him $15 a day, back in 1927, to stay at a hotel on the island during a conference of state governors.

What It Costs

On the matter of expenses, what does it cost the state to maintain Mackinac Island state park and Michilimackinaw state park at Mackinaw City?

From Superintendent Ladd's park records we learned that the state received $10,900.72 in revenue last year (ending June 30, 1939) and spent $38,000, making a net expense of around $21,000. In 1931 receipts totaled $13,656; they were $16,499 in 1936 and $12,065 in 1937. House leases for use of state land brought $5,470 last year; carriage concessions, $643; stable concessions, $200; camping and trailer fees at Michilimackinaw state park, $2,238.

Up to this year the legislature had usually provided $500 a year for upkeep of the governor's cottage which is a simple white frame dwelling with a spacious porch overlooking the Straits, a large living room with a fire-place, and all suitably furnished in a manner to be found in thousands of summer homes everywhere.

Krieghoff, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. A. J. Stelter, sang "God Bless America." Arthur A. Breise, Chicago, lived up to his reputation as "America's Knight of Satire," in the principle address of the evening.

At Saturday morning's business session, officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, Clair Gibson, Kalamazoo; vice-president, Richard Goff, Adrian; secretary, Carl Babcock, Tawas City; treasurer, J. C. Egner, Grand Rapids. Executive committee members named were: Frank L. Kennedy, Detroit; Willard Smith, Lansing, and John McCarthy, Traverse City.

Winner of the golf tournament, held at the Belvedere Golf Club was Richard Goff, Adrian, who retained possession of the trophy won in 1938. Mrs. Goff was runner-up.

Nearly 75 delegates attended the convention. Headquarters were at Lakeview Inn.

KENT COUNTY REPUBLICAN RALLY SEPT. 16TH

Open 1940 Campaign With Program Honoring Senator Vandenberg

With all the color and enthusiasm of "the good old days", Republicans of Kent county will fire the opening gun of the 1940 campnign on Saturday afternoon, September 16th, with an old-fashioned political picnic, rally, barbecue and speaking program.

This is in the way of being a home-coming and welcome for Grand Rapids' favorite son, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, candidate for re-election to the senate and "larger responsibilities" if the party so decides at next spring's national convention. According to the senator he will not do any campaigning during the coming fall. "If possible," said Senator Vandenberg, "I hope to take a short trip to Europe, both for resting and for getting a closer view of the European situntion." The senator is a member of the Foreign Affairs committee.

Already under way is "The Vandenberg Movement" under the direction of Howard C. Lawrence, former chairman of the Republican State Central Committee. "This movement," said Mr. Lawrence recently, "is definitely a 'Vandenberg-back-to-the-Senate movement.' If later developments should result in a drafting of Senator Vandenberg's experience and knowledge of national affairs for use in the White House, his candidacy for that office will be considered then. But our first efforts are to return him to the Senate where he has proven of such worth to the people of Michigan and to the nation."

Special invitations to the rally at which Senator Vandenberg will speak have been extended to Charlevoix County Republican Committee Chairman Clarence Meggison of Charlevoix, Rep. Douglas D. Tibbits and County Secretary Mrs. Edward Lorch of Boyne City.

ATTENTION IS CALLED NEW INTANGIBLE TAX

Register of Deeds Frank F. Bird Explains New Legislation

The Michigan Association of Register of Deeds through Frank F. Bird, Charlevoix county register of deeds, calls attention to a recent act passed by the legislature affecting the owners of mortgages and those persons who have sold property on land contracts.

Under the present law, before a mortgage or land contract can be recorded by the register of deeds, a 5-mill tax must be paid at the county treasurer's office.

Under the new act, which is known as the intangible tax law, this present 5-mill tax law is repealed and from and after September 29, 1939, the owners of mortgages and land contracts will be required to pay through the state tax commissioner a 3-mill tax each year on the unpaid balance due on such mortgages and land contracts and will no longer be required to pay a tax at the time of recording a mortgage or contract with the register of deeds.

The new act will not apply to any mortgages or land contracts which have been recorded or which will be recorded on or before September 28, 1939. It will, however, apply to all land contracts and mortgages not now recorded unless the 5-mill tax has been or is paid under the present law on or before September 28.

"Life," says one psychologist, "can be the finest thing in the world, if we could only find a way to make it so." Isn't that the government's job?

DEPARTMENT PREPARES FALL FISH PLANTINGS

Equipment Being Placed in Readiness for Annual Operation

With only 7 days remaining before anglers abandon most Michigan trout waters for the season, the fish division of the Michigan department of conservation is preparing for the annual distribution of hatchery raised fish, starting soon after Labor Day.

All available equipment is being put in readiness for the race against the weather man. Trucks fitted with tanks and pickup trucks for hauling cans of fish will be employed in getting the plantings transferred from hatcheries and rearing-ponds to the lakes and streams before cold weather and freeze-overs move in.

Usual procedure is to begin plantings of trout and "pan" fish in the Upper Peninsula earlier than below the Straits because unfavorable weather and road conditions come earlier in the northern sections. Planting is carried on simultaneously however, above the below the Straits.

Transporting black bass and bluegills from the lower peninsula to northern waters presents a problem in truck and boat schedules. Crews frequently work in day-and-night shifts to meet the Lake Michigan car-ferry arrival and departure schedules.

All workers in the fish division field force, and available members of conservation law enforcement and fire fighting agencies are called into service. They have the aid of CCC enrollees and federal forestry service men, to keep up the pace.

Trucking crews work on a schedule calling for clearing, one at a time, each rearing station and hatchery of all its stock, so that it can he closed up for the winter and maintenance crews disbanded. In a few stations some stock is carried thru the winter for rearing purposes.

Millions of trout and "pan" fish will be distributed when the job is completed, but the total number will not be known until all the planting of hatchery-raised fish is completed.

STRICT REGULATIONS COVER FUR SHIPMENTS

All Details Required on Outside of Package Containing Fur

Persons shipping, transporting or carrying furs out of Michigan are still required by state law to mark on the outside of the container a detailed description of the contents.

This is the advice which the law enforcement division of the Michigan department of conservation is giving in answer to inquiries concerning the effect of the recent act of congress relaxing the package-marking provision in the federal penal code.

To abolish war, the people must have in their own hands the power to veto war.

HUNTERS TO GET LONGER SEASONS

HUNT LOWER PENINSULA SMALL GAME OCTOBER 15

Season Extends Through November 5, Allowing Additional Five Days—Limits Changed

Upland small game hunters in Michigan will be favored with longer hunting seasons this fall through action of the state legisluture and the conservation commission. In lower Michigan the season on game birds, rnbbits and squirrels opens on Sunday, October 15.

Game men, after satisfying themselves that our pheasant popultion could stand a bit more gun pressure, recommended that the season for hunting be the same as that set by the legislature, opening on October 15 and running through November 5th. Presque and Benzie counties were closed owing to a scarcity of birds. The bag limits remain the same as last year. Cock birds only, with two in a day, four in possession and six for the entire season. There will be no pheasant hunting in the upper peninsula, which is closed by special order until October 1, 1940.

Ruffed grouse, prairie chickens and sharp-tailed grouse have the same season as pheasant but the last two can not be hunted south of Townline 12 North, which is the southern boundary line of Midland, Isabella, Mecosta, Newaygo and Oceana counties.

The daily bag limits are five on ruffed grouse and five combined on sharp-tails and chickens, with 10 in possession and 25 for the season.

Fox squirrel hunters can again take up their sport this year after having heen denied the privilege in 1938. The shooting senson runs from October 15 through November 5. The upper peninsula and Emmet and Cheboygnn counties are closed to this sport by specinl order. The bag limits are five in one day, 10 in possession and 25 for the season.

Black squirrels remain protected but n senson on gray squirrels has been set in a section of lower Michigan. The area is west of M-40, west of US-131, south and west of M-113 and west of M-42 between its junction with M-113 and Traverse City and in Leelannu county. The limits are the same ns for fox squirrels.

SIX LIVES ENDANGERED AS CRUISER FOUNDERS

42-Foot Craft Abandoned in Monday Gale; Passengers Swam Ashore

Six passengers on the 42-foot cruiser Black Hawk which was abandoned in Lake Michigan when it sprang a leak at around 6 p. m. Monday while enroute from Harbor Springs to Charlevoix in a heavy northerly gale, survived a harrowing experience.

Ahoard the cruiser were the owner, Benoit Wittig, his wife, Mr. and Mrs. John Maloney Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Nickalai, all of Green Bay, Wis. They abandoned the craft when motor trouble revealed it was leaking badly, two swimming ashore and the others taking to a small dinghy, which, it is understood, capsized, forcing all to swim for their lives. After reaching shore near Big Rock Point, the party became lost in the woods nnd wandered for several hours before reaching US-31 at Burgess, where they were picked up by a passing motorist and brought to the Belvedere Hotel at 1 a. m. Tuesday. Only partially clad, the men and women were badly bruised and scratched from their wanderings in the heavy woods, but were none the worse off for their experience.

The cruiser, ashore about 1½ miles beyond Big Rock Point, is a total wreck. The craft was stripped by its owner Tuesday and, it is understood, attempts will be made to salvage the motor. Coast guards under Capt. Oscar Smith visited the wreck early Tuesday, but due to heavy seas, were unable to assist.

Charlevoix Fulfilled Roll of Host in Very Satisfactory Manner — 1940 Meeting at Port Huron

Saturday evening's governor's banquet at the Belvedere Hotel brought to a close the 1939 convention of Michigan District of Kiwanis International, termed one of the most successful in point of attendance and program interest ever held.

Dr. Marshall Reed, of Detroit, minister of the Nardin Park Methodist church, was elected governur of the district. His only opponent, Alton Noe of Mt. Clemens, withdrew. Dr. Reed succeeds Nelse S. Knudsen of Pontiac. The 1940 convention was awarded to Port Huron, selected in a spirited contest over Detroit.

New lieutenant-governors named were Nat Quickstad, of Royal Oak; Charles L. Millier, of St. Joseph; Harold Smedley, of Muskegon; Mel E. Orr, of West Branch; Ray Wheelock, of Battle Creek; Clarence Loesells, of Ypsilanti; Milton Sicklestee, of St. Clair Shores; Emil Gigeleng, of Grayling; Howard Gilpin, of Rogers City, und Norman Reid, of Allen Park.

Immediate establishment of a chain of forestry camps for youths convicted of crimes, and the adoption of a non-political civil service system by the state, were urged in resolutions passed at the closing session.

Motions to urge legislators to appropriate funds for the forestry cnmps after an address by Judge Parm C. Gilbert, of Traverse City, during which he deplored conditions in Michigan prisons and outlined a plan to place wayward boys in these "healthful, educational and inspirational institutions."

The resohtions committee, headed by Arthur J. Pierpont, of Owosso, offered several special proposals, all of which were adopted.

One asked the adoption of a complete, workable, non-political civil service system for the state government.

SHOT AT RANDOM

By Ken Usher

Would like to just drop a reminder about the Kiwanis "White Elephant" sale. You can help some unfortunate kid have a real Christmas by giving some article to be disposed of to raise funds for this very worthy cause. Just get in touch with any Kiwanis member.

Want to know how to make a "hit" with Hubby? Just take in the three sessions of the Courier cooking school at the high school gymnasium on Friday and Saturday of next week. You're sure to learn how to prepare some new dishes that will make him awful happy. It's a free school, sponsored by the Courier and made possible through the cooperation of local merchants. Don't miss it!

You'll probably all agree that Dame Nature certainly added a touch of emphasis to the fact Labor Day signals the close uf the tourist and resort senson by giving us a 90 degree temperature Sunday and then a drop to 50 degrees Tuesday. Would like to remark I kindled the first furnace fire of the fall season Tuesdny and still need it today.

"Bill" Wallace and the Missus had n pleasant surprise earlier this week. On August 15, 1936, when on a trip abourd their cruiser Wilmet, they dropped overboard a bottle containing a note asking the finder to call on them. Three years had passed—three long summers and winters—and the incident had been entirely forgotten until one day this week in walked three men with the note. The fellows were Sylvester A. Vacation Is Over

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

Again the lom-toms are being beaten here for a specinl session of the stnle legislature this fall.

The reasons:

1. The new welfare act, sought by county supervisors under the leadership of Mel McPherson, has put up to the supervisors the responsibility of rnising funds in excess of the state's maximum allocation. Eleven counties in northern Michigan joined to protest against "the additional relief and administrative costs" and to plead that "due to the 15 mill limitation and the decrease in valuation of taxable property, it is impussible for snid counties to accept any supplemental burdens."

2. According to the auditor general's office, the state is "nearly broke" and will be unable to pay the public schools more than $3,000,000 of the $10,417,000 due them this month.

Thus the familiar plaint for "more money" is being heard at the state capital.

Cottontail rabbits are also reported more numerous than last year and a longer shooting season greets hunters operating in the northern covers. The upper peninsula has from October 1 to March 1 for this sport, while north of Townline 16 North the season runs from October 15 to January 31 and below that, which includes all of the southern counties, the old dates prevail, October 15 thru December 31. The limits are five in a day, 10 in possession and 50 for the season.

Raccoon hunting is set to run from November 1 to December 15, with no limit to the number that may be taken. The upper peninsula is closed. About 30,000 raccoon were shot or trapped last year.

Although the legislature removed protection from skunks the conservation commission issued an order which protects the skunk except from November 1 to January 31.

The small game license fee remains at $1, but hunters will have to wear an identification tag, similar to the one furnished deer hunters, on their backs. This is given with each license.

TRAVERSE SECURITY OFFICE MAKES READY FOR LEGISLATION CHANGES

With the signing of the new social security legislation, plans for putting into operation the new old age insurance program were going forward today in the Traverse City field office of that federal agency, it was announced today by Clifton H. Little, manager.

Immediate effect of the new legislation so far as our local office is concerned is to put an end to the payment of lump sum benefits which heretofore have been available to those reaching the age of 65 after having worked in employment covered by the social security act. Monthly benefits will replace these single money benefits after January 1, 1940. We shall continue to pay single money benefits to the legal heirs of deceased workers who have died after serving in employment covered by old age insurance.

Starting next January there will be expanded benefits for workers who have aged wives and who retire from employment covered by old age insurance after having served in such jobs since the social security act was adopted in August 1935. There also are certain supplementary benefits for dependent children and dependent parents of such workers.

Muni's 3rd Masterpiece is "Jaurez"

Late in the year 1937; Warner Bros. came to a decision to film "Jaurez," the story of Mexico's great liberator, who freed his country from the domineering yoke which France had placed upon it. There was only one actor who could be relied upon to bring the man whom Mexicans revere as "the little stone god" to life on the screen. That man was Paul Muni. Now, after more than a year devoted to research and preparation, as well as several months of actual production, "Jaurez" comes to the screen, a worthy successor to "Pasteur" and "Zola," destined even to win greater praise than these two, for it is even wider in scope. Co-starred with Mr. Muni is Bette Davis, as high-ranking an actress as he is an actor.

"Jaurez," which comes to the Palance Theatre on Sunday and Monday, had its world premiere recently in New York. Following are some of the quotes from the critics who viewed it there:

"Paul Muni is superb as Jaurez." William Boehnel in the N. Y. World-Telegram. "Once again he provides a memorable portrait in the role of the humbly born leader." Rose Pelswick in the N. Y. Journal and American.

Days are getting much shorter again, if possible busier, with lots of work inside the house and outside, family reunions, fairs, and it seems to us the older we get, the busier we seem to be. On the farm when one crop is taken care of another is about ready, and before we know and realize it, it will be winter again.

What Price Home Rule?

Throughout Michigan today the welfare problem is still a controversial hot potato.

It all revolves around the point: Who is responsible for administration and care of the unemployed and the indigent?

Last year the supervisors, superintendents of poor and other home rule advocates were loud in their demands for economy through localized control of welfare expenditures. Professional welfare workers were blamed for much of the "high" welfare cost. A referendum resulted, the 1937 act was defeated, and the 1939 legislature responded to the voters' sentiment by restoring most of the responsibility to counties.

At the October session, county supervisors will select their own local welfare boards. They will designate their own director, and otherwise will administer the law through their own employees.

According to Judge Emerson R. Boyles, the governor's legal advisor, "additional local expenditures will be squarely up to the boards of supervisors."

That's where the hitch begins.

Many counties insist that local governments are financially unable to carry un additional welfare burden. The 15-mill amendment, whereby local voters may impose a tax ceiling on local governments, is generally blamed for the dearth of funds.

More Taxes to Follow

While Governor Frank Murphy induced the legislature to authorize a blank check for welfare millions without trying to find new sources of revenue to pay for them, Governor Dickinson is said to be standing firm that any increase in the state welfare appropriation must be financed by new taxes.

"If the people demand a special session and more money" the governor's legal advisor said, "they (the people) must remember that by so doing they are acquiescing in having the legislature find more revenue. That means more taxes."

Where could the state scrape together $3,000,000 to $5,000,000 in new tax revenue? Chairman McPherson of the state tax commission and commission members have been studying the possibility of advancing the effective date of the new intangible tax from January, 1941, to January 1940. This would mean a change in the law, and such would have to be made by the legislature in special session.

Throughout the next nine months the state government will be called upon to pay $39,000,000 to local school districts. This amount will be paid in installments "if and when" the state collects revenues. Only a month ago the auditor general's office had to resort to careful strategy to keep state pay-checks from bouncing. Employees were instructed to take their checks out of the state capitol building in order that the treasury could accumulate enough funds to honor payments made by banks and business firms.

Diplomatic Kelly

At Washington the secretary of state is the nation's official ace diplomat.

While the same office at Lansing deals chiefly in automobile license plates, the local incumbent, Harry F. Kelly, has demonstrated that he, too, is somewhat of an adept juggler of tough assignments. His recent trip to the New York World's Fair is proof at hand, for he arrived immediately in the wake of Governor Dickinson's blast at sin in "high places" which had made Dickinson overnight a front page character from coast to coast.

Quoth Secretary of State Kelly: "Our high estimate of his (Dickinson's) sincerity would suffer a terrific jolt if we ever heard Luren Dickinson speak otherwise. In a state where retail liquor and beer sales in 1938 amounted to close to $100,000,000, you can see that it takes courage to continue the battle for prohibition. You can see, too, when you consider the volume of the state's liquor trade, that there must be made people in Michigan who honestly disagree with their governor."

For pure diplomacy, Kelly's remark put him in the front row.

Interesting in this connection was the fact that the secretary of state was accompanied to New York City by the governor's personal publicity counsellor, H. O. (Heinie) Weitschat, of whom Kelly has the highest admiration for general ability as a public relations expert. Weitschat was employed by the late Frank Fitzgerald for campaign service along with Gilbert T. (Duke) Shilson, now a member of the state public service commission. Both Weitschat and Shilson are astute observers of public opinion.

90th State Fair

Because the Michigan State fair is held in the nation's fourth largest metropolis, it must cater to city sophisticates.

And yet, being a state undertaking for the ostensible purpose of promoting state agriculture, it must reflect the interests of the upstate rural population.

Just where the two appeals cross is your guess. But a visit to the Detroit show last Saturday revealed a happy combination that should satisfy nearly everyone. Consider the following diversified activities: Milking contest—jitterbug contest; horse pulling contest—radio orchestras for dancing.

The fair is awarding $75,000 in prizes for horses, cows, hogs, chickens, ducks, and scores of other competitive events. Agricultural exhibits were better and more numerous. And the coliseum entertainments dazzled with nationally known headliners.

The 90th state fair will close Sunday night (September 10).

War Profits

The effect of a European war on Michigan's mining industry (iron and copper) would be to raise prices, stimulate production, and thus increase employment.

Such was the advice given us recently by competent observers in the Upper Peninsula.

The Quincy mine at Hancock is an example. Shafts for copper have gone to a depth of a mile and one-half. Copper land lies within a narrow belt from two to four miles wide and more than 100 miles long. Michigan copper is found in a pure state, and since 1845 eight per cent of all the copper produced in the world has come from the Upper Peninsula.

Michigan's iron belt extends from Ironwood to Marquette and south as far as Norway.

Mechanization of mines has progressed rapidly in recent years. While a boom for the war metals would not mean a boom in employment, it would assure steady work for everyone and undoubtedly would create some more jobs. In 1915 war-time copper production in Michigan totaled 89,821 tons; in 1935 it had fallen to 17,750 tons. That tells the grim story! Europe's war clouds may have a silver lining for Michigan's Upper Peninsula.

U.S.S. HAWK WILL BE SCRAPPED SOON

Training Vessel Here Recently Was Launched in Year 1891

The USS Hawk, Great Lakes Naval Training Squadron vessel which was here for the annual water carnival week end, will be scrapped at the end of the present cruise, according to Comdr. O. F. Hesler, commanding officer of the ship. The engines of the USS Hawk will be given to the Smithsonian Institute.

The Hawk was launched in 1891, and was President McKinley's private yacht. At the entrance of the United States into the World War, the vessel was sold to the government for the sum of $1.00, since the government is not allowed to take gifts. The ship saw active service during the war, and has been in almost constant service since, as a training vessel.

Ten officers and 75 men comprised the crew when it visited Charlevoix. The smallest of the Great Lakes training vessels, measuring 145 feet in length, the Hawk lay at the city dock, where many visitors took a tour of inspection around the decks.

On September 15th the schedule for all counties will be made out giving each county, as far as possible, sufficient time to take care of all requests.

Any farmer interested in beautifying his farm home should contact the extension agent in Boyne City immediately. Upon receipt of the request, graft paper and directions will be mailed out and a visit made. In order to be sure of help this year, by all means notify your county agent at once if you are interested.

Miss Leona Brown has returned from Kalamazoo Teachers college and Saturday made a business trip to Charlevoix. She will teach in the southern part of the state this year. Miss Groenek of Atwood will teach Mitchel school this year, where Miss Brown formerly taught.

Misses Gloria Barnes and Lenore Fitzpatrick of Creswell will attend school at Central Lake this year. The former will stop with Mrs. Box, the latter at the Huston Ruggles home. Creswell voted not to transport. The school began there last week with Leroy Bustler of East Jordan as teacher.

Harry Clark's people are visiting the Crawfords and other relatives at Wildwood for two weeks. Mrs. Helen Crawford Clark will teach again next year in the Detroit schools as she has not yet taught long enough to draw her teacher's pension. Miss Kate Wilson goes back to Flint again for her last year of teaching.

Donald McLachlan's people took a trip above the Straits a week ago, their annual. The Mawdsley family of Turner district, returned Saturday evening from a trip to Winnipeg, Can., St. Paul and Green Bay, where she visited brothers. She says Canadians think Hitler is crazy. However Canadians are ready to help England in the war. She says the fields of wheat and other grains were wonderful.

A pretty wedding was solemnized Sunday afternoon by Rev. W. P. Mosher at Bellaire M. E. church. The young people were Wilbur Jacobs of Lansing and Lauretta Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Losey Wright, living west of Bellaire. Rev. and Mrs. Alexander of Charlevoix sang. The young people will make their home at Webberville, where both have positions. The bride recently attended college at Lansing, and was employed there. We extend congratulations.

Mrs. Underhill called on the following people who were ill last Sunday, Mrs. Franklin Geary's grandmother, who recently broke her ankle and is also suffering from arthritis of her eye. If anyone knows of a wheel chair she could use, it would be much appreciated. Next call was at the Tommy Clark home, where Mrs. Clark is suffering from an injury to her leg and other bruises sustained when ran against last Saturday by a car driven by Mrs. Wm. Roberts; the little daughter, two years old, was unconscious for some time after also being struck. The little girl is better, but Mrs. Clark is not so well. Mrs. W. P. Mosher was called on and is much better, and was able to walk u little last week, with assistance. Rev. Mosher was not so well.

We see that the Central Lake-Ellsworth road is about to be resurfaced. It is a very good gravel road already, and we would much rather have seen the DeVries, Dawson and Larabe Corner roads repaired. We can't fathom what is the matter with the Larabee Corner proposition. We received a nice letter from Washington asserting their willingness to have these roads fixed, but hear nothing from VanWagoner. After a great tragedy has occurred at these corners perhaps something will be done. We don't agree with VanWagoner's idea of fast driving. If some of the poor people got $6500 a year salary instead of $350, as many of them do, they might afford to drive fast like VanWagoner, but until then, I am afraid they will have to poke along at 15 to 30 miles per, with their little antiques.

Get on the Sunny Side with Schmidt's

"Shut this phone off! I can't talk to another person today. Tell 'em I'm out—tell 'em I'm in conference—tell 'em anything. I'll go nuts if that thing rings again. And tell those people waiting to see me to come back in 1950. How's a guy going to get any work done, I'd like to know."

"Instead of getting all hot and bothered I ought to thank my stars my business is good."

After office hours a tall, cool glass of Schmidt's, "America's Finest Beer," will help you see how unimportant most of the day's irritations and worries really are.

of Stunton, Mich. They had found the bottle containing the note neur Detour. The strangest part of the whole incident is the fact that the bottle remained intact through the ice of three winters, storms of as many summers, falls and springs.

And now thut the muckinaw trout have really started "hitting" in Lake Michigan off South Point, along comes windy weather so nobody can get out. Counted over a dozen boats out there Sunday und almost without exception all brought in fish. They've been really taking 'em for the past couple weeks. And a year ago now the steelhead were "on" and I hope to be able to report the same for this fall mighty quick now.

It must have been a terrifying experience for Melvin Green of Vanderbilt, when a female bear attacked him recently. Green, while picking berries looked up just in time to see the animal charging toward him. He attempted to climb a nearby tree, but the bear caught him by the foot, pulled him to the ground and knocked him unconscious with a blow of its paw. The animal was gone when Green regained his senses. He suffered a deep scalp wound and a mangled foot where he had been bitten.

Tourist association officials foresee a longer stay of Detroit vacationists in northern Michigan resort areas as the result of Detroit schools remaining closed until September 18, because of an infantile paralysis outbreak in that metropolis. The action in keeping schools closed until the later date is aimed to hold off congregation of children until cooler weather halts spread of the disease.

There won't be much of an argument about the youngest deer hunter this fall. New hunting regulations provide that no minor under 14 years can hunt deer in Michigan. Therefore the youngest hunter will have to be some chap 14 years or older. This regulation does not apply to small game licenses, however. Minors under 17 years of age can secure a small game license on application of their parent or guardiun.

Motor boat owners will be interested in a change of marine laws relating to equipment of motor boats. Amendments to the existing law, approved August 7, 1939, exempt racing boats propelled by outboard motor from carrying whistle und fire extinguisher; also all motor boats up to 65 feet in length are no longer required to carry on board pilot rules.

The Louisiuna scandal disclosing irregular handling of finances by public officiuls provides u very conclusive reason why public notices should be continued and enforced, und why it is necessary for public officials to make a public accounting to taxpayers. It is freely admitted in Louisiana that one of the main reasons why the higher-ups are now involved in questionable financial deulings, why some well-known people are in jnil, is because during Huey Long's regime, the publication of certain financial statements thru newspapers was abolished. It is quite proper and necessary that publicity be given the public on how their money is handled. We can point to some instances at home where the law is not followed concerning certain legal publications. This statement is not to be construed as an accusation of any sort, but merely to reflect that public officials do oft times overlook the law regarding such things under the guise, perhaps, of economy. In Louisiana, it was poor economy as one can plainly see.

Haven't met a nicer fellow for a long time than Forney Clement, secretary-treasurer for the Michigan Distriet of Kiwanis International, who was here to engineer the Kiwanis convention program along. Jobs like his require that kind of a person.

CANADIAN CURRENCY IS NOW BEING DISCOUNTED

Drop of English Pound Attributed to Break in Exchange Rate

Due to the drop of the English pound sterling in the money markets because of the war scare in Europe, Canadian currency is being discounted by banks at the rate of 5 per cent. Detroit banks initiated the discount in Michigan making it necessary for out-state banks to follow suit.

The 5 per cent discount does not apply to silver according to local bank officials, and at the present time there is no indication that the rate will be increased.

LaFRENIERE-McDONOUGH READ IN HOLY CROSS CHURCH AT ST. JAMES

Holy Cross church, Beaver Island, was the scene of the marriage of Winifred LaFreniere, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nels LaFreniere, and Lawrence McDonough, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vesty McDonough, Saturday morning, September 2, in the presence of 200 guests.

Rev. Fr. Anthony Bourdow read the nuptial ceremony before an altar banked with ferns, phlox and large baskets of gladioli. Seven-branch candelabra were used on each side.

Mrs. Bruce McDonough, organist, played an "Ave Maria" preceding the ceremony, and the traditional wedding marches. Vera Mae McDonough and Mary Margaret LaFreniere sang Lambillotte's "Panis Angelicus" and the Mass of St. Cecilia was sung by the Holy Cross choir.

It was an all-satin wedding. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin, fashioned princess style with huge clusters of appliqued leaves on the shoulders, skirt and train. Her finger tip length veil was held in place by a tiara of orange blossoms, and her bouquet was of pale pink roses and swainsona.

Rita LaFreniere, the bride's attendant, wore a gown of deep pink satin, with fitted bodice and bustle back, and n her head a halo of tiny pink flowers. Pink, blue, and white garden flowers made her bouquet.

Joy and Madonna McDonough, as junior bridesmaids, wore identical dresses of pale blue satin, made with full skirts and square necklines, and carried colonial bouquets.

Robert McDonough assisted the groom as best man, and Joseph and Archie LaFreniere, Jack Cull, and Charles Pischner seated the guests.

The bride's mother chose a grape-wine gown with lace, a black crepe hat and black accessories. The gown worn by the groom's mother was of sheer brown, with brown nnd white accessories.

Guests at the wedding breakfast, which was served at the home of the bride's parents, included the bridnl party, members of their immedlate families, and friends of the bride and groom. In the afternoon, a reception was held for 200 guests.

For a going-away costume, the bride chose a pin-striped navy crepe suit, with broad white revers and navy nnd white accessories. Mr. and Mrs. McDonough will be nt home at their new home in St. James after October 1, following a wedding trip into northern Canada.

Out-of-town guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Emil Pischner, Miss Elvira Gillespie, Miss Dorothy Gallagher, and Mr. and Mrs. Peter O. Gallagher of Charlevoix; Mrs. Grace Behm, son Rodger and daughter Putti, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Gorman, Miss Sophia Boyle, Miss Blanche Mathers and Miss Genevive Gardner, of Chicago; David Pike of Grand Rapids; Captain and Mrs. Ludwig of East Tawas; and Mr. and Mrs. Fon Sendenberg of Manlstique.

BURNS FAMILY HELD REUNION AT SPRING-WATER BEACH, AUG. 27

Fifty-three were present at the Burns family reunion which was held Sunday, August 27, at the Kaden Wigwam, Springwater Beach. The scene was a continual coming and going of family members—little tots from the uge of three to those of eighty and past.

Hostesses were those having birthduys in August. Counting the numbers representing the Matchett, Burns and Williams families, it was found that the Matchetts and Williams were almost equal while George Burns of Charlevoix was third.

The younger set had a guy time swimming and boating, while the older ones looked after the basket dinner and got acquainted with their brothers' und sisters' families.

George Burns, eighty years of age, hadn't forgotten how he used to swing the girls at dances sixty years ago—and proved that he could kick his feet yet.

The following cities and towns were represented: Miami, Fla.; Dallas, Tex.; Grand Rapids, Detroit, Dearborn, Farmington, Ann Arbor, Grayling, East Jordnn, Ironton, Boyne City and Charlevoix.—Boyne Citizen.

LOWER JORDAN RIVER NOT OPEN THIS FALL

Rumor of Legal Rainbow Fishing Refuted by Department

A report is in circulation that the Jordan river below Rogers' Bridge will be open to late fall fishing for rainbow trout.

A letter from the conservation department advises that the Jordan will NOT be open this fall, 1939.

The department advises that the new fishing law does NOT go into effect until January 1st, 1940. The new law does open the Jordan for late fall fishing for the fall of 1940.

An attempt was made to make this section of the law effective at once, but without success.

The following streams are open for rainbow fishing with hook and line only, during September, October and November:

The Sturgeon river, down from the dam at Wolverine; Crooked lake and Crooked river; Pickerel lake; Lake Charlevoix. — Charlevoix County Herald.

FEDERAL PURCHASES OF STATE CROPS STARTED

Study Plans to Buy Surplus Apples and Peaches, Also

The Federal Surplus Commodities corporation started purchases in Michigan during the past week of corn, celery, tomatoes and snap beans at Detroit Eastern Farmers' Market, advising Agricultural Commissioner Elmer A. Beamer that the corporation intends careful study of marketing conditions of all crops, including apples and peaches, with possible expansion of purchases if serious slumps occur in any products.

The purchases made upon the Detroit market are similar to those made in the fall of 1938 when the agency operated throughout the state in support of produce markets.

KIWANIS CONVENTION A SUCCESS

The Kiwanians also urged the state to adopt "some new financial program which will enable social service work among the unfortunates, and under-privileged children to be fully resumed."

An indication of the appreciation of Kiwunians over conduct of the convention is contained in a resolution which read, in part, as follows: "The 22nd annual convention, held in Charlevoix, has been most enjoyable and we huve been the recipients of every possible courtesy und true northern hospitality, therefore be it resolved we extend to the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club, to the citizens of Charlevoix, the Bourd of Commerce, the Belvedere und other hotels of the city, the Charlevoix high school bund, past governor Lewis C. Reimann and Camp Charlevoix staff, the Boy Scouts of Charlevoix, the police department, the Charlevoix Marine Club and the United States coast guards our sincere and grateful appreciation for their many efforts which have made this convention such an enjoyable one." Appreciation was also expressed for the courtesy shown and publicity given by the Charlevoix Courier, und to Walter Fuller, fraternal editor of The Detroit News, who was present at the convention.

Due to the extensive 3-day program, space does not permit covering it in detail. The high spots on our observation, however, will be touched upon. The official registration was 630, one of the largest on record. The program, from a standpoint of value to Kiwunians, was termed outstanding. All sessions were largely uttended, indicating the interest of delegates and visitors. Charlevoix's accommodations were ample to hundle the heavy registration and recreational facilities which were taken advantage of in the recreational program brought unqualified praise.

TWO STATE FERRIES TAKEN TO DRYDOCKS

Repairs in Preparation for Deer Season Rush Under Way

The state highway department has ordered the Straits of Mackinaw and City of Cheboygan, state-owned ferries operating across the Straits of Mackinac, to be sent to a Detroit dry dock for overhauling estimated to cost $28,000.

The expenditure was authorized last week by the state administrative board. Approximately $20,000 of the total will be spent on the City of Cheboygan which was seriously damaged in a recent collision.

Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner explained that the boats are being overhauled at the present time to be in condition for the anticipated heavy traffic during the deer hunting season.

KROGER CHANGES SELF-SERVE UNIT

OPEN FRIDAY MORNING UNDER NEW OPERATING SYSTEM

New Equipment, Many Innovations Makes Local Store Most Modern Kroger Unit in North

Fulfilling a consumer demand for the most modern of facilities, Charlevoix's Kroger store will open Friday morning as a self-serve unit.

Workmen started alterations Monday of this week. The store will be closed Thursday for re-arrangement of stock and will open to the public Friday under the new plan.

The self-serve arrangement presents "merchandising islands", from which customers serve themselves. Merchandise is placed so customers can see it and make their own choice. The plan provides a distinct speeding up of service.

This second expansion program within the year required installation of $1,500 in new equipment which includes a self-serve refrigerated butter cabinet, self-calculating cash registers and many other innovations. The public will find all merchandise in the store departmentalized. The change makes the Charlevoix store one of the finest and most modern in northern Michigan.

Marvin Taylor, manager of the store, spent two days this week at Traverse City familiarizing himself with operation of the new type store.

MRS. HELENE SAILER RETURNS TO CHARLEVOIX FOR FIFTH CONSECUTIVE YEAR

MANY FREE GIFTS GIVEN EACH SESSION

Three Free Classes for Women of Charlevoix and Vicinity at High School Gymnasium—Many Local Merchants Cooperating in Two-Day Event

It's Cooking School week again in Charlevoix.

Three sessions of the Charlevoix Courier's 5th annual cooking school are ready to open. The first convenes Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the high school gymnasium with Mrs. Helene Sailer again as director.

The stage of the gymnasium will be transformed into a modern kitchen, thanks to the Charlevoix merchants who are supplying the latest in kitchen appliances and equipment. As heretofore all the recipes made by Mrs. Sailer will be concocted right in the model kitchen, in full view of the audience, which is expected as in the past will fill the entire section.

There will be no admission charge. Just come with notebook and pencil and be prepared to take notes. Ask all the questions desired. Mrs. Sailer says that's why she is here, and welcomes them as indicating a live interest.

The Courier Cooking School has been in progress of preparation for the last month and nothing has been left undone to enhance its value to the housewives of Charlevoix and vicinity.

Sessions will begin promptly at 2 o'clock Friday p. m. at 7:30 o'clock Friday evening and the final closing session again at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Clear the household decks so you can attend each session. You'll find each one valuable. Economy and usefulness will be the keynote of each and every recipe.

Attend all sessions of the Cooking School and see what the merchants of Charlevoix have to offer in helping you to improve your homemaking with the fine appliances they have to offer, the foodstuffs they have to sell and at prices surprisingly lower than you ever imagined.

LOCAL YOUTH WIN SAN FRANCISCO PRIZE TRIP

Rewarded for Best Dairy Demonstration at State Fair

(By B. C. McClencamp)

The happiest two lads in the state of Michigan are no others than Clare McGhan and Lawrence Ecklund of Charlevoix, who won a trip to San Francisco with all expenses paid when their demonstration "Quality Milk Production" was selected as the outstanding dairy demonstration in Michigan.

The trip is sponsored by the Phoenix-Kraft Corporation, which is paying all expenses and giving a scholarship of $250 each to the team that is selected as the best in the United States. Our two club members will compete with the winning teams from all of the states.

Clare and Lawrence will leave Chicago on October 11th, arriving in Kansas City on the 15th, speeding across New Mexico on the 16th, and visiting the Grand Canyon that afternoon. On the 18th they will arrive at Los Angeles and spend the balance of the day on Catalina Island. While in Los Angeles, they will visit Hollywood, Beverly Hills, Santa Monica. On the 20th they will get their first glimpse of the San Francisco Oakland Bridge and will spend six days at the fair and nearby points of interest. They will arrive at Chicago on October 29th.

Certainly these boys have every reason to be proud of their accomplishments. Not only those of us who have supervised and directed the 4-H club program in the county, but every citizen, is equally pleased over their success.

FALL SCHEDULE THE ARGONNE ANNOUNCED

Two Special Parties Weekly Included at Popular Night Club

Fall schedule of entertainment features at The Argonne, Charlevoix's popular night club, have been announced by W. J. Kerns.

Karston, famous magician, will conclude an extended engagement with appearances Thursday and Saturday evenings of this week.

The fall schedule, except for special holiday parties, include the jitterbug contest Thursday evenings and the regular Saturday night party. Dancing will be available nightly, however, and other Argonne services which include cocktail bar, chicken dinners, lunches, etc., will be available at all times.

LABOR DAY TRAFFIC A RECORD AT THE STRAITS

Traffic Holiday Sunday Broke Previous High Marks, Officials Say

The Michigan straits ferries transported a record-breaking 4,236 vehicles and 9,552 passengers Sunday, September 3, the highway department reported.

The total for the four-day holiday, Friday through Monday, also set a record for the year, highway officials said. The ferries carried 13,350 vehicles and 28,137 passengers compared to the Labor Day period high of 13,374 vehicles and 28,845 passengers set in 1937.

The Straits ferries carried 193,230 vehicles and 340,994 passengers from January 1 through August 31, an increase over last year, the highway department reported.

STATE GAME FUND GETS FEDERAL AID

RECEIVE SHARE OF PITTMAN-ROBERTSON ACT MONEY

Tax on Firearms and Shells Produces $50,682.91 for Wild Life Restoration in Michigan

The coffers of the conservation department of Michigan were enriched by $50,682.91 of federal money this year through the operation of the Pittman-Robertson Act which was approved by congress in 1937. This was the first award made since the law became operative and undoubtedly it will reach $150,000 within a few years.

The law provides that an amount equal to the revenue accruing each year from the 10 per cent excise tax imposed on firearms, shells and cartridges be set aside by the treasury in a special account to be known as the Federal Aid to Wildlife Restoration Fund. This should run close to $5,000,000 a year.

After deductions for administering the act have been made, which will run approximately $100,000 a year, the balance is divided among the various states, half in the ratio that the area of each state bears to the total area of all the states and the other half in the ratio that the number paid hunting license holders of each state bears to the total of all license holders in the nation. On this basis Michigan received the largest amount of any state due principally to the heavy hunting license sale.

FOOTBALL SEASON OPENS SEPT. 30TH

MANCELONA COMES HERE FOR INITIAL CONTEST

Five Veterans Among Thirty Candidates Reporting for First Practice Session Monday

Football practice in preparation for the 1939 season which opens Saturday, September 30, began Monday afternoon at south side athletic field. Drills began a week prior to school opening to provide three weeks of practice before the initial contest.

A group of 29 candidates, to be augmented by at least two others, reported to Coach Ray Kipke. Included among them were five veterans from last year's squad. They are Robert Bergmann, fullback; Jim Martin, end; Bob McGhan, halfback; Eddie Nowland, Jake and Max White, linemen. Others who played as reserves last season and are available for the squad this year are Bill Ocks, Edward Stinson, Frank Kerchak, Tom Carey and Robert Arnold.

Others who will seek positions include Bud and Dick Hallett, Gerald Novotny, Warren Helms, Don Stevens, Bud Kohler, Don Menzies, Harrison Hooker, Pete McCafferty, Carl Browe, Lester Gallaghee, John Bissell, Junior Willis, Clare Martin, Elmer Poole, John Carey and Stan Shapton.

Graduation took its toll last spring. Harry Witherell, Bob Goss, Bruce Henley, Lee Hiller and Dourla Bird completed school and athletic activity.

Strength of the 1939 squad would be hard to predict at so early a stage in view of the fact so many candidates are inexperienced and, for the most part, lacking the weight of previous years. Charlevoix last season won one game out of six.

Mancelona, whom Charlevoix defeated in the opening contest of the 1938 season, furnishes opposition for the initial contest to be played on the home field.

SHRINE PATROL PUT ON PERFORMANCE HERE

Entertained Crowd with Drills and Music Saturday morning

One of the finest and most colorful exhibitions ever witnessed here was provided Saturday morning by Shriners from the Saladin Arab Patrol of Grand Rapids.

Garbed in baggy Zouave uniforms and wearing red fezs, the Shriners drilled, paraded and made music for nearly an hour at East Park. The Patrol's nationally famous Shrine band and chanters added much to the event.

The Patrol was under the direction of Illustrious Potentate Henry Walstrom. Local arrangements were made through Noble Robert Bridge.

SHOT AT RANDOM

By Ken Usher

Charlevoix Kiwanians, whose efforts were instramental in making the 22nd annual convention of Michigan District of Kiwanis International such an outstanding event, will take no little satisfaction from the following communication received by the Charlevoix Courier from Nelse S. Knudsen, Governor Michigan District: "I would like to extend my appreciation to the members of the Charlevoix Club who did such a splendid job in conducting the business of the Michigan District convention at Charlevoix. I want to pay particular tribute to the ladies who did such an outstanding job in entertaining the delegates and their ladies who attended. I have never attended any convention where so much interest was shown to the visitors as was shown by the Charlevoix members and their wives. I assure you that it was a real privilege to serve with them."

Anxious nimrods will be able to take to the woods two weeks from Sunday, October 1st. The duck season opens on that date, also the small game season in the upper peninsula. Good shooting on local ducks—those nesting on lakes, rivers and marshes of this vicinity—is anticipated for the opening. Many local hunters will follow usual custom by opening the season in the upper peninsula.

It's an amusing situation, this flurry of buying sugar, flour, etc. An attitude which could be termed nothing more or less than hysteria, resulted in a hike of $1.35 per hundred pounds on sugar, and proportionate raises on flour and other staples. "Frightened by an assumed

The Thrill of a Lifetime

LANSING LETTER

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

Editor's Note: What is the NYA doing in Michigan? The following news letter presents facts in a nonpartisan objective manner which we believe will be of interest to our readers.

Near a picturesque, peaceful hamlet of Waterloo, midway between the cities of Jackson and Ann Arbor, Uncle Sam is conducting a novel educational experiment for Michigan youth.

It is rivalled in scope only by a similar undertaking at Passamaquoddy, Maine, where engineers once sought to harness ocean tides for hydro-electric industrial power.

Every county in Michigan is represented at Waterloo.

More so than any other project, it exemplifies the vast state-wide program of the National Youth administration, known to most citizens as the NYA, and for which the United

Clare Underhill arrived Saturday night and will visit at home a short time while the factory is shut down, due to strike in the auto parts works at South Bend, Ind.

Rev. Weaver reports that Petoskey merchants were dishing sugar out in quarter-pound lots at Petoskey last week. Here, they passed it out in 10 pound lots at about seven cents per pound, a raise of about 2 cents on stock they already had on hand. What about the honesty of this kind of business, when government reports say there is lots of sugar on hand.?

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Dawson, south of town, have a new baby boy, born last week, and Mr. and Mrs. Orson Barber a new baby girl. Dawsons now have seven children, all boys, and Edward Dawsons, six, all boys. The Dawson ball team will probably soon create as much excitement as Bill Bennett's of Echo some years ago, when he had nine children, all boys, and the ball team did quite a lot of playing ball.

Central Lake schools start this week. Mancelona, Alba, Ellsworth, Bellaire and Elk Rapids began last week. A number of districts have consolidated with Bellaire, and Elk Rapids is transporting quite a lot of seventh and eighth grade pupils to town. Ellsworth's fine bus is picking up the Bentley school pupils, Atwood seventh and eighth, and Antrim City's seventh and eighth. Ellsworth may have to get another small bus to accommodate the rural pupils. The Blakely, Arnolds and Shooks from Eastport and Bay View schools, are attending at Ellsworth this year. Ethel, Alden and Marvel Knowles are riding to town with Mr. Knowles, and the Meggison girls are walking in from Grace View school, 3 miles. Mildred walked to town last year.

WHEN THIEVES FALL IN

By MAVERICK TERRELL

Copyright.—WNU Service.

IT WAS a picture postcard Christmas, all shining snow and gleaming lights and windows bright with scarlet and green decorations. Rosy-cheeked crowds surged in and out of stores, good natured, arms piled high with bundles, young bright eyes laughing, gay as the sprigs of holly on coat lapel and hat, old dim eyes laughing too, hard eyes softened, the whole world gay for once, for the spirit of Yule had invaded and seized Fifth avenue. Only Sally, trudging with empty arms and empty heart, felt the gayety beating up in waves about her like a mockery and a sneer.

For there was no friend nor heartfire for Sally; there were but two pennies jingling against each other in her shabby purse, there was the pain of hunger in her slender young body and the pain of longing in her heart, longing for Eddy, gay good looking young Eddy whose bones lay rotting somewhere in the frozen mud of France, or at the bottom of the secretive sea.

Sally shivered and turned her thoughts away with an effort. Sally didn't believe in dwelling upon the dark side of things. Up to now Sally's motto had been one with Mr. Micawber's. But of late luck had turned up at all!

The truth of the matter is that things don't turn up unless one is watching for them, perpetually on the job, and Sally wasn't. For no reason at all, since it was the one thing she had been taught to despise, brought up to regard as worthless, Sally didn't like her job. She was a professional thief.

Stumbling along through the whirling snow, tears suddenly blinded her, and she collided with a fur-clad shoulder.

"Say, Lady, blow your horn!" snarled a once familiar voice. Sally blinked rapidly and stared into the lined, snapping black eyes of Frisco Jane.

"For the love of White Mule, it's little Sally!" Jane cried with a sudden transition from ferocity to friendliness common to those who walk through life perpetually on the defensive. "Pinch me, Sally, or I'll see old Market street loom up out of this pipe-dream!"

Over a meal in a properly secluded place Jane regarded her fellow native daughter with a mixture of pity and contempt. She extracted a ten spot from her purse. "Put this in your stocking, Sally! Aw, can the shaking-your-head stuff; you need three squares for a mess of days! Say, ain't New York paralyzing?"

Sally began to sob softly. "Don't pull it, Sally; I know—little old New York is mighty little when you're down and out!" barked Frisco Jane. "Even the guns here are kinda-stand-offish, un-huh. Take a tuck in yourself, Sally, and beat it this minute to old Maw Maggy's down on Tomkins under the bridge. Baby-farm; best in the city! This is Christmas Eve! You won't have to make up a bit, dearie."

"Jane, I need the—Jane, I couldn't."

"Pull your nerve together, Sally! That's that new plutes' club, the Stuyvesant. Pay Maw five for the right baby, get me? She'll squeal fnr ten, course. Then beat it with the coughing kid in your arms to that Stuyvesant mint and plant yourself right out in front by the big steps and shiver like hell when those main stems stagger out to go home, James. Tonight with the snow as it is, that layout's a special plucking! Ilop to it, Sally. I had my eye on it but you look the part, dearie. Tell Maw I sent you. Here's another ten spot for luck. Aw, too bad about Eddy. Ain't men the knockout drops?"

"Good old Jane!" Sally choked over the words.

"Can the gratitude stuff; always makes me suspicious," growled Frisco Jane. "Oh, Sally tonight at the fat swell's club, don't forget to pull the old hoke—you ain't never before had to beg, but tonight your little chee-aw, you know the pull-the-weeps line. They always fall for it; the drunker the better. Now skip, Sally, and may the dirty bulls nab you if you don't make a hauling tonight!"

Starvation is an iron task master. Sally disliked Jane's idea. But after all it didn't hurt anybody. Easy money from Easy Money! Besides, what did anything matter now that Eddy was dead? No, Sally wouldn't have to act much to put the part over.

Two gay bachelors emerging well fed and warmed and wined that evening almost stumbled against the passing Sally. She gave them a half terrified, half piteous look out of the great tragic black eyes and drew her pitifully thin coat closer about the ragged bundle in her arms, a bundle from which came a thin wailing cry. The two men-about-town paused and weaving uncertainly upon their feet took several looks at the poor, half starved girl before them. Finally they saw her, opened their fat wallets and came through each with a ten spot, muttered sympathetic if incoherent good wishes for a happy Chrishmash and bowled away contentedly. Sally's young mouth curled cynically as she tucked away the money and edged nearer the steps to collide accidentally with the next emergers.

These, however, were a jolly group of five men, tall, silk-hatted, with warm, expensive great-coats and white mufflers against the chill. One was taller than the rest, bigger, straighter, with a swing of the shoulders that stabbed Sally's heart with a memory like a red-hot blade.

"Mon Cher Comte," one man was saying to him; "positively, old chap, you must come along with me, tonight. Hang it, tnmorrow's Christmas and Eleanor would—"

"Ah, mon cher Murray Hill, unfortunately—" and then Sally fell forward into the tall, young man's arms. It was over quickly; they stared at each other for a second, the ragged beggar and the silk-hatted foreigner, tragic black eyes looking into laughing blue eyes, and both grew pale.

The man recovered first and set the girl, with her bundle, on her feet with an old world gesture of courtesy. "Tiens, it is a cold night for—for you and your baby, Madame. Permit us to be of assistance; what say, gentlemen?" He turned to the others drawing a hundred dollar bill from his wallet. "Shall we say for the—the bambino?" The others could not but follow suit. Five hundred-dollar bills were thrust into Sally's icy hand and the party, excepting the younger man, got into a large car and were driven away. Not glancing at Sally he started briskly walking down the avenue. Almost mechanically, not believing her senses, in a mingled pandemonium of joy and despair, sheltering the wailing child from the wind and snow that whooped down the deserted street, Sally followed as though hypnotized.

Several blocks nn the young foreigner turned into a dim lit cross street and Sally, a few moments later, followed.

"Eddy!"

He gathered her up into his arms. "Sally! They told me over there that you'd gone West—in Frisco! Sally!"

"No, Eddy—it is you, isn't it?—I almost died—because I thought you were dead, boy," she whispered against his great coat. "Eddy, are you rich, or is this just a—"

Eddy smiled and then tonk nff his coat and drew it gently about Sally's shoulders, as she shook her head.

"Just a game, Sally. No more small time stuff for me. In France I learned to handle froggie neat enough to pull this bull."

"Eddy, there's a woman—"

"Sally, there is—you! I'm a count from cher Paree but the season's closed for rich young wives as far as I'm concerned. No, I'm hopelessly continental and these dear club Johnnies, y'know, are teaching me tn play Yankee poker. I don't think the bulls are wise yet!"

"Eddy," Sally began hesitatingly: "once we planned to go straight, get a regular job and everything. With me sticking to you again, couldn't you?—wouldn't you?—"

"Sally, when I lost you I didn't give a damn; now I do. You're on, kid; I ain't never denied you anything in the Frisco days. If you insist, Sally, we'll have a crack at this 'going straight' gag. Next train for the Golden Gate, huh? Wait a minute; the baby?"

The bambino, as though knowing he was the subject of conversation, woke and blinked in the shaft of light from the street lamp. His perfectly round blue eyes twinkled at Eddy as though at a mutual joke. He reached out an uncertain hand and laid hold of Eddy's finger.

Eddy looked at Sally and they both looked at the baby.

"Sally you almost said it first; he goes too! I don't know where you hired him: I don't care. Tomorrow's Christmas and he gets a present too—a free ride to old Frisco—er, with his new maw and paw! Sally, I'm feeling honest already!"

Man's Character Judged by His Dog's Disposition

In the old days a man's character was judged by the type nf his friends. But today a man is judged by the disposition of his dog. This is a much more accurate measure, for a dog invariably mirrors his master, according to officials of the American Kennel club, governing body of pure-bred dogs in the United States. While this means of telling the character of people has always been present, it is only in recent years that students of canine psychology have given the matter their attention.

Since time immemorial the dog has been known as "man's best friend." This is no idle phrase, for it has worked out in too many cases for there to be any doubt on the subject. A dog looks upon his master as a god, whether that master be a saint or a crook. Furthermore, the dog evinces the sincerest flattery by trying to be as nearly like his master as possible.

The greater respect for law and order among human beings, seen in the almost total absence of street brawls among men today, has its direct reflection in the disappearance of snarling street curs. In this connection, it should be added, that as man has become educated he has not only mended his ways but he has chosen purebred dogs of recognized breeds. Such dogs, given decent care, never fight until there is a just reason.

Dogs kept as house pets become almost four-footed replicas of their masters, or mistresses.

MRS. HELENE SAILER'S OWN RECIPES

Cheese and Tomato Sandwich

6 slices bacon
grated cheese
6 slices bread
6 slices tomato

Butter slices of bread. On each slice, place a slice of tomato, cover with grated cheese and add a slice of bacon. Toast under the flame of the broiler until bacon is crisp.

Cheese Pie Crust

Used for two crust pies, such as apple, cherry or mince. Prepare regular plain pastry and divide in half. Roll out lower crust as usual and put in filling. Then roll out top crust and sprinke it liberally with well flavored grated American cheese using about ½ cup of cheese to each top crust. Fold the crust from both sides to the middle, then fold again, making four thicknesses. Roll out again to desired size and put on pie.

Cheese may be added to flour with shortening but this would necessitate making crust in two batches, since no cheese is used in bottom crust.

Pumpkin Pie

2 cups cooked and strained pumpkin
2 teaspoons melted butter
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon cloves
½ tenspoon mace
½ teaspoon ginger
1 cup milk
½ cup cream
2 eggs

Method—Add to the pumpkin the butter, salt, sugar, spices, milk, cream and well-beaten eggs. Pour into a pastry lined pie plate. Put in a hot oven and after ten minutes reduce the heat to moderate. Bake until the filling is firm. In order to have pumpkin pie at its best, prepare the pumpkin by cooking it very slowly until it has lost most of its moisture and taken on a rich golden brown color. Time of baking, 10 minutes (425 degrees), 50 minutes (350 degrees).

Apple Cheese Pie

4 to 6 apples
½ cup sugar
¾ cup diced cheese
¼ teaspoon mace

Method—Peel, core and dice apples. Cover with ½ cup sugar and let stand at least ½ hour. Place in crust and spread with ¾ cup diced cheese and ¼ tenspoon mace. Cover with top crust. Bake 10 minutes at 150 degrees, reduce to 350 degrees until apples are done, about 25 minutes.

Pineapple Cream Pie

1½ cups milk
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons corn starch
2 eggs
1 cup drained crushed pineapple
½ teaspoon vanilla
2 tablespoons powdered sugar

Heat milk, mix sugar, salt, corn starch. Add hot milk slowly. Cook in double boiler until thick, then add the 2 egg yolks well beaten and the pineapple. Cool, add vanilla. Pour in baked crust, cover with meringue made of egg whites and powdered sugar, place in 300 degree oven for 20 minutes.

Cherry Pie

1 No. 2 can sour pitted cherries
2 tablespoons flour
1¼ cups sugar
Plain pastry

Line a pie tin with pastry. Drain the cherries, cover with sugar and let them stand 15 to 20 minutes. Add the flour to the cherry juice and cook until somewhat thickened. Cool. Fill crust with cherries and pour the cold cherry juice over them. Add extra sugar if needed. Adjust the top crust and bake in a moderate oven 40 to 50 minutes.

If sweet cherries are used, the amount of sugar should be reduced. The addition of one teaspoon lemon juice will bring out the cherry flavor. Serves four to six.

Lemon Pie

2 tablespoons corn starch
¾ cup sugar
1 cup boding water
¼ cup lemon juice
1 tablespoon butter
2 eggs
salt
grated rind ½ lemon
2 tablespoons sugar

Method—Combine cornstarch and ¾ cup sugar. Add water slowly, stirring constantly. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly, until thick and smooth. Add slightly beaten egg yolks, butter, lemon rind and juice, and a few grains salt. Cook 2 minutes. Pour into baked pastry shell. Cover with meringue made of egg whites and 2 tablespoons sugar. Bake in slow oven (325 degrees) 20 minutes.

BEAVER ISLAND BOAT BACK ON MAIL ROUTE

Mary Margaret, Disabled Sept. 4, Repaired in Wisconsin

The Charlevoix-Beaver Island mail boat Mary Margaret has resumed its schedule following repairs to a broken crankshaft at Green Bay, Wis.

The mechanical trouble occurred a half hour out of St. James harbor last Monday. The boat was able to return to the island under its own power and was later towed to Green Bay.

C. S. Webster's gasoline boat Hawk, in charge of Capt. Emmet McCann, operated on the run while the Mary Margaret was being repaired.

MRS. PALMER IS ELECTED PRESIDENT

Will Lead in W. C. T. U. Activities During the Coming Year

Mrs. Brayton Saltonstall was hostess to the Woman's Christian Temperance Union at the September meeting, held last Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Frank Metcalf was program leader and read several encouraging temperance items from various periodicals. Righteous indignation against the liquor traffic is manifesting itself in many parts of the country. One third of all the counties in the United States are now dry. In seven thousand local option elections since repeal, five thousand were won by the drys according to a statement of the federal liquor authorities in Washington; and in Pennsylvania alone 492 local option elections were scheduled for September 12.

Mrs. Gladys Palmer was elected president for the ensuing year. The other officers will be: vice president, Mrs. Ida Burns; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Ella Usher; recording secretary, Mrs. Lillian Bartholomew; treasurer, Mrs. Annie Saltonstall.

Plans were made to send a large delegation to the district convention to be held October 12 in the East Jordan Presbyterian church. A tea meeting will be held October 13 at Mrs. Palmer's home.

COMMUNITY FARM BUREAU

The regular meeting of the Community Farm Bureau was held this week at the home of Bruce and Grace McElroy, at which officers for the coming year were elected.

The officers are: chairman, Charles Mascho; vice-chairman, George Meggison; secretary, Countis Mascho; discussion leader, LaVerne McGhan; recreation leader, Bruce McElroy.

Discussion of next year's program followed the election, and also the federal seed law and how farmers are suffering from the world trade war.

It was decided that the next meeting would be at the Ecklund Bros. farm in October. After the business meeting was concluded, the hostess served light refreshments.

FALL PROGRAM FOR BOY SCOUT COUNCIL OUTLINED

Award for Proficiency in Activities Will Be Given

The Scenic Trails Council, Boy Scouts of America, announced it's fall program to all scoutmasters of the council this week.

The main feature of the program for all troops is the "Hugh Johnston Planned Program Award." This award is made possible by Hugh J. Johnston, council president, to all troops who complete a number of requirements. The requirements all relate to a well organized troop program during the months of October, November and December. The program also includes hiking and camping plans as well as regular troop meetings.

Recruiting of new scouts and advancement in scout ranks is also included in the program. On January 1st, each troop which has completed the required points will be given a suitable award at a special ceremony. Troops in every community of the council will take part in the program.

When the state receives its portion it must match it with a sum of, at least 25 per cent of the federal award. This is all used for land purchases for wildlife rehabilitation, land development to make areas more suitable for wild mammals and birds and for research into all wildlife problems.

Before any federal award is made the legislature of each state must agree to the provisions of the act and specifically state that all license fees paid by hunters cannot be used for any purpose other than for the administration of the conservation activities of the state. Michigan has agreed to this by an act passed this year.

Only $1,000,000 was set aside last year for this purpose but the full amount of $3,000,000 will be available this year.

The funds received by the state this year went into two projects. One was the acquisition and development of the Rose lake project, near East Lansing, where game management plans on sub-marginal land will be carried out in the attempt to increase the wildlife.

The other is an experimental raccoon rearing project in Allegan county where attempts are being made to rear these animals in captivity and also uncover ways and means of increasing the numbers in the wild.

Another project has been approved by the conservation commission which will involve the purchase of some 600 acres of good hunting cover in Tuscola county. Part to be used as public hunting grounds and the other for game management purpose. This tract of land is in the heart of some of the finest pheasant cover in the state.

Conservation officials in the state believe that in the beginning the funds received should be apportioned on the basis of 60 per cent for land acquisition, 20 per cent for restoration and land improvement and 20 per cent for research and overhead.

Attempts are now being made to induce congress to enact a similar law covering fish activities with the funds coming from a 10 per cent excise tax on fishing tackle and equipment. We had such a law a few years ago but it was repealed with a lot of other so-called nuisance taxes.

STRAITS TRAFFIC RECORDS SET THIS SUMMER

The Michigan tourist season now drawing to a close established a new one-day traffic record for Mackinac Straits ferries.

The new record was 4,236 cars carried Sunday, September 3, compared to the previously high total of 3,955 vehicles carried on the same day of last year. Both record loads were established on Labor Day vacation periods.

EDITORIAL

AMERICANISM?

We read about the Legion and allied organizations plugging continually for Americanism. We admire such patriotism. But Legionnaires admit they were misinformed about the Take-the-profits-out-ow-war Bill. The bill, which had their sanction in congress, however, is one of the least American laws introduced in the last decade.

Ostensibly, on the face of it, it was written with the intent of taking the profits out of war. But the bill was made up of many parts and among them was one which decreed that the government have absolute control over the destinies of every man, woman and child over 15 or 16 years of age in the United States, a military Fascist despotism.

Newton D. Baker, secretary of war in the last titanic struggle, was a capable and courageous man. His crowning achievement was the disbanding of the tremendous army he headed, and thereby sending it back into its normal channels in society again. For this act alone he will be written up in history when many others will have been long forgotten. But—do you for one instant believe this could be accomplished again if we were to have a united organization of not only men, but WOMEN and CHILDREN, all under a military system! We think not. Some aspiring politician would see the great opportunity before him and unquestionably make an effort to unite them into one vase political machine which would mean but one thing. We would lose our American form of government! That is a sacrifice too great to consider even for a single instant.

Our duty as good Americans now is to follow the advice of a leading American writer, Lawrence Dennis, who refers to the struggles in Europe and warns us that to save our Democratic form of government we must "stop discussing foreign affairs as moral issues involving our national honor. Our interests demand our neutrality, regardless of the rights or wrongs of others. We have the force to maintain mastery of the western hemisphere, but beyond this hemisphere the effectiveness of our force is most doubtful."

Only in the event of an attack upon the shores of the United States should any American turn his mind, his body, and his resources to the service of a totalitarian regime in Washington.

(Copy of the IMP may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C., for 15c. It tells the whole plan of the War and Navy Departments for national defense in case of war.)

LET THEM STEW IN THEIR FAT

At last the European countries are lined up, the autocracies against the democracies, and now they will be yelling again for us to go over and save them. We don't believe our duty goes that far. England and France took all they could get when they got their chance and laughed at the poor devils who couldn't protect themselves. Now, again, they will want us to protect it for them. We do not favor the idea and we ask all good Americans to think and talk likewise.

Truth used to lie at the bottom of the well. Now it is buried under 79 layers of propaganda.

ON THE FARM

The Omaha Journal-Stockman quotes Mrs. Simmons, writer of poultry news, as saying: "Surely the farmer and his family should have the best, and the first chance at what is produced on the farm." That newspaper mentions that not all farmers in the past have turned to advantage all available benefits. Commenting on Mrs. Simmons' observation, the Journal-Stockman says in part: "How true that is. Of course we know that the farmer has the best of it in a more free, healthful, more interesting and usually more profitable way of life than the average city man enjoys. In season, the farmer can get his vegetables fresh from the garden, his fruits right out of the orchard, wholesome milk and rich cream and butter from his own cows, pure leaf lard, rendered at butchering time, home-cured bacon and ham, and appetizing fresh beef from a fat heifer or yearling. Moreover, those things, fresh and home grown, have a taste and a zest that nothing purchased in the city can duplicate."

ATTRACTIVE POTS

Here's a pert suggestion to homemakers from a "Monitor" reader.

"When fall approaches I like to have attractive pots for the many autumn leaves and flowers which I admire. Old flower pots can be made very pretty if covered with oilcloth, either plain or with designs. I cut the oilcloth to fit around the pots and paste it on with library paste. An unusually attractive pot was made by pasting plain oilcloth around the pot, and edging the top of the pot with oilcloth edging designed for use on edge of pantry or closet shelves."

FAVORITE SONS

Both Michigan's favorite sons have returned home and the people have given them cordial welcomes. There can be no doubt in anyone's mind that should either of these men lead the Republican ticket a year from next November, we the people of Michigan would back them 100 per cent. They both are men of integrity and a credit to us. We could indeed be proud to carry a banner for them with the assurance that the record they would make would stand the test of time.

Follow this mysterious masked avenger in his battles against evil doings every Sunday!

SIMPLE EXPLANATION

A magazine writer says women control seventy per cent of family incomes.

This statement puzzled us for a moment until it suddenly occurred to us that the remaining thirty per cent is accounted for by taxes.—Galt Reporter.

Cows Number 923,000

The number may not be accurate now, but estimates on January 1 of this year credited Michigan farmers with ownership of 923,000 dairy cows. Herds with 11 or more cows numbered 10,730.

NAVY RECRUITING OFFICER OFFERS UNPRECEDENTED OPPORTUNITIES

For a brief period, Michigan applicants for naval service will not have to wait the customary four to six months, normally required between application and enlistment, Lieutenant Commander E. I. McQuiston, navy recruiting officer for Michigan and Toledo District, stated today.

"The unusual opportunity arises from the large number of new vessels going into commission and the return to active service of many destroyers which have been laid up for purposes of economy," said the commander who anticipates at least one hundred additional vacancies to be filled by this district.

The commander emphasized this as a purely peacetime increase to bring our navy to normal strength and that only the highest caliber of young men would be accepted as each man must be a potential specialist in some trade or profession of his choosing. "No men would be accepted," he stated, "until their character and standing in the community has been fully investigated."

THE news of Whitcombe's trouble exploded like a bomb in the office of the Display Advertising company and left Stebbins, the assistant and bookkeeper, and Miss Wilcox, the stenographer and filing clerk, pale and bewildered. It came in the form of a note from Whiteombe himself, written from a hotel in the neighboring town, and broke the unpleasant intelligence in the graceful manner in which Whiteombe usually expressed himself. "An unfortunate affair that happened some years ago," he wrote, "and which I had hoped had been buried in the dead past for good and all, has been revived by some malicious person, and the law is seeking to lay hands on me. The matter could be easily explained to reasonable people, but the law, to quote Mr. Bumble, is ever 'an ass and an idiot.' I have, therefore, decided to withdraw from the scene for a time. You and Miss Wilcox are hereby relensed from any obligation, moral or otherwise." That was all. Nothing about salaries for that month (then due), or what was to be done about the business, or anything.

"Mr. Whiteombe of all men!" said Kitty Wilcox from between pale lips. "I would have trusted him anywhere. Such a good business man he always seemed to me—so masterful." Kitty had fallen for the mosterfulness of Mr. Whitcombe from the day he had engaged her.

"You see he never confided anything to me about the inside affairs of the company, and he kept the cash and the bank book himself," said Stebbins, a tall, nbstraeted, mild man whose disordered ralment had always been a source of irritation to Miss Wilcox. "I have no idea what's what, I'll go around and see the bank. But Whitcombe was always decent to me—paid me my salary regularly and all that. We might try and carry on his business far him. I suppose he'll turn up again—get a settlement or something—"

"I think that would only be doing the right thing," said Miss Wileox, eyeing Stebbins gratefully. "I am sure the business will make out."

The finaneial situation, however, proved on investigation to be bad. What Whitcombe had done with the cash that came in could not be ascertained. Very little of it was in the bank. Stebbins and Miss Wilcox managed to struggle along for a couple of months in heroie fashion. But then the end came. It came in the shape of a sherill's officer with a writ of seizure. There had, it appeared, been a silent partner, one Spencer, who had accepted Whitcombe's note. The news of the latter's hurried departure had evidently reached this gentleman and he wanted his pound of flesh. He seized what there was to seize—which was not a great deal. But it rendered the situation hopeless. Stebbins and Miss Wilcox took counsel once more.

"That eliminates Whitcombe once and for all—poor chap," said Stebbins. "And now that we are down to zero again financially I don't see anything for it but to wind up. And yet there are several good prospects—I believe the thing is going to go. But I would need to raise capital somewhere. I think we could swing it with a thousand dollars. But I don't know where to get it." He sagged dejectedly in his chair.

Miss Wilcox puckered her brow in deep thought. "Well, I'll tell you something, Mr. Stebbins," she said at length. "There is no doubt that Mr. Whitcombe by his energy and enterprise laid the foundation for success, although of course you have done wonders in following up. Let's be loyal to the absent one a little longer. Things may come right with him yet. Now I have a little money—partly saved and partly left me by an aunt. I'll put up the thousand dollars you need. We will make a business of it between us."

Stebbins could only grasp his admiring astonishment. "There are some good sports in the world yet," was his comment. "I don't mind sticking it awhile yet for old Whitcombe's sake. I'm a little doubtful now whether he really deserves it—but I will give him the benefit of the doubt since you wish it." Miss Wilcox blushed a little at this and made no reply. "At any rate," Stebbins continued, "it's your business now. And I am your very humble servant." He said this quite gallantly, such had been the effect of Miss Wileox's coaching since they had worked together. Indeed it was on the tip of his tongue to add: "and admirer," but he thought it might look like taking an unfair advantage. Besides he saw clearly enough that she still admired Whitcombe, and he reflected (somewhat bitterly) that if Whiteombe did show up again and clear himself, he (Stebbins) would not have much chance. Deep in his heart he caught himself harboring the disloyal wish that Whiteombe might be gone for good.

It was hard, uphill work for a while after that, but ultimately they began to draw ahead. Miss Wilcox developed an unexpected capacity for advertising slogans, and made several pronounced hits. Stebbins, who had never dreamt he might make a solicitor, began to find that men would listen to him—that he could actually persuade them to do what he wanted. Miss Wilcox, of course, was his inspiration, and he told her so. But she said that all she knew she had learned by studying Mr. Whiteombe. The business grew apace; the staff was increased by the addition of a draftsman and a girl to relieve Miss Wilcox of the typing.

And then Mr. Whitcombe returned. He come in one evening when Miss Wilcox happened to have gone back to the office to clean up some arrears. He found her alone in the inner room. Whiteombe was slender, graceful, curled, immaculate, and undaunted in the most trying circumstanees. He was undaunted now, as he shook hands with Miss Wilcox, while his keen eyes took in the air of prosperity and the signs of increased business. "I got my little affair straightened out," he said cheerily. "It was all very foolish—mostly misunderstanding. I have seen Spencer, too—about the note, you know. Too bad the mean devil cleaned the place out. But you're still going, I see. Who's the financial genius?" He glanced at Miss Wilcox appreciatively. She was worth glancing at too, with her pretty bare arms, brown eyes, and cheeks flushed with the joy of seeing her hera again. But she proceeded cautiously.

"Mr. Stebbins managed to raise a thousand dollars somewhere," she said demurely. "And so we are carrying on. We thought you might clear yourself and come back some day, and we tried to keep the business going for you. We are doing fairly well."

"Old Stebbins raised a thousand bucks!" said Whiteombe sitting down and laughing heartily. "What do you know about that! How did the poor simp do it?"

"I think he got it from a friend," said Miss Wilcox, losing color slightly. Then she appeared to enter into his mood, for her eyes met his understandingly. "But of course he is kinda simple—and slow," she said. "We have to push him along."

"You're a bright little kid," said Whitcombe admiringly. "That's why I chose you—and for your good looks. I don't suppose there's any cash about the place? I'm a little short." His eyes glistened avariciously.

"There's only a few dollars in the petty eash box," said Miss Wilcox, again meeting his eye understandingly. "But I ean write a check—I keep the cash now. There's five hundred dollars in the bank."

"Would you write me a check for $500, Miss Pretty?" said Whitcombe advancing towards her and faking her hands in his. "Would you do that for me?"

"Would I!" she said drawing her hands swiftly from his grasp and rising to face him. Before the indignant anger that blazed in her eyes he seemed to shrink within his elothes. "And so the first thing you sought to do on your return was to miscall and rob your best friend—the man who has netually built up this business for you against your return. No, I wouldn't give you one cent—neither would Mr. Stebbins—"

"I'm not so sure about that, Kitty," said Stebbins' voice from somewhere outside. He had come quietly in, and now appeared in the doorway of the private office. "It's as well as I happened up—just saw the lights burning from the street." He crossed to Miss Wilcox's side and put his arm around her. "I believe I might give him some money, Kitty—if I had any to give. But I don't think there's time to go into money matters, Whitcombe. I saw one of the sheriff's men that was up here before, hanging around at the entrance to the building. I think you could get down the freight elevator if you went quickly." Whitcombe went. And Mr. and Mrs. Stebbins are running the business to this day.

Weasel Is Relative of the Sable and Ermine

The weasel family has a corner on the valuable fur market, though the commonly known animal of that name is only a vicious killer of other animals, undignified by furriers except as the little-valued "summer ermine."

His Russian cousins, on the other hand, make the ermine and sable coats which have no peer for fur value. The ermine takes his color from his surroundings, so the most valuable pure white pelts come from far north in Siberia. Sables are hunted in the deep forests where the sun scarcely penetrates, and the difficulties of the hunt (20 pelts is a lucky season for one hunter) and the fact that the hair turns equally in every direction, hence never looks worn, adds to its value.

Mink is another of this handsomely furred family, and the American variety of this species is superior to the Asiatic or Chinese type. Kalinsky, a name once applied to a good Asiatic breed af mink, is now used to refer to the Siberian fur which is long and silky, but has light yellow under fur so that it is almost always dyed to sable or marten tones. The kolinsky furs are always marketed without tails, which are converted into artists' brushes.

The marten, an American cousin of the Russian sable, states a writer in the Philadelphia Record, produces a fine, dense bluish-brown fur with overhairs almost as long as those of the fox. The European baum marten has lighter fur and throat markings, but when dyed so closely resembles Russian sable that only an expert can distinguish the difference.

FARM TOPICS

SUNSHINE, SULPHUR FOR CHICKEN LICE

Combination Is Effective in Parasite Control.

Sunshine and sulphur are being united as a team to fight external poultry parasites, including lice and "sticktight" fleas, in a series of experiments by Dr. M. W. Emmel of the Florida Agricultural Experiment station at Gainesville, Fla. Usually parasites of this type are controlled by external treatment, but Dr. Emmel's work is unique in that he controlled these parasites by the simple expedient of adding five per cent commercial flour sulphur to the laying mash.

A preliminary report of this work was published recently in the Journal of the American Veterinary Medical Association. The report stated that chickens were completely rid of lice by feeding them sulphur for a three-weeks period.

Oddly enough, the experiments indicated that feeding of sulphur alone was less effective when the birds were confined indoors than when they had access to sunlight. The first infestation was reduced only 25 per cent when the birds were confined. However, when the same birds were exposed to the sunlight, the parasites disappeared completely within one week.

In order to check on the "sulphur and sunshine" treatment, four "control birds" were exposed to exactly the same conditions, except that they were given no sulphur. This group showed no visible reduction in infestation, either indoors or out.

In other tests, sulphur feeding was combined with the spreading of sulphur about the yards and in the houses in a "two-way" treatment for combating "sticktight" fleas. The sulphur diet was augmented by adding 100 pounds of sulphur to each 400 square feet of yard area, and by placing a light coating of sulphur on the floor of the houses under the litter.

Sulphur was found to be effective, also, in controlling the chicken mite in infested poultry houses. After the houses were cleaned as thoroughly as possible, sulphur was placed on the floors, droppingboards and nests to a depth of one-sixteenth of an inch. The mites began to disappear shortly, and at the end of a week, control was apparently complete.

Growing Out the Calves Profitable to Dairymen

Professor Savage from Cornell university believes that the cow and the man who feeds her are more important than the feed formula. Where other items are properly controlled he has demonstrated that cows hardly know the difference when changed abruptly from a 21 per cent mixture to a 20 per cent or even a 16 per cent protein mixture. He does say, however, that if the hay contains one-third or more of legumes it is not necessary to feed grain containing more than 16 per cent protein.

No dairy farmer can expect a profitable herd if he neglects to properly grow out his calves. Professor Savage believes a calf ought to have 350 pounds of whole milk during its first eight weeks and this should be supplemented by a good calf starter until the calf is well able to take care of a standard fitting ration.

A calf starter used successfully at Cornell is made up of 645 pounds ground corn, 560 pounds rolled oats, 200 pounds bran, 100 pounds linseed meal, 60 pounds white fish meal, 400 pounds dried skimmilk, 10 pounds steamed bone meal, 10 pounds ground limestone, 10 pounds salt, 5 pounds reinforced cod liver oil.

Of Interest to Farmers.

Quarter pound eggs are laid by a Manchurian breed of chickens.

Watch closely for throat infection. It spreads rapidly and will result in death by choking.

Ducks can be bled in the mouth the same as turkeys or chickens; this is the proper way to kill them.

Estimated annual loss to poultry industry in the United States from eggs that fail to hatch is $20,000,000.

Sunflower seeds are very high in protein and fat and are unlike most of the other poultry grains that we use.

Eggs laid by Kentucky hens in one year would reach around the earth at the equator if placed end to end.

The color of egg shells depends on the breed of hens. It in no way indicates difference in food value or quality.

danger of shortage, housewives invaded the stores, bought them out lock, stock and barrel. This action probably made a few cool million for speculators, created an unnecessary shortage, placed the retailers in an embarrassing position in not being able to meet the unprecedented demand on such short notice. Well, folks will have their winter's supply, anyway, and, you can bet prices will soon be back to normal. Barnum certainly was right!

Must be the mackinaw trout are hitting these days, for Monday afternoon I caught one myself. It was the first one this season after about a dozen trips. The boat took five for the day—lish weighing 13, 12, 11, 8 and 5 pounds. Was somewhat of a record as far as I'm concerned. Otherwise the boys have been getting 'em right along and the remaining weeks of the trolling season should be very productive. The steelhead fishing hasn't produced much yet. Four were brought into Dan Clothier's last Wednesday, but since that time results haven't been startling. Saw A. D. Goldman with a nice one Thursday, too. They should be "on" within another week, though.

Northern Michigan experienced its first frost of the fall season Tuesday night. It was a white frost and did not produce any damage.

Heard a fellow complaining strenuously Monday about the lack of proper garbage disposal facilities in the alleys behind some of our Bridge street business establishments. He accused one institution of failure to use garbage cans during the entire summer, stating rotten fruits, meat scraps, etc., littered the rear of the store, accounting for millions of flies. This person's right in making the complaint is perfectly just and reasonable, presenting a situation which certainly should demand the attention of officials whose duties are to correct such conditions.

Black bears, whose raids on beehives, orchards and sheep-herders' flocks have exhausted the patience of Michigan legislators, are finding defenders in a majority of counties where they are numerous. The conservation commission, meeting September 18, is expected to extend protection to bears in 32 Michigan counties, including our own. The legislature in its recent session, eyeing bill- for bear damage totaling more than five thousand dollars, approved payment but voted to remove the animals from the protected list. The legislature qualified their action, however, in authorizing the commission to restore protection to bears in any county. In counties in which such protection is extended, it will be unlawful to hunt bears except during the open season on deer, November 15-30.

ATWOOD CHURCH FETES ITS 50TH ANNIVERSARY

Program September 7th Observed Founding in the Year 1889

The Atwood Reformed church celebrated its 50th anniversary last Thursday evening, September 7th.

A program was given which included music by Miss Geneva Ruis, singing by Lester VanDenBerg, by the choir and the male quartette. Reading of the history was given by Rev. C. Meenga, and an address, "After Fifty Years — What?" by Rev. G. Rozeboom, a former pastor.

The Atwood Reformed church was organized on September 10, 1889. Eight families formed the nucleous upon which the future church was to be built. In the fifty years eleven pastors have served the church. At the present time the church is comprised of 73 families with 157 communicant members and 94 baptized non-communicant members. There are three charter members still living, viz: Mrs. Lucy Klooster, Ellsworth; Mrs. John Idema, Long Beach, Calif., and Mrs. Cornelius Sprick, Vriesland.

After the program a lovely lunch was served in the church parlor.

MUSICALE AT CONG. CHURCH FRIDAY WAS A VERY ENJOYABLE EVENT

At the invitation of Mrs. A. J. Stelter, several of Charlevoix's music lovers enjoyed a rare treat Friday afternoon at the Congregational church at 3:30.

Mrs. Waldo C. Johnston of New York, accompanied by Mrs. S. W. Mower of Ironton, presented three violin solos, "Graze" by Friedman Bach, "Slow Movement Wieniawski Concerto" and "En Batean" by Debussy, which were given in a most commendable and punctilious manner.

Mrs. J. R. Hattstaedt of the Belvedere club, who is connected with the Conservatory of Music in Chicago, sang two groups of songs accompanied by Mrs. Stelter at the piano. Mrs. Hattstaedt has sung at the Congregational church at various times during her sommers here and is always most enthusiastically received.

Oliver Stewart, tenor soloist for the Cathedral of St. John the Divine and the Park Avenue Baptist church of New York City, accompanied by Mrs. Stelter at the organ, sang four selections, "Rempiante Serenade" by Toselli, "Don't Go My Love" Hagenman, "Where'er You Walk", Handel, "Just For Today", Blanch Seavon and "Open The Gates To The Temple", Mrs. E. Knapp.

The audience was greatly impressed by the quality, range and volume of Mr. Stewart's voice and considered it a distinct pleasure to hear such a prominent singer who has toured in concerts through the United States, Canada, South America and Europe. Mr. Stewart is a guest in the home of Mrs. Harry Millikin at Walloon Lake.

At the close of the musical program a reception and tea was held at the home of Mrs. Stelter with Mrs. R. F. Sloan presiding at the tea table.

HWY. RAG WEED ERADICATION TO CONTINUE

Program of Highway Department Meets With Public Favor

State Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner decided this week the highway department's newly initiated policy of destroying ragweed along right-of-ways would be continued through his administration.

The original order to maintenance crews to clear the weed, which irritates hay fever sufferers, from 9,000 miles of trunkline right-of-way brought a flood of commendatory and critical comments from hay fever victims.

Two changes in curricular schedule are announced by Supt. O. P. North. Twice each week high school students will have the opportunity to do bible study work during the activity period. Each church in the city is being invited to have a representative for this instruction. The students who wish, may select any class they care to attend. Another innovation is a policy by which points can be applied for graduation credit through activities such as band, athletics, play production, class officership, committee work, etc. Enough points earned will allow one-half to one credit which can be counted in with the 16 credits allowed for graduation.

Ironton high school and eighth grade students will attend Charlevoix high school this year. The 8th grade of Ironton school has been discontinued and the district has provided a bus to transport the students. The plan of inviting Ironton students to attend school here is in line with a policy to take rural students up to the capacity of the present school system. Regular bus service for Charlevoix students will start the opening day of school.

"A" [illegible] will be erected at the stadium this year, instead of the staggered system of previous years. This plan is adopted as a safety measure bringing the entire student body out to street at the same time, and at the same time lessening the hours for students street patrol.

Necessary repairs and maintenance work on the school buildings has been done. A new ceiling is being placed in the hall of the high school building. Six rooms in the grade building have been repainted.

The Cooking School

The Charlevoix Courier wishes to express its grateful appreciation to the merchants of Charlevoix whose splendid cooperation has made possible the publication of this special Cooking School edition. It is our endeavor to send a copy of the special edition into every home in Charlevoix and rurals, thereby giving the advertising merchants a fine newspaper coverage.

The Cooking School, under the personal direction of Mrs. Helene Sailer, will be held in the Charlevoix High School gymnasium on Friday and Saturday, September 15 and 16, with sessions on Friday from 2 to 4 p. m. and from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m., and on Saturday from 2 to 4 p. m.

All sessions of the school are free to the public. Many local merchants will have displays in the gymnasium and their merchandise will be used by Mrs. Sailer in demonstrating numerous methods of preparing and serving delicious dishes.

The women of Charlevoix and Charlevoix county are cordially invited to attend. If you can't come to all three sessions, come to at least one; you will like Mrs. Sailer, for not only is she an expert home economist but she is a gracious and charming hostess. Bring your note books with you, take down the recipes as she demonstrates methods of preparing economical, tasty dishes, and then, when you return home, try them out in your own kitchen.

We ask you to look on this school as a community affair, to which every one of you is most cordially invited.

TRAVERSE WILL STAGE POTATO, APPLE SHOW

One Thousand Dollars in Prizes Provided for Exhibit Nov. 8-10

Potato and apple growers of Charlevoix county are expected to collect a generous share of the thousand dollar prize money which will be distributed at the Northern Michigan Potato and Apple Show to be held in Traverse City on November 8, 9 and 10.

This event will include farmers of 31 Northern Michigan counties and will undoubtedly be the biggest show of its kind ever held in this part of the state.

The State Department of Agriculture fair fund has donated a thousand dollars to be distributed as prize money and, in addition, merchandise prizes for attendance and other special features will be provided by local merchants.

A poster contest, open to high school students throughout Northern Michigan, is also being staged in connection with the show.

Active sponsorship of the potato and apple show is from the agricultural agents of the 31 counties in this part of the state, potato and apple growers and the agricultural committee of the Traverse City Chamber of Commerce.

Last year there were 550 entries in the show and this year it is fully expected that a thousand will be placed in the gymnasium and auditorium of Central high school when the show opens.

HEAT RIDS HOME OF PESKY MOTHS

Lighting up the furnace in midsummer may not appeal to the average family. But if members are troubled with clothes moths and can arrange to stay out of a superheated house for about a day, this is a good way to get rid of moths.

Even in summertime there are blankets on the beds or in the closets, woolen clothing, and unprotected upholstered furniture. The idea that moths will not attack these articles if they are in frequent use is in error. Moths will lay eggs at any time on any suitable feeding-ground for their larvae, say entomologists at Michigan State college. The pests prefer dark, unexposed spots, such as folded blankets or clothing hung in the back of the closet for days at a time, but they are no respectors of garments.

All forms of moths are killed upon exposure for a short time to temperatures of 125° to 130° F. Newly hatched larvae die at 100° F. Where heat penetration is required, as in upholstered furniture, the interior itself, not the air about it, must be raised to 125° to 130° F.

The heating system used in winter weather will produce these temperatures on a hot summer day if the house is closed—with no more fire hazard than in any other season, the entomologists say. About 12 hours is required to get the desired temperatures everywhere in the house.

This method also destroys other insect pests such as carpet beetles, bedbugs, and weevils. It is wise to safeguard food from effects of the prolonged heat.

NEW TRAFFIC LAWS EFFECTIVE SEPTEMBER 29—STUDY THEM!

Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of articles, prepared by the Michigan State Police, high-spotting Michigan's new traffic law which becomes effective September 29. Important changes have been made in customary driving habits. Greater safety—and fewer traffic arrests—will result from a close study of these articles.

Speed Limits

The legal speed limit under Michigan's new traffic law is 25 miles per hour in both business and residential districts. It was formerly 15 miles per hour in business districts and 20 miles per hour in the residential districts.

Local authorities may establish higher speed limits in either business or residential districts. In no case may such limits be less than 25 miles per hour.

All highways on which the limit is set in excess of 25 miles an hour must be designated as through highways and adequate signs posted informing the motorist of the permissable speed. Entrances to such highways, the Michigan State Police point out, must be posted with stop signs.

Within cities and villages the state highway commissioner may increase speed limits on state highways outside of business districts. Adequate signs will inform motorists of such limits in excess of 25 miles per hour.

Signs are not necessary in business or residential districts except where the limit is in excess of 25 miles per hour. Motorists driving on unmarked streets in either business or residential districts are subject to the 25 mile per hour limitation.

On the open road outside the limits of cities and villages, a safe and prudent speed is lawful. The new law, however, in the case of vehicles towing other vehicles or trailers, set a definite speed limit of 50 miles per hour. This applies especially to house trailers.

Speed regulations of this act are based on recommendations of the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety, and puts Michigan in step with other states in a uniform traffic code.

Traffic Control Signals

The state's new traffic law prohibits right-hand turns on a red light. Red means stop for all traffic—including the driver who heretofore has been swinging to the right around an intersection into the flow of traffic moving on the green. This driver, hereafter, stops on the red, and makes his turn only when he has the green signal.

Flashing red means stop. It is to be interpreted the same as a stop sign.

Flashing yellow or amber means caution.

Green means vehicles may go straight ahead, right or left unless a sign prohibits such turns. Traffic proceeding on the green must, however, yield the right-of-way to other vehicles and pedestrians lawfully within the intersection.

Yellow or amber shown with green requires that vehicles be brought to a stop before entering the intersection if such stop can be made in safety.

If a green arrow is shown with the red light, vehicles may cautiously enter the intersection to make the movement indicated by the arrow, but must yield the right-of-way to other traffic.

Legal placing of lights in traffic signals, the Michigan State Police point out, calls for red at the top, yellow or amber in the middle and green at the bottom.

Pedestrians

Michigan's new traffic regulations impose a definite responsibility on the pedestrian in its traffic safety provisions. The law governs his movement the same as it governs movement of vehicular traffic.

Pedestrians may cross a street or highway on the green light. If the yellow or amber light is showing they should not attempt to cross because there is insufficient time. They should not enter the intersection on the red light. However, if they do, they must not interfere with traffic.

If "walk" signals are in use, pedestrians should cross intersections on the "walk" signal. If a "wait" signal is in place, no pedestrian shall start across the street while such signal is showing.

It is especially important, the Michigan State Police point out, that pedestrians observe traffic signals so as not to interfere with vehicular traffic and to thus better insure their own safety.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE NEWS BULLETIN

No More Special Plates

On and after March 1, 1940, all trick license plates will be taboo in Michigan. The familian designations such as PDQ, BOO, I. O. U., and OUT 3, will be missing from the highways, Harry F. Kelly, secretary of state, has decreed.

The 1940 automobile license plates will be uniform for every car no matter by whom owned. The 1940 license plates will have two letters and four numbers, the letters designating the county in which the plate is issued so that laws enforcement officers can tell at a glance where the car is registered.

When Harry F. Kelly took office last January he found in existence an astonishing array or variety of confusing license plate numbers. Hundreds of requests for similar numbers were on file, but these were promptly denied. "It was of course impossible for Mr. Kelly to recall the hundreds of "special" numbers which had been issued formerly.

"There will be no more of the confusion that resulted from the practice of issuing a huge variety of license plates which placed an almost insurmountable impediment in the way of police agencies in their effort to enforce the law and track down criminals," said Mr. Kelly.

Uniformity of 1940 license plates will make possible a key filing system from which information can be given speedily to officers concerning any car that is sought, a very important matter in police work.

The secretary of state says that a saving of approximately $50,000 will result in the discontinuance of special plates. The saving will be in the cost of the plates and in the administrative and accounting costs at Lansing.

Decision to abandon the practice of issuing this type of plate was reached after a conference by Mr. Kelly with representatives of the Michigan Sheriffs association, the Michigan State Police, and the Detroit Police.

LAW ENFORCEMENT ON GREAT LAKES

Michigan Patrol Boat No. 1, operated by the Michigan Department of Conservation, lifts a deep-water trap net set near the Lansing Shoal in northern Lake Michigan. The net was confiscated because it was set in water deeper than allowed by law and because the size of the mesh was smaller than permitted by law. The enforcing of regulations which control the operations of commercial fishermen in Michigan waters is an important duty of the Department.

States treasury will pour into Michigan $3,250,000 during the 1939-40 fiscal year.

Because this federal agency was the only one under Paul McNutt's wing at Washington to receive from congress an increase in federal appropriations (WPA funds being cut, for example), we journeyed 47 miles from the state capital to Waterloo (M92 between Chelsea and Stockbridge) to examine first-hand this unique venture into "new education."

How It Began

Three years ago the Ann Arbor Rotary club, inspired by Dr. Max Peet, a surgeon at the University of Michigan, made a survey of high school graduates. Many of them were found to be unemployed. Their parents could not afford the price of a college education.

A "learn as you work" camp was suggested.

The National Park Service had just started to convert a rugged lake-woods-and-farm area near Waterloo from unprofitable agriculture to public recreational use. Land was provided along Cassidy lake in Jackson county at $1 a year.

The National Youth ndministration agreed to build and maintain the camp.

Thus came into being "Cassidy Lake Tech", a junior college-vocational training school for boys 18 to 21 years of age, situated a short distance from Chelsea and Stockbridge amid a beautiful setting of woodlands and small lakes.

Here come boys from every section of Michigan to work four hours each day, except Sunday, on productive projects for the National Park Service and also to engage for three hours each day in "work experiences" designed to fit them for a job. Permnaent buildings, country club style, were constructed.

Co-operative Living

The boys receive $30 a month. The government then deducts from this amount the "cost" of what is called "co-operative living" — that is, the expense for food, heat, living, medical and dental services, and so on—estimated at $20 a month. This lenves $10 a month with which n boy may buy clothes, haircuts, luxuries, etc.

Uncle Sam supplies the cost of equipment nnd administration whereby competent instructors known as "counsellors", supervise work-study in a woodshop, machine shop, automobile shop, and on outdoor agricultural acres.

"Work experiences" are also available in such subjects as aviation, mechanical drawing, forestry, commerce, music, and even cooking. (The cook school, for exnmple, is said to be the only one of its kind in Michigan. A recent "graduate" is now assistant chef at the Statler Hotel in Detroit.) Forty boys are transported one day a week to the Ann Arbor nirport for training as ground technicians.

Each youth arises at 6 n. m., goes to a central mess hall for breakfast in shifts at 6:30 and 7 o'clock, and then follows a work-study schedule which is also maintained in two shifts. While one group of boys is in class from 7:30 to 10:30 a. m., the other shift is busy elsewhere at work on national park projects. The nfternoon program is just the reverse.

Twelve boys nnd counsellor reside in a cottage. New cottages, just built will make possible an enrollment of 275 youths.

Discipline consists of only the rules of ordinary living, keyed mostly to the Golden Rule. Boys may enroll and depart at any time. Absent are the usual relationships of teacher and pupil. Everyone lives and works together in a communal style radically different from the traditional American school.

The Experiment

This rural experiment for vocational experience is the answer of the National Youth administration to the modern complaint: There is less and less work in America today for boys of high school nge; consequently, grnduates are "too young" for industry.

A factor in this situation, it is confided, is a conviction among NYA leaders that Michigan public schools outside of the larger cities are neglecting the field of industrial education, and this in a stnte that rnnks high in industrial development.

As vocational nppreniceships risk hostility of orgnnized labor, the Cassidy Lnke "Tech" cnrefully avoids the implication of apprenticeship training. Instead, the boys who help to construct buildings under the guidance of union carpenters are known as "carpenter-helpers." The distinction seems a fine one.

Until n new regulation was made in Washington, the camp provided much of its own food in form of gnrden produce, eggs, chickens, and meat. These activities were conducted by boys nsjn "work experience" in farming, a sort of co-operative self-support. Washington snw too much chance for ahuse; now the war department supplies nll food on requisition orders. Administrator McNutt thus can sidestep any scandal over possible mishandling of food money.

Other NYA Projects

According to NYA authorities, there are 80,000 young people in Michigan of unemployable age who are eligible for federal work assistance. Of this number, approximately 24,000 will be helped during the coming year.

Under the direction of Orin W. Kaye, state youth administrator, the government is to provide work projects for 8,200 boys and girls. Here are some examples:

A 200-acre experimental farm at Belding where 62 boys live in cottages and receive supervised "work experience" in growing produce and livestock. Food that is not consumed at the farm is available for relief.

Dowagiac resident resort school for girls, training them for jobs at summer resorts. (In cooperation with public schools, hotel training courses were offered last spring at Ludington, Benton Harbor, Charlevoix, Traverse City, Manistique and Grand Haven.)

Resident camp at Ironwood for training in construction and landscape. A federal resettlemental housing project is used for this program. Resident vocational camp at Cheboygan, utilizing a former music camp along the Straits. Boys are given "work experiences" in landscaping, woodshop and forestry.

At Michigan State college an old fraternity house is being used as a "cooperative" for 28 boys who study and work 16 weeks in completing an eight-week short course in agriculture.

Other resident work projects are at Houghton and Marshall. Elsewhere throughout the state are 47 work centers where boys go daily for supervised vocational training.

Program is Growing

The NYA nlso extends a helping hand to high school graduates who desire to obtain a college education but whose families lack financial means. Forty-one colleges and 786 high schools in Michigan are benefited by the NYA activity. For colleges the maximum allowance per student is $20 for undergraduates and $30 for grnduates; averages are $10.66 and $15.27 respectively. For high schools the maximum allowance per pupil is $6 a month; the avernge is $4.36.

The new allocation for Michigan will permit 13,000 boys and girls to continue educational studies in Michigan high schools nnd colleges. Of this number 10,700 students will be in high schools and around 1,300 in colleges.

"Cassidy Lake Tech", as the boys call it, is an interesting experiment in education. It is half junior college and half work camp. Class credits are unknown, although the camp has become an accredited high school district. The director is no pedagog: He is D. L. Miller, former probate court officer in Wayne county.

Last January around 100 boys were at Cassidy Lake. Today there are 178. By October 1 the enrollment will reach 275. In one West Michigan city 600 boys have registered for admittance to this country school at Waterloo. And why not? The jobless boy gets three square meals a day, daily experience at useful work to fit him for n place in the world, and a jolly good time in addition to $10 "pin-money" n month.

This federal experiment had its beginning in a project of business and professional men of the Ann Arbor Rotary club. The idea, startling as it may seem, was rooted in a practicnl demand that something should be done for Michigan's unemployed high school grnduates.

4-H Club Exhibits Featured at County Fair

Friends of 4-H club work will be greatly interested in the announcement of winners at last week's county fair. MRS. HELENE SAILER'S OWN RECIPES

Mayonnaise Dressing

½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon sugar
Cayenne
1 egg yolk, well beaten
2 tablespoons lemon juice or 2 tablespoons vinegar
1 cup salad oil

Combine egg yolk, salt, sugar, a few grains cayenne. Beat until blended. Add sufficient salad oil slowly, beating constantly, to thicken mixture. Continue beating, while adding lemon juice or vinegar, a little at a time, alternating with the remaining oil until all has been incorporated. If desired, honey may be substituted for sugar.

Honey, Apple and Cheese Salad

½ cup chopped nuts
½ cup honey
4 cups apples, diced
2 cups cottage cheese
½ cup mayonnaise

Mix apples and cheese together. Add walnuts, honey and mayonnaise. Heap on bed of lettuce leaves. Top with a maraschino cherry.

Honey Banana Salad

1 medium sized banana, peeled

Place on salad plate garnished with lettuce. With sharp knife scoop out a channel, fill with honey. In the honey drop pieces of walnut, across the center a little mayonnaise and a piece of cherry.

Thousand Island Dressing

1 hard boiled egg
1 diced pimento
2 tablespoons diced olives
¼ teaspoon paprika
1½ cups mayonnaise
1 tablespoon tomato-catsup
1 tablespoon green pepper chopped
1-3 cup chili sauce

Mix all ingredients together. Serve ice cold on head lettuce.

Sour Cream Dressing

1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon sugar
1-3 cup vinegar
1 tablespoon flour
½ cup sour cream
1 egg
½ cup sweet milk
1½ teaspoons butter
½ teaspoon salt

Beat the egg and add the milk. Mix all the dry ingredients and beat into the egg and milk mixture. Cook in a double boiler but do not let the water in the boiler boil. Keep on a very low flame.

Heat the vinegar and add, then the butter; stir smooth. Cool and add the sour cream. Chill and pour over salad.

Russian Dressing

6 tablespoons chili sauce
½ tablespoon chopped capers
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
12 tablespoons mayonnaise
3 tablespoons whipped cream
1 tablespoon taragon vinegar

Stir all the ingredients into the mayonnaise. Chill and serve over lettuce, cold asparagus and similar fresh salads.

Celery Salad

For this salad the celery must be very young. Clean it well and cut it into small bits. Serve with a French dressing and some hard-boiled eggs cut in halves.

Canned Kidney Bean and Vegetable Salad

1 red pimento
½ cup diced celery
½ cup black walnut meats
1 medium size can kidney beans
1 hard-boiled egg
6 small sweet pickles

Chop pickles and nuts. Mix all ingredients. Marinate in the following dressing for one hour, then serve with mayonnaise.

Dressing: Beat together 2 tablespoons vinegar, ½ teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons salad oil.

Ham and Bean Salad

½ head of lettuce
½ teaspoon salt
Minced parsley
½ cup boiled dressing
1 can baked beans
1 cup baked or boiled ham cut in squares
1-3 cup chopped green peppers

Method — Arrange lettuce on a platter or individual salad plates. Mix ham, salt, beans and peppers. Arrange in lettuce cups enough for one serving; hollow out a space in top of mold large enough to pour in one tablespoonful salad dressing. Sprinkle dressing with chopped parsley, chill thoroughly and serve.

FLY, SPY!

You brave and innocent dove of war! Your homeward trip starts behind the enemy lines. And your midget camera-on-wings, clicking away automatically, will spy over places where planes and blimps can't get. Cameras still more tricky than that could spy into an automobile engine being OIL-PLATED, but it takes no more than the naked eye to see the Conoco Germ Processed oil shaping up around "Full"—surest sign that friction isn't "hollowing out" any engine that this patented oil has OIL PLATED

OIL-PLATING is lubricant that cannot drain down from working parts during the longest parking or steadiest Summer going, any more than the plating on the bumpers drains down!

OIL-PLATING, created only by Germ Process action, knits lastingly to inner engine surfaces. They can't drain dry in a minute—an hour—a day—a week—or a season. Hence no gnawing "dry starts," waiting for oil to come worming up from where it drained to . . . not with your engine OIL-PLATED. And no oil-starved bare spots developing on fast long trips . . . not with every square inch in your engine preserved behind its drain-proof OIL-PLATING. By retarding wear and by refusing to fly off and fry up, OIL-PLATING is a double help to the oil level. Then get your correct Germ Processed oil for OIL-PLATING now, where you spy the sign of Your Mileage Merchant. Continental Oil Company

W. E. FLYNN MADE A VIRGINIA COLONEL

Recognition Awarded for Meritorious Hotel Work

W. E. Flynn of Charlevoix, managing director of The Inn, was on August 5th commissioned a Virginia Colonel in recognition of outstanding hotel work.

The title, which is conferred by the First Families of Virginia association, was added to Mr. Flynn's name when a commission was presented him by R. G. Barnhill, manager Martha Washington Hotel, Abingdon, Va., who had been designated by the association to select five prominent hotel men in each state in the union to receive the honorary appointments.

Mr. Flynn was one of the few hotel men in Michigan selected to receive the appointment, which is awarded for prominent work toward building better American hotels.

The appointment as Virginia colonel is not made by the governor of Virginia, nor by the state, but the honor is only conferred through the First Families of Virginia association and does not hinge on political influence.

Tutti Frutti Chocolate Cake

I especially like this cake since it keeps moist for several days.

1 teaspoonful soda
1¾ cupfuls of flour
½ teaspoonful of salt
½ cupful of seeded and finely cut dates
½ cupful of chopped nutmeats
½ cupful of butter
1 cupful of sugar
1 egg
1 square chocolate, melted
1 teaspoonful vanilla
1 cupful sour milk or buttermilk

Cream the butter and sugar until fluffy. Add the egg, and beat smooth. Add the melted chocolate and vanilla and mix. Alternate the sour milk or buttermilk, in which the soda has been dissolved, with the flour which has been sifted with the salt. Beat very smooth and stir in the dates and nutmeats. Place in a greased and floured small loaf pan (10 inches square). Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees). Cool and ice with:

Chocolate Fudge Icing

⅛ teaspoonful of salt
1 tablespoonful of butter
1 teaspoonful of vanilla
1 cupful of sugar
1 square of chocolate, cut fine
1-3 cupful of water.

Mix the sugar, chocolate, water and salt in a saucepan and cook until it forms a soft ball in cold water (238 degrees.) Remove from the stove, add the butter and vanilla and cool to lukewarm. Beat until creamy, then spread on the cake.

Prize White Cake

5 teaspoons baking powder
4 egg whites
¼ teaspoon lemon extract
½ teaspoon vanilla
2-3 cup butter
2 cups sugar
1¼ cups water
½ teaspoon salt
3 cups flour

Cream fat and sugar. Save out 1 teaspoon baking powder and sift rest of dry ingredients three times. Add to creamed mixture alternately with water, beating well; add flavoring. Beat egg whites to froth; add 1 teaspoon baking powder; beat stiff; fold into batter; pour into greased layer or loaf pan. If baking in two 9-inch layers, place into preheated oven set at 375 and bake about 30 minutes.

Banana Cream Cake

4 tablespoons sour milk
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon soda
½ cup chopped walnuts
2-3 cup shortening
1½ cups sugar
2 eggs
1 cup mashed bananas

Cream shortening; add sugar gradually and cream again; add unbeaten eggs one at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition. Then add mashed bananas with sour milk; stir well. Fold in sifted dry ingredients and bake in layers in hot oven, 375 degrees F., 20 to 25 minutes. Makes 2 layers.

Seven Minute Icing

1½ cups sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 egg whites
5 tablespoons cold water
½ teaspoon cream of tartar

Cook all ingredients except vanilla together over hot water, beating constantly with egg beater until thick (about 7 minutes); flavor; beat until thick and creamy; spread on cake.

PRESSURE IS EXERTED FOR EXTRA SESSION

Many State Officials Want Legislature to Reconvene

Powerful backstage pressure is being exerted on Gov. Dickinson to call a special session of the legislature this fall, possibly in October.

One of the principal reasons advanced is the anticipated necessity to provide larger allotments for relief.

Melville B. McPherson, chairman of the state tax commission, favors a special session to provide legal machinery for the collection of the intangible tax in 1940, instead of waiting until 1941, when the extra revenue would start to come in.

Gus Hartman, budget director, is caught on the horns of a dilemma to carry out the appropriations of the legislature when present funds are so low.

"The state for the last year has been in the worst financial condition of its history," stated Hartman. "By the strictest economy we can meet our obligations, but we can't do even that without a tight squeeze."

The budget director is concerned over the prospective demand for $3,000,000 to $5,000,000 more for direct relief.

NOW IS PROPER TIME CHECK HEATING PLANT

Fire Chief Asks Home Owners to Prepare for Winter Season

With cooler weather already here and the season for furnace, stove and fireplace fires in the offing, Fire Chief Charles Marshall today urged local householders to protect themselves during the coming winter season by having their heating units inspected now.

"Having furnaces, stoves and chimneys thoroughly checked over now and proper repairs made is simply a good investment," said the chief. "By having your heating systems placed in working condition now, you may avoid a serious loss due to fire later this year."

Chief Marshall also warned home owners to have their wiring systems inspected and repaired if necessary and see that all rubbish and waste materials which have accumulated in basements and attics during the summer months is removed. Both homes and garages should be cleaned up of all surplus articles which might be inflammable, thus eliminating hazards to life and property which now exist in many local homes.

POWER SALES TAX IS TAKEN HIGHER COURT

Municipalities Appeal Adverse Decision by Ingham Court

A circuit court ruling upholding constitutionality of sales tax levies on services of municipally-owned utilities companies has been appealed to the supreme court.

A committee of attorneys for 18 cities filed notice of appeal in Ingham county circuit court, three days after Circuit Judge Leland W. Carr ruled that imposition of the 3 per cent sales tax on gas, electricity and steam sold by city-owned plants was constitutional.

Water is exempted from the ruling according to a statement by Otto E. Eckert, superintendent of the Lansing board of water and electric light commissioners.

Legitimate sources of enjoyment should be encouraged by the state, and not prohibited.

AT THE MOVIES

"Mutiny on the Bounty," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's sea classic that opens September 16 at the Palace Theatre, is a picture that must take the highest place of all sea dramas converted to the motion picture screen.

Three stars top a notable cast of more than fifty featured players.

Charles Laughton, as Captain Bligh, far surpasses any performance of his spectacular screen career. He gives the role of Bligh the breath of life that only the original Bligh could give it.

Clark Gable appears as the leader of the mutineers, Fletcher Christinn, and through his characterization climbs one more notch higher as the most popular male star of the films.

A new screen drama that is really explosive, so loaded is it with the dynamite of timeliness and daring, opens September 18 at the Palace Theatre. It is Paramount's "The Magnificent Fraud," a picture whjch tells the story of a man who was brave enough to double for a dictator!

Director Robert Florey has chosen his cast well. Akim Tamiroff, fresh from his triumph in "Union Pacific," heads it. Master of characterizations ranging from a Greek gambler to a Russian sea raider, Tamiroff adds to his stature in the role of a dictator-actor. Lloyd Nolan, as a reckless, romantic American, the man behind the dictator, Mary Boland as an ex-darling of the dictator, Patricia Morison in a romantic rôle which really shows her talent, and George Zucco, as an honest-statesman, complete the featured cast.

"Million Dollar Legs" Features Betty and Jack

Those scrappy newlyweds, Betty Grable and Jackie Coogan, who have patched things up again, appear together for the second time in the hilariously funny campus comedy, "Million Dollar Legs," which arrives September 18 at the Palace Theatre.

Mystery goes merry when the Ritz Brothers, as three half-wit Hawkshaws, get on the trail of something big as an elephant and ten times as nasty in "The Gorilla," the 20th Century-Fox fun-and-fright film opening September 20th at the Palace Theatre.

"Chasing Danger" clear across the Sahara, a pair of camera daredevils run smack into romance — and an Arabian revolt — in 20th Century-Fox's hilarious, hair-raising film of that title which opens September 22 at the Palace Theatre.

Preston Foster is the dashing, daring American newsreel cameraman who rushes in where brave men fear to tread, and Wally Vernon is his comedy assistant and sidekick.

Lovely Lynn Bari is the beautiful siren who lures them into all sorts of entanglements.

Sunday morning service, 10:45.

Sunday school, 12 o'clock.

Meets first Wednesday evening each month at 7:45 p. m.

Reading room open Saturday, 3 to 5 p. m.

We cordially invite the public to our service and reading room.

"Matter" will be the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, September 17.

The Golden Text (Psalms 73:26) is: "My flesh and my heart faileth: but God is the strength of my heart, and my portion for ever."

Among the Bible citations is this passage (I John 2:15, 17): "Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him. And the world passeth away, and the lust thereof, but he that doeth the will of God abideth forever."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 356): "So-called material existence affords no evidence of spiritual existence and immortality. Sin, sickness, and death do not prove man's entity or immortality.

MRS. HELENE SAILER'S OWN RECIPES

Sandwiches

Fine-grained white bread, whole wheat, graham, rye and oatmeal are conventional sandwich material. Raisin and date, nut or Boston brown bread, wafers, crackers and cake all contribute to make infinite variety. Quick breads too may be used if cold and firm. Sometimes two kinds are used together.

The whole-meal sandwich should be hearty, so use fairly fresh bread cut a quarter of an inch thick. Picnic sandwiches are cut the same thickness with the crusts left on. Fresh bread is also used for rolled sandwiches. Fancy tea sandwiches or appetizers must be dainty and of wafer thickness so bread should be at least 24 hours old.

When a half or whole loaf is to be used, remove the crusts with a very sharp knife before slicing. The left over crusts can be used for puddings or crumbs. Fancy cutters shape delightful party sandwiches, and animals bring joy to the kiddies. Triangles, stripes, circles, crescent and rolled sandwiches are attractive at tea time, and may be garnished with parsley, water cress or nasturtiums.

Cream butter thoroughly before spreading. Sandwich butter can be made by using two parts butter to one part cream. Relishes, such as mustard, horseradish, chives, chopped parsley may be added to creamed butter for meat sandwiches.

Club Sandwich

Place a slice of the white meat of chicken on a thin slice of buttered toast. On this lay a slice of broiled bacon, a lettuce leaf and a slice of tomato. PROMISE OF SPORT NEXT SEASON

This operation, the final one in the rearing and planting of young trout, will be performed thousands of times during coming weeks as the fish division of the Michigan department of conservation empties its rearing ponds and plants nearly six million trout in Michigan streams. The trout—brook, brown and rainbow—will be six to seven months old and nearly legal size. More than 200 men will be engaged in fish planting operations. The above picture was snapped on the Jordan river.

APPLE COMMISSION ADOPTS TRADE-MARK FOR MICHIGAN APPLE

One of the first official acts of the newly created Michigan State Apple Commission was to adopt an official trade-mark, to be featured in all newspaper advertising and store display material, and as rapidly as possible, incorporated in the labels of individual growers and packers.

This trade-mark consists of a simplified outline of the lower peninsula (to which commercial apple growing is almost entirely confined) divided horizontally into three bands, the top and bottom ones green, the center one white. The top band contains the words "State of Michigan", the bottom one the word "Apples", while the center band may be used either for the grade designation, or for the individual grower's or packer's own trade-mark.

The use of this trade mark on apple packages, is restricted to apples of U. S. No. 1 grade, or better. Growers and packers, printers, lithographers nnd box makers, will be licensed by the commission to use the trade-mnrk provided the apples on which it is used meet the above stnndard, and the grade specification appears on the label.

For the first year, when so many labels and packages are already printed, the commission has prepared a 2½ by 3 inch gummed label bearing the trade-mark in green or white which it is furnishing to growers without charge, in quantities sufficient to place one on every package shipped.

Plate Production Reaches Increased Volume

Manufacture of 1940 motor vehicle license plates for the state of Michigan involves the use of approximately 1600 tons of 24 gnage steel and an estimated 13,500 gnllons of paint.

There will be made this year 2,220,550 sets of plates for 1940. To deliver them to the car owners and drivers of Michigan requires an equal number of envelopes and 15,000 cartons for shipment to the 173 branch offices of the department of state.

Plates for 1940 will show black letters and numerals on a silver nluminum background.

On and after March 1, 1940, all trick license plates will be taboo in Michignn. License plates will be uniform for every car no mntter hy whom it is owned.

License plates for 1940 will hnve two letters and four numbers designating the county in which they are issued. The decision to abandon this practice of issuing trick license plntes was renched nfter a conference by Harry F. Kelly, secretary of state, representatives of the Michignn Sheriff's department, the Michigan State Police, and other police departments in Michignn.

EDITORIAL

THE SOLUTION

A couple weeks ago Murl H. Defoe, Michigan liquor control commissioner, made a statement over a state-wide radio hook-up which interested us a lot.

He predicted th estate had an even chance of seeing the return of prohibition within a span of the next five years. And he may be right, even though this perhaps seems a little far-fetched at the present time to those of us who nre not acquainted with the facts in the case. But just as sure as the third drink is at least two too mnny that is what's going to happen unless drastic steps are taken immediately.

The liquor interests are as greedy now as they ever were ann they hammer their salesmen nnd representatives every day in the week for more and bigger orders. They are spending millions advertising in the most pernicious wnys imaginable to lend the public to bby their products. One prize manner is the association of their produrt with n famous portrnit, or lovely flowers, or an nttractive scene, so that if we like the flowers, the picture or the scene it automntically follows we should naturally like the whiskey advertised.

We nre not willing now to agree wholehenrtedly with Commissioner Defoe because men like him will discover an answer to this problem before it reaches the stage of nbsolute prohibition again. We all know what that was like and we do not wnnt it back. But men of the calibre of Murl H. Defoe, if kept in offices of the nature he nows holds, will solve this question before it reaches that point.

Prosperity is something to be enrned by hard work. There is no other way in which it can he obtained. It can't come ns a gift of the gods or of government.

A man is in jail in Ohio because he can't recite the Ten Commandments, although claiming to be a preacher. Such old-fashioned ideas! The Ohio authorities should learn that we aren't governed by such old horse-and-buggy stuff any more.

The state has no more right to encroach upon my birthright of liberty, than I have to encroach upon the birthright of another.

STRIKES

This time the strikes taking place in the country did not originate in Michigan. For that we nre thankful. We have strikes here of course but they are not as bad as two years ago. Most of them are the result of efforts being made by hard-working men to get nn honest break from their employers. Others of course are the result of heavy fisted union racketeers who should be kicked around themselves by the laboring men they represent, for they are doing more harm than good to the workman's cause.

We heard of one such case last week. The prosecuting attorney of Oakland county spent a whole day cleaning out a bunch of such high handed skunks from around Pontiac who had the CIO write them up a charter for the poor devils who are selling lish bait out along the highways. They do not make more than enough to be kept off the relief rolls at their jobs and then some smarty comes along and tries to organize them by threatening to salt their bait and wreck their little stands if they don't join.

This sort of thing can bring more sorrow to the cause of the unions thnn anything we know.

A strike, to be successful, must have the public's sympathy. This sympathy to their cause has been steadily decreasing the last two years only because of this. Let's not forget that, and remember, also, thnt some of this bad business stems from the hig manufacturer as well as from the union and reserve our judgment for a while as both sides can do a lot of cleaning house before we have labor peace in America.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT

Cross-eye a Serious Visual Defect if Not Corrected

Dr. R. R. Sachs, ophthalmologist of the Children's Fund of Michigan, is now operating at Boyne City and will move to Antrim county very shortly, where he will remain for approximately two weeks. From there he will go to Emmet county. Parents who have children with a "squint" or cross-eye and are unable to take their children to a regular ophthalmologist are advised to get in touch with their county nurse immediately in order that their child may receive attention.

No more pernicious advice is ever given a parent than "the child will outgrow a squint." Such advice, if followed, almost certainly leads to blindness in the squinting or crossed eye.

It is not known precisely what causes strabismus or cross-eye, except that the tendency is often inherited and generally appears before the sixth year of life. However, we do know that it is responsible for double vision and loss of the sense of depth.

It is not necessary to recommend in the case of a very young child that a delicate operation on the muscles be performed or unsightly glasses worn. These measures are for the more severe and obstinate cases. There is much that may be done to encourage improvement before the surgeon is consulted, though the ophthalmologist should be visited as soon as the squint has become truly noticeable.

Since strabismus leads to double vision, the child unconsciously suppresses or "forgets" the image from the crossed-eye and the brain receives no image from it. The trick is to prevent blindness by fostering the use of the defective optic.

When the muscles are only slightly out of balance, it may be necessary only to place "drops" into the good eye. This enlarges its pupil, causes a blurred image for several days, and the work of seeing and transmitting impressions to the brain is thus thrown on the bad eye. The use of a blind over the good eye is not recommended. Toys, pictures and games requiring the active use of the defective eye often enable it to become as strong as the other, finally giving normal vision.

In more pronounced cases, when an operation is not to be avoided, training of the defective eye must be continued if the effort is to be crowned with success. Glasses ground so as to pull the crossed eye into an alignment for single vision have been used with good results on children as young as 18 months.

Let's Be Careful About Disposal of Rubbish

The District Health Department for the counties of Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego received the following story: A swimmer stepped on the sharpened edge of a tin can in the waters of Lake Charlevoix, between Charlevoix and East Jordan. It came near to being a crippling cut. This is the story as reported to the Department of Conservation and the Department of Health:

"My daughter and her family were vacationing at our cottage on Lake Charlevoix. It is a beautiful spot and we all love it. We have put much work and considerable money into improving it. But there is a menace there which has caused us much anxiety.

"Every spring we have raked rusty tin cans out of the water along the shore. This year my daughter was swimming and stepped on an opened corn-beef tin can and cut her foot dangerously. It sliced the sole of her foot. The surgeon examining it stated that if the cut had gone an eighth of an inch farther it would have severed the tendon and permanently crippled her.

"No cottager would throw cans in the water. At the point where my daughter stepped on the tin, ten to a dozen cans were removed with a rake.

"There are various suppositions to account for the present of the tin cans in the water. One is that they were left on the ice by fishermen in the winter, and that in the spring break-up the cake or cakes of ice with the tin cans drifted into our cove. One of the natives told me that it is the habit of some townsfolk to cart wagonloads of rubbish onto the ice in winter and dump them there. Should this be allowed on a lake whose principal use now is as a vacation spot for people who have built summer homes and who have done much to beautify its shores?

Rubbish disposal is a problem, but it seems to me it should be solved in some other way, than by dumping into the lake."

This communication is so well put that it has been thought worth while to bring it to the attention of newspaper readers. Not only should there be no dumping into lakes and streams but there should be no dumping along public highways. Cities and villages have their public dumping grounds, and a little consideration by the citizen for the development of this region as a resort area should be sufficient to encourage use of such dumps for all rubbish. For the townships, boards of supervisors should consider the enactment of rules whereby certain designated spots shall be established as dumping grounds.

WILL ASSIST AT COOKING SCHOOL

Assisting Helene Sailer at the free cooking school to be staged here Friday and Saturday, September 15-16 will be Mrs. Marion Martin, representing the Home Service department of Michigan Bakeries, Inc., bakers of "Michigan" bread and rolls. Mrs. Martin, it will be recalled, had the stage with Mrs. Sailer at last year's school and her return this year is welcomed by Charlevoix housewives who had the opportunity of meeting and consulting with her at the previous year's school.

Mrs. Martin will bring a variety of new ideas on party refreshments, economical tasty dishes and many practical cookery suggestions. She has a number of sandwich ideas which will help solve the "What Shall I Serve" problem when entertaining.

School attendants will receive from Mrs. Martin free literature setting forth new recipes and sandwich suggestions as well as special souvenirs of the cooking school. Housewives with food problems are urged to consult with Mrs. Martin during the two-day event.

Admission to the cooking school is free and many prizes will be given.

CITY COUNCIL AIO TWO NYA PROJECTS

TRAINING SCHOOL TO BE ESTABLISHED HERE

Harsha Residence Selected as Headquarters for Group Thirty Girls — Provide Seaplane Float

City cooperation in two National Youth Administration projects was authorized Monday night by the city council at its regulat session.

Under one project the city and board of education become joint sponsors of an NYA training school, understood to be similar to the resort rourse conducted here last spring, only of a more permanent nature.

The Harsha residence on State street will be used to accommodate a group of young women to be trained in housekeeping, office duty through public offices, library training such as book binding, etc., through the public library.

The course will accommodate 30, it is understood, under a supervisor and three assistants. The students will live at the headquarters and, during a 3-month course will receive $25 monthly, $17 of which is returned for board and room, medical and dental attention, etc. It is understood approximately $11,000 has been allotted for the project. The city's cantribution for one year includes lights, water and small cash payment, all aggregating $500.

Due to its location as a resort center, Charlevoix has been chosen for this experimental project, the first of its kind, it is understood. Full details of the project will no doubt be released from official sources in the near future.

Cooperating with the NYA and Civil Aeronautics Autharity, the council authorized an expenditure of $100 for construction of a seaplane float 10 ft. by 22 ft. to be built according to government specifications. The project is one by which provision of landing floats for seaplanes is being made at suitable locations throughout Michigan.

BEST BIRD SHOOTING IN YEARS INDICATED

Conservatinn Dept. Reports "Pats", Pheasant, Are Plentiful

Indications are that upland game bird shooting in Michigan this season will be the best in several years according to J. H. Stephenson, assistant chief of the game division of the Michigan department of conservation.

Rulfed grouse, prairie chicken and sharptails are approaching the top nf the 10-year cycle with improvement having been shown each season aince the low of 1936. The top should be reached in a year or sa, follnwed by another gradual decline over a five-year perind.

The so-called cycle, whose causes are somewhat obscure, is reflected in periods of abundance and scarcity for habbits and snawshae hares alsa.

PREPARATION FOR FOOTBALL SEASON

SECOND WEEK OF PRACTICE SHOWS BIG IMPROVEMENT

Fans Observing Drills Predict Better Than Average Team—Heavy Backfield in Prospect

Practice in preparation for the 1939 football season has passed the preliminary stage and is now under way in earnest at south side athletic field.

A group of around 30 candidates seeking team positions are now well into their secoad week of drills and, if appearance may be taken as an indication, will farm a better than averuge team.

While Coach Ray Kipke has not given any indication of his choices for positions, the first team line-up in practice has placed Carl Braw and Jim Martin at ends, Max and Jake White at tackles, Ken Wilson and Elmer Poole at guards, Bud Kahler at center, and Tom Carey, Bub McGhan, Bud Bergmann and Ernie Nowland in the backfield.

Five of this group are veterans from last year's squad. McGhan played at half, Bergmann in fullback position, Martin at end and the two Whites in the line. If the backfield line-up used in practice so far is retained, Charlevoix will have the heaviest quartette of ball-toters in many years. Nowland, Bergmann, McGhan and Carey will probably average over 175 pounds.

Passing and kicking duties so far have been shared by Bergmann and Nowland, who are being groomed to fill the position held last year by Harry Withers, who was lost to the team by graduation. The candidates are being put through scrimmage drills daily, as well as blacking, tackling, pass receiving practice and play formations.

Charlevoix's schedule opens Saturday, September 30th, with Mancelona at south side athletic field.

FEW CHANGES IN WATERFOWL RULES

45-DAY SEASON OPENS THIS YEAR OCTOBER 1ST

Raise Possession Limit on Woodcock; Lowered on Geese—Other Regulations Are Listed

Few changes in regulations wavering the taking of watarfowl and migratory upland game birds during the approaching season are announced by the Michigan department of conservation.

Federal seasons, shooting hours and means by which waterfowl and upland game birds may be taken are practically identical with the 1938 regulation except that bow und arrow may be used this year.

Only changes of importance are the raising of the possession limit on woodcock from four to eight and the lowering of the daily bag and possession limits on geese. This season the daily bag will be four and the possession limit eight. A daily bag of five geese, with 10 in possession, was allowed in 1938.

Daily bag limit on rails, gallinules and snipe has been increased from 10 to 15 with 15 in possession. Daily allawed bag of woodcock is four. Daily bag limit on coots has been increased from 10 to 25 per day on advice of the U. S. Biological Survey. An enormous increase in the species is reported.

The woodcock season has been adjusted to coincide as nearly as possible with the upland game hird season in both the upper and lawer peninsulas und the long season allowed in other years on snipe, rails and gallinules has been shortened to coincide with the waterfowl season. The woodcock seasan in the upper peninsula will be from October 1 to 20, inclusive, and in the lower peninsula the dntes are October 15 to 31, inclusive. Other seasons, all dates inclusive, are: Ducks, geese, brant, coot and jacksnipe — October 1 to November 14; rails and gallinules (except coot)—October 1 to November 14.

Hours of legul shooting for ducks, geese, brant and coot ace 7 a. m. to 4 p. m. und for jacksnipe, rails and gallinules (except coot) and woodcock are 7 a. m. to sunset. All times are eastern standard.

Bag limit for ducks is 10, with 20 as the possession limit, provided that when any daily limit includes canvasback, redhead, bufflehead and ruddy ducks, not more than three of any of these species nor more than three in the aggregate may be taken, and the possession limits of these particular ducks are not more than six of any one kind or six in the aggregate.

BLIGHT CAUSING POTATO DAMAGE

MANY CHARLEVOIX COUNTY FIELDS ARE AFFECTED

County Agricultural Agent Mellencamp Advises Farmers on Methods of Handling Situation

(By B. C. Mellencamp)

Late blight within the last two weeks has been noticed in a good many fields of potatoes. Unquestionably, this disease is greatly reducing the size of the potato crop this year. Many fields observed are entirely defoliated and look as if a heavy frost had caused complete defoliation.

The late blight disease is raused by a downy mildew fungus and spreads by means of spores produced on the diseased plants, which are then splashed and blown to nearby healthy vines. Under cool moist conditions this scattering process is repeated rapidly until entire fields may be infected. Usually the disease is found only in small areas. Then within two or three days it may cover the entire field. At this particular time the tubers are badly in need of a week or two weeks of favorable growing weather and it can be readily seen what a great loss is incurred when the tubers are yet too small.

It is good advice to immediately spray your field with Bordeaux mixture, 8-12-100, or to dust with 20-80 monohydrated copper sulphate-lime dust which will hold the disease in check. In other words, if your field of potatoes has been sprayed properly throughout the growing year, you will have no trouble with late blight.

One more recommendation would be to kill the vines entirely where only a small area is affected. This can be done either with a mowing machine, scythe, or by spraying the vines with 75 pounds of common salt and 15 pounds of copper sulphate dissolved in 100 gallons of water. Even then it takes nearly a week before the vines are killed. These blighted fields produce blighted tubers; such fields should be dug during bright clear weather when the soil is not too wet.

Allow the tubers to dry thoroughly before picking up. Then place tubers in a temporary storage for a week or more to allow the blight to become apparent. The blighted tubers should then be sorted out or the entire bin of potatoes may have surface breakdown.

COOKING SCHOOL A SUCCESSFUL EVENT

LARGE ATTENDANCE PRESENT AT THREE SESSIONS

Fine Cooperation of Local Merchants Made School Possible — Numerous Prizes Given Away.

Saturday afternoon's largely attended session brought to a close the fifth annual cooking school sponsored by the Charlevoix Courier.

Introduced in Charlevoix for the first time five years ago the school has continued its popularity each year. Friday afternoon's opening session drew nearly three hundred women despite the intense heat. Slightly smaller attendance was recorded at the other two sessions conducted by Mrs. Helene Sailer.

The Courier is making an annual feature of the Helene Sailer cooking school, a demonstration which affords housewives of Charlevoix and vicinity a first-hand view of the proper methods of running that greatest of all businesses—the modern American home. Those attending unanimously expressed their satisfaction regarding Mrs. Sailer's methods which, instead of long, dry lectures, provides practical demonstrations, step by step, in the revealing of secrets of successful cooking and baking.

Features of the show were the serving by Martin Block's AG store with Mrs. Herbert Fox in charge, the demonstrations and stage assistance of Mrs. Marion Martin, representing Michigan Bakeries, Inc. Wood Bros. furnished Westinghouse electric equipment for the stage demonstration.

REGULAR SCHEDULE OF CLASSES NOW UNDER WAY

Initial Enrollment Figure, Now Only Tentative, Shows Increase Over Previous School Year

Charlevoix public schools are under way for the 1939-40 term. Classes were conducted Monday on a short schedule, but regular routine began Tuesday.

Initial enrollment, expected to increase somewhat in subsequent weeks, was larger than at the beginning and close of the 1938-39 term. Figures released by Supt. O. P. North show an increase of 12 pupils over the first day enrollment a year ago.

At the close of the second day of school, 318 pupils were enrolled in the junior and senior high schools, as compared to 301 last year, and 271 in the grades, compared with 266 a year ago. Following is the enrollment by grades:

	1938	1939
High School
Grade
12th grade	58	56
11th grade	60	61
10th grade	67	49

SHOT AT RANDOM

By Ken Usher

Michigan has something else to boast about now since Patricia Mury Donnelly of Detroit, was selected "Miss America" at the annual national beauty contest held at Atlantic City, N. J. The Wolverine state has a lot of "bests in the nation" when you stop to think nbout them.

We've had an opportunity during the past week to experience the extremes of weather. Folks who panted and gasped in a record heat of 92 degrees last Thursday and Friday crawled deep under the covers Saturday, Sunday and Monday nights as the thermometer slipped to near the freezing point. Despite the fact bathing-beach equipment had been stored away, hundreds sought relief from the heat at the Lake Michigan and Lake Charlevoix beaches last week. The cool breezes which broke last week's heat wave went from cool to cold and a killing frost has been escaped only by degrees. There never have been more delightful fall days, though.

The Traverse City woman who reported lilacs in bloom has nothing on us here. Have a lilac bush in my own yard with several clusters of blossoms on it at the present time.

C. M. "Mike" Laesell, an Ypsilanti Kiwanian who attended the district convention here, hands bouquets to Charlevoix in no unrertain manner in a letter written to Robert Bridge which we quote, in part, as follows: "Buck on the job with the nose on the grindstone for another year. But before I forget it I want to tell you what a grand time we all had at the convention in your lovely city.

LANSING LETTER

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

The World War No. 2 is already having a stimulating effect on Michigan industry and agriculture.

Again is appearing the familiar shadow of 1914-1918 when Europe's internal jealousies brewed a war boom in the United States.

"War profits" were reflected in newspaper headlines.

The Associated Press reported that Michigan's tool and die plants were rapidly going on a 24-hour daily production schedule, as orders poured in from Washington for preparedness aircraft output needed to back up our neutrality stand. Residents of Lansing were assured that the city's industrial system was in a better position to receive benefits from war munition orders than in 1914-1915.

To its upstate readers the conservative Detroit Free Press carried a top headline on a front page: "State farmers profit millions in war markets."

HIGHWAY MAPS NOW AT ROADSIDE SITES

New Systeai is Inaugurated by State Highway Departmeai

With the approuching close of the tourist season, the Stute Highway department was concluding another experiment in roadside series to tourists.

At 24 points dong the state trunkline system and in conjunctiun with roadside picnic sites, the department has pinced copies of the offlcinl Michigan highway map. The maps are mounted on rustic-stnndards not far from the roadway. They are tilted at a convenient angle and covered with a specially developed coating to preserve them from the weather.

The placing of these maps at rondside picnic sites was attempted only after some two years of experimentation to devise a mfthod of protecting the paper and at the same time keep the legends rendable.

State Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner pointed out that although this was a small service there was evidence that motorists appreciated it. He said tlnt the policy of plncing these maps would be expunded if interest in them warranted.

IT IS ILLEGAL NOW TO TURN ON RED LIGHT

Importaat Changes Noted in State Traffic Law Sept. 29

Editor's Note: This is the second of a series of ten articles, prepared by the Michigan State Police, highspotting Michigan's new traffic law, which becomes effective Sept. 29. Important changes have been made in customary driving habits. Greater safety—and fewer traffic arrests—will result from a close study of these articles.

Traffic Control Signals

The state's new traffic law prohibits right-hund turns on a red light. Red means stop for all traffic—including the driver who heretofore has been swinging to the right around an intersection into the flow of traffic moving on the green. This driver, hereafter, stops on the red, and makes his turn only when he has the green signal.

Flashing red means stop. It is to be interpreted the same as a stop sign.

Flashing yellow or amber means caution.

Green means vehicles may go straight ahead, right or left unless a sign prohibits such turns. Traffic proceeding on the green must, however, yield the right-of-way to other vehicles and pedestrians lawfully within the intersection.

Yellow or amber when shown with green requires that vehicles be brought to a stop before entering the intersection if such stop can be made in safety.

If a green arrow is shown with the red light, vehicles may cautiously enter the intersection to make the movement indicated by the arrow, but must yield the right-of-way to other traffic.

Legal placing of lights in traffic signals, the Michigan State Police point out, calls for red at the top, yellow or amber in the middle and green at the bottom.

Next week: Pedestrians.

NYA FUNDS ALLOTTED SCHOOLS OF COUNTY

Five High Schools Will Have $1998 Available for 1939-40

The Michigan National Youth Administration has allotted $1998 for 5 high schools in Charlevoix county for the school year 1939-40, Orin W. Kaye, state administrator, announced today. This amount, made availnble under the student-aid program of the NYA, will provide part-time work for approximately 37 students who would not otherwise be able to continne their education because of financial need.

Selection of students is on the basis of need, character and the ability to maintnin satisfactory scholastic averages. The allotment for each county is based on an index of need and the percentage of youth population. School superintendents and principals are given the responsibility of selecting students to receive jobs and the supervision of all work netivities in individnal high schools within the county. Students are assigned to such types of work as clerical and library service, classroom assistance, ground and building improvement and outside construction. Work done by NYA students must be useful and not infringe on the duties of regular school employees. An avernge of $3 to $6 nmy be earned by the student each month for this part-time work. Maximum monthly earnings under the school aid program are $6.

STATE COLLEGE INVENTS NEW TYPE APPLE SPRAY

Controls Coddling Moth and Prevents Wormy Apples, Claim

Science at Michignn State college has been invoked over a five year experiment in apple orchards to find a new spray combination which controls the codling moth, prevents wormy apples and yet does not leave a spray residue containing so much arsenic that the apples need washing before going to market.

Nearly 500 orchard owners in the state have heen using the new type spray in 1939, helping to prove with other 1939 plot tests by the college that a less hurmful spray still protects the crop.

And this is important this year, says Professor Ray Hutson, college entomologist, for crop reports indicate a harvest of more than eight million bushels in Michigan. To wash that many apples would be costly, to have that many wormy would be ruinous.

The secret lies in a combinntion of nicotine sulphate with bentonite, a type of clay found in large deposits in Wyoming and other states.

AGE LIMIT RAISED FOR THOSE ELIGIBLE FOR SOCIAL SECURITY BENEFIT

Persons who were 65 years of age prior to January, 1937, may become fully insured under the amended Sncial Security Act, according to Clifton H. Little, manager of the Old Age Insurance Bureau field office in Trnverse City.

"Heretofore such persons formerly were excluded from mnnthly benefits but with the pnssnge of the amendments it is possible for them to become fully insured. In order to do this such workers must earn at least $50 in each of six different calendar quarters after January 1, 1939.

"The wages of individuals who remain at work in commerce or industry after renching age 65 are now subject to the saine payroll deductions and taxes as those of younger workers. Those taxes will be collected back to Junuary 1 of this year or back to the date, if it falls in 1939, when the individual attained age 65.

"After having become fully insured indjviduals in the manner indicated, these workers will be entitled to monthly benefits when they retire from covered employment. In case such workers have wives who have also attained age 65, the latter will be entitled to supplemental benefits equal to half the monthly benefit of the insured worker. These benefits become payable upon retirement, starting in January, 1940, to workers whn have qualified under the amended Social Security Act," Mr. Little stated.

TWO APPLES SHOW OLD, NEW SPRAYS

These two McIntosh apples, sprayed in the old and the new ways, illustrate what Michigan State College entomologists have found in a five year series of experiments. Neither of these apples is wormy, but the one at the left, protected on the tree with an arsenical spray, needs washing before it could be marketed. On the right, also protected and not wormy, is an apple with no appreciable residue and what little spray still remains is harmless because the spray was a nicotine product. Adoption of the new spray by Michigan apple growers is expected to aid in producing a better quality apple without necessity of washing, which often bruises the skin and adds to production costs.

Home Economics Extension Groups to Meet on Tuesday, Sept. 26

The Home Economics extension groups of Charlevoix county will begin their year's work on Tuesday, September 26, in the Boyne City library, when the leaders will meet with Miss Helen Noyes, home management specialist from the Michigan State college. The discussions for the year will bring to the members the latest information about some of the household jobs which everyone has to do.

"Keeping the house clean is a family job" says Miss Noyes, but the mother is the overseer of it all and does a good share of the work herself. Everything that she can learn about new and easier methods will be of great value. The first discussion for the year in the extension groups will take up new materials and methods of cleaning, homemade cleaning materials, and efficient equipment for the job.

At two meetings they are going to discuss laundry problems and learn up to date information on such things as softening water, selecting new electrical equipment for washing and ironing, and taking the cod liver oil stain out of baby's new dress. The last discussion for the year is called "The Home Maker's Twenty-four Hours" and the members will take up the planning of time to get the most satisfactory living for themselves and their families.

Ram Truck Schedule Soon to be Announced

From a recent announcement the state ram truck will soon be in this district. This means again that any sheep-owner desiring to purchase a reasonably priced ram will have the opportunity of seeing a large number of high quality stock at different prices to fit the pocketbook.

In all probability the ram truck will not stop in Charlevoix county this year but will be either in Emmet or Antrim county so that arrangements can be made for taking care of all requests. Anyone having a purebred ram purchased from the ram truck in the past is given the opportunity of making a trade and will be allowed a decent price for the old ram. The probability is that the stop in this area will be on October 23 and will be close enough to this county so that our breeders can visit the truck. If you desire a purebred ram kindly get in touch with your county agent in Boyne City at once.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT

Infantile Paralysis

Infantile paralysis affecting for the most part children under the age of ten years has a higher seasonal incidence during August and September.

Parents should be alert to detect slight illnesses in children, because the disease may appear in extremely mild form at first, only to cause paralysis later, or a more severe form of the disease in another child of the family.

The early symptoms are often fever, headache, restlessness or drowsiness, vomiting or loss of appetite, perhaps a nasal discharge as in a cold. A little later the headache may become more severe and the child may complain of a weak back. Stiffness of the neck may be noted. After this period which lasts but a few days the fever subsides for 4 or 5 days, then suddenly reappears and the paralysis may follow. The period of normal temperature between the two periods of fever is diagnostic so that the first period of fever ought to be recognized and the physician called at once.

The great dread of all parents is the permanent paralysis which has occurred in about 50 per cent of the cases in the past year.

It is believed now by specialists in the disease that its early recognition may be the means of avoiding disabling paralysis.

This is true because the poison attacks the nerve cells of the spinal cord early in the disease and one group of muscles may be more affected than others. The affected muscle group must be protected by expert splinting so that strong muscles will not pull against those which have lost their nerve supply and permanently destroy any remaining usefulness.

Any manipulation of affected limbs, such as massage or manipulation of the spine itself has been shown to be highly dangerous.

In infantile paralysis the trained physician places affected limbs in cotton supported by splints which gives all the muscles perfect relaxation until the acute inflammatory process of the nerves has subsided.

The identical principle holds in the convalescing period when muscle training is carried out in a swimming pool under the guidance of experts in this field. The return of muscle and nerve function depends to a great extent on the proper medical care in the acute phases of the disease, but some remarkable results have been achieved with these crippled children.

AT THE MOVIES

Heralded as one of the most unusual films ever to come out of Hollywood, "The Women," with an all-star cast of 135 actresses headed by Norma Shearer, Joan Crawford and Rosalind Russell, opens at the Palace Theatre September 24 for an engagement of two days.

The story, based upon Clare Boothe's Broadway stage success of the same name, weaves the everyday experiences of women into an exciting comedy-drama into which laughs and tears are skillfully blended. Ultra-modern settings, smart clothes and a fashion parade add eye-filling beauty as a background to the razor-sharp dialogue.

Supported by a cast of more than fifty featured players, Walter Pidgeon and Rita Johnson are teamed for the first time in "6000 Enemies," described as the most gripping prison drama to reach the screen since the memorable "Big House" of years ago. The new picture opens September 26 at the Palace Theatre.

Daring in its scope, it is a story that could happen in any big city where the forces of vice prevail, yet one that has remained untouched on the motion picture screen until now.

We don't know why the Jones Family can't take a quiet trip like other people. Take their Hollywood trip for example—"The Jones Family in Hollywood," coming September 28, 29 to the Palace Theatre—no other family in the world could get into as many predicaments and funny situations as they do in four short days in Movieland! Maybe that's why we love them so.

Jed Prouty (Dad Jones) is selected by the Maryville Post of the American Legion to represent that group at the convention in Los Angeles. This is all the Joneses need to start the fun going. Dad's secret plans for a one-man holiday are brushed aside with schemes for hiring a trailer and taking the whole menage on the tour. Except for Shirley Deane and Russell Gleason, the new mama and papa who have to stay home to mind the baby, they're all in the film: Spring Byington, Ken Howell, George Ernest, June Carlson, Florence Roberts and Billy Mahan.

don't believe there was a hitch in anything. I also want to congratulate the city of Charlevoix on the fine trailer camp which they sponsor. I am a house trailer enthusiast. I have had my family in forty-seven states in our country, in four provinces in Canada and in Mexico. In all I have traveled a little over 20,000 miles with the trailer on my car. So you see I can speak from experience when I say that there are none that can compare with the beautiful setting of your camp, the convenience and the exceptional low rate that you ask the tourists to pay. I am already planning on spending some time with you next summer." Nice bit of praise, I'd say.

Elsewhere in this issue are two Conservation Department publications affecting hunting regulations in Charlevoix county. One announces the continued closing of St. James township on Beaver Island to deer hunting, the other prohibiting the killing of Hungarian partridge in the state.

Gus Leuenberger, that Ohioan pal of "Shorty" Sternberg's, showed the local boys how to catch big mackinaw trout! Gus landed a 21-pounder while fishing with Charlie Heise last Wednesday afternoon. He had a handful of blisters as a result of his efforts, but apparently didn't mind that at all. Just a "softie" if you ask me. Would suggest he soak his hands in salt water to get them tough before coming up after our big ones next year.

A week from Sunday, October 1st to be exact, opens the small game hunting season. It is needless to state that many of the boys are looking forward with anticipation to this event. Many will take to the duck marshes, others will trek to the upper peninsula after "pats." I hope to be included in the latter group. Tied the bird dog up a couple weeks ago to keep her from foraging at the neighbors and expect the diet to get her down to hunting trim. As for myself, imagine the first hour will have me dragging. It's all part of the sport, though, and the privilege of getting into the woods in fall repays for all the effort.

Noticed a Conservation Department news bulletin stating 11,685 bass taken from Lake Michigan by commercial fishermen have been transferred to inland lakes since early July. Suppose the idea behind this practice is to place these fish where the most sportsmen receive a benefit through the conclusion few catch them from Lake Michigan. Would be inclined to accept such a policy if it weren't for the fact we here at Charlevoix depend upon the migration of bass from Lake Michigan to stock Lake Charlevoix. For this reason, few sportsmen favor taking bass from waters in the vicinity of the Lake Michigan channel entrance, thus eliminating the fish which would otherwise find their way into the channel. Mention these facts because I understand bass trapping operations have been carried on out near the mouth of McGeagh creek and other nearby places. Something should be done about it.

And thinking about fish, brings to mind our steelhead. We have a law which limits the catch of steelhead taken while trolling to five per person in one day. On the other hand, Michigan fishing laws allow the taking of 15 from any of our rivers and streams during open season. Doesn't sound sensible, does it? It is common for one angler to take the legal limit of steelhead probably weighing an aggregate of 50 pounds or more early in May from the Boyne river. That's too many fish of such size for any individual. Charlevoix sportsmen, whose efforts for years have been to keep Lake Charlevoix stocked with steelhead trout, could well look into this matter. It might be possible to keep the lake stocked with a 5-limit, but it's going to be mighty hard if anglers are allowed to take 15 of these fish from the rivers before they return to the lake after spawning. Out in the west, in the wildest districts which few fishermen reach, the legal limit on steelhead is three. Seems that should be a reasonable limit for the heavily fished waters of Michigan.

There is a law passed by the last legislature which prohibits commercial fishing within a radius of two miles of the lighthouse on the south Lake Michigan pier. Wonder if this law is being observed?

SMALL GAME LICENSES DISTRIBUTED IN STATE

The Conservation Department Makes Ready for Upland Game Season

Distribution of 600,000-odd small game licenses to regional and district headquarters of the Michigan department of conservation and to agents throughout the state will be completed in another week.

Small game hunters this season will attach to the backs of their hunting coats numbered cloth tags similar to those supplied in past seasons to deer hunters. Tags supplied resident small game hunters will be dark green, those issued to non-resident licensees will be light green. Numerals will be black.

Resident deer hunters' tags, 230,000 of them, will be blue, non-residents' red, resident bow and arrow hunters' orange and non-residents' yellow, all numerals also in black.

Tags are three and five-sixteenths by nine and one-half inches.

At the capital city Governor Luren D. Dickinson diverted from his usual "sin-dancing-drinking" statements to declare that America's first duty was to keep out of war and he urged strict observance of President Roosevelt's neutrality proclamation as defined by congress.

War Profits

Much as the average Michigan citizen did not like the prospect of personal profit at the price of bloodshed overseas, he nevertheless read with relish the news of a pending war boom.

As steel stocks rose almost daily and steel plants hurried to speed production, lake shipping concerns announced that more ore-carrying vessels were being pressed into service. Early in August, one month before Hitler issued his invasion order, traffic through the American locks at Sault Ste. Marie was 42 per cent ahead of last year.

In the Upper Peninsula's copper and iron country, workers looked forward to the prospect of a busy fall and winter season. Copper prices climbed. So did iron prices. Old-timers recalled the prosperous days during World War No. 1.

Upstate farmers were told that the war boom in commodity prices would put $25,000,000 to $30,000,000 into their pockets for the 1939 crops.

"War profits" to Michigan farmers meant a hope of clearing away without losses the largest stored surpluses in nearly ten years as of last January 1: Oats, 71 per cent of the 1938 crop; corn crop, 75 per cent; and wheat, 54 per cent.

Hog prices were soaring.

The consumers' premature rush for sugar boosted prices nearly 50 per cent in a few days. Mayor Richard W. Reading in Detroit protested; Attorney General Frank Murphy rumbled about possible G-men investigations; Attorney General Thomas Read at Lansing declared that a price-fixing "conspiracy" among retailers would bring instant prosecution by the state. He added, significantly, that "the present crisis may succeed in doing that which numerous 'isms' have failed to do" for Michigan farmers.

Crops Improving

While mid-summer weather was approaching drought proportions, Michigan farmers entered September with crop growing conditions 4 per cent above August and 1 per cent above a year ago.

The federal-state crop reporting service said that 1939 crops would be well above 10-year averages.

And that news, coupled with the reflection that surpluses were still on hand, was immediately linked to headlines of rising commodity prices, due to the war.

Known to agricultural experts for a long time through republican and democratic administrations was the fact that farm prices have lagged in parity with manufactured goods. The AAA and soil conservation programs were aimed to effect an artificial remedy. As Attorney General Read observed, war profits may do for the grower what government planning had not fully accomplished.

Problem of Neutrality

Into the new picture of war profits was injected the issue of national neutrality and how it might be best maintained.

Michigan's senior United States senator, Arthur Vandenberg, announced that he would vigorously oppose any revision of the present neutrality act to permit "cash and carry" purchases of American munitions.

Vandenberg is the state republican central committee's choice for the White House.

Thomas Dewey, Owosso-born presidential possibility, made a plea for peace during his visit to his old home a month ago.

At Washington was Attorney General Frank Murphy in a Dewey-like role of a relentless Sir Gallahad against corruption and crime. While he had not joined the chorus in defense of the president's "cash and carry" plan, he was expected to do so.

War profits and neutrality thus loomed prominently in the Michigan foreground of coming events.

Spy Fever

Into the daily press and the motion picture newsreels Attorney General Murphy solemnly requested every good American citizen to come to the aid of his country.

Spies would seek to embroil America in the conflict.

Industrial plants where war orders were being filled for allied powers would be subject, it was thought, to extensive espionage and sabotage activity.

If you believe there is a spy in your neighborhood, quoth Murphy, notify the nearest G-man office of the department of justice.

State Police Commissioner Oscar Olander confided that his staff of 300 uniformed men and plain-clothed detectives had been instructed to keep a vigilant watch for foreign agents.

And so, with war fever came an accompanying pulse-quickener, spy fever, to the Michigan scene.

Hard-Boiled Budgeteer

Gus Hartman, Michigan's new budget director, is earning a reputation of being a hard-boiled executive in grim quest of economy.

For many administrations state employees have driven their cars to state garages before week end holidays in order to have gasoline tanks filled to the brim.

Official and personal use of state cars in many departments had become one and the same.

In announcing that he opposed any special legislative session to impose new taxes, Budget Director Hartman asserted that plain and simple economy measures could stretch the biennial appropriations to meet anticipated needs. This was easier said than done, as the late Governor Fitzgerald discovered when he sought to cut the state payrolls by millions within 60 days.

"Could Hartman deliver the goods?" asked many a sympathetic citizen. What was perhaps the first answer toward realization of his ambitious goal was Hartman's rigid order governing mileage use of state automobiles. Other drastic economy steps were promised.

A cloud in Hartman's economy sky was the prospect that higher commodity prices would add to the state's expense of maintaining its many institutions.

FARMERS CAUTIONED ON POTATO GRADING

Lax Handling Will Result in Heavy Losses to Producers

Agricultural Commissioner Elmer A. Beamer cautioned potato producers to use every care in the harvesting of the 1939 potato crop, pointing out that federal-state inspection records show that lax handling often results in the difference between U. S. No. 1 grade and Commercial grade, resulting in loss to the producer in difference in price between the two grades.

Commissioner Beamer pointed out that to meet requirements of No. 1 potato, the product must be "free from damage", damage being defined as "any injury or defect which materially injures the appearance of the individual potato or the general appearance of the potatoes in the container, or which cannot be removed without loss of more than 5 per cent of the total weight of the potato, including peel covering the defective area."

Particular care should be taken in digging the potatoes so as to avoid marking tubers with forks. Potatoes should not be thrown into crates from a distance and care should be used in emptying potatoes into storage, according to Commissioner Beamer.

GAMBLE'S will have a complete line of hunting supplies for season opening Oct. 1.—Adv. 38t1.

EAR-MARK PART OF FISH LICENSE FUND

FORTY CENTS OF EACH DOLLAR BUYS PROPERTY

Seven Other New Acts Regulating Fishing Become Law Sept. 29— Straight $1 License Fee

Purchase of lands that will assure continued public access to Michigan's best-stocked lakes and streams will be brought a step nearer September 29 when the new inland fish bill, with seven other acts of the 1939 legislature regulating fishing, becomes law. Forty cents of each $1 general rod license which residence fishermen will need after January 1 is earmarked for land purchase, for improvement of lakes and streams and for fisheries research. Plans are now being developed for the purchase of such lands which will consider every section of the state.

The wife of the holder of the new resident's license may fish on her husband's license. But wives of nonresident anglers must secure 50-cent licenses in addition to the $2 season or $1 10-day licenses of their husbands. By a separate act and conservation commission action, nonresidents are barred from ice fishing in Branch, Cass, Berrien, VanBuren and St. Joseph counties from January 1 to trout season opening.

Agents other than officers of the conservation department and persons who receive a regular salary from any political subdivision of the state will retain five cents of the fee for each license issued, under the new law. Wholesale minnow dealers will need a $25 license, though for retail minnow dealers the license continues at $3 as at present.

DELINQUENTS MAY LOSE PROPERTIES

SEPTEMBER 30 DEADLINE TO PAY BACK TAXES

Heavy Penalties Added After This Date and Failure to Pay by November 3 Means Loss

The state of Michigan means business.

The state is checking up on tax delinquent property. On November 3, if back taxes are not paid, the state will take title to all such property.

County Treasurer Lillis M. Flanders is worried. "There have been so many extensions of time, delays and moratoriums, in the past," she said, "that I am afraid some property owners will ignore this last chance to save their property."

People intending to redeem property should acquaint themselves with the provisions of the state rulings. It will pay them to do so.

This refers to taxes of 1935 and prior years only. Taxes which were sold at the May, 1938 tax sale may be paid this month (September 30 last day) with only a six per cent collection fee added. If, however, they come in on or after October 1, there will he heavy penalties added. First, there is a penalty of three-fourths per cent per month from the time the tax was due until the 1938 tax sale. After that date a penalty of one per cent per month, plus a four per cent collection fee, will be added.

Miss Flanders computed that a tax of $100 running since 1931 can be aettled on or before September 30 for $106. If the property owner waits until the next day (October 1) or later during that month, the tax on the same piece of property will amount to $186.50. It is highly important that people intending to redeem tax-delinquent property do so in the 3 days that are left in the month of September.

NEW TRAFFIC LAW EFFECTIVE FRIOAY

CHANGED REGULATIONS GOVERNING HIGHWAYS

Michigan State Police Bulletin Outlines Important Features—New Law Has Wide Scope

Radical changes in Michigan's new traffic law, effective September 29, which should be borne in mind by the state's two million motorists are:

Right-hand turns on red light are prohibited.

If a green arrow is shown with the red light, vehicles may cautiously enter the intersection to make the movement indicated by the arrow, but must yield the right-of-way to other vehicles, and to pedestrians.

Pedestrians should cross the streets on green light, although they may cross on the red if they do not interfere with traffic. When crossing on the green they have the right-of-way over turning vehicles.

Pedestrians must walk on the left side on rural highways, facing oncoming traffic. When sidewalks are provided, it is unlawful for pedestrians to walk on the main traveled portion of the highway.

Twenty-five miles per hour is the legal speed in both business and residential sections in cities and villages unless signs indicate the speed has been increased by local authorities.

Fifty miles per hour is the speed limit set up for trailer combinations when the towing vehicle is a passenger car.

It is unlawful to straddle lane lines on three and four line highways or to drive into the far left lane of a three-lane highway or to cross the center line of a four-lane highway.

All vehicles should be parked parallel to and within 12 inches of the right-hand curb unless angle parking spaces are provided. Except on one-way streets, vehicles shall not be parked at the left curb.

Two-wheeled vehicles shall not be ridden more than two abreast. Packages must not he carried which prevent the rider from keeping both hands on the handlebars. No person shall be carried upon a bicycle or motorcycle other than upon a firmly nttached regular seat.

Did you ever hear an editor's prayer? Here's a sample: "Blessed are the merchants who advertise, for they have faith in their business, and their prosperity shall increase many fold. Blessed is the woman who sends in a written account of a party or a wedding, for she shall see the details and the names of her guests reported. Blessed are they who do not expect the editor to know everything by telling him whenever an interesting event occurs in which they are interested, for they shall have a better newspaper in their town. Blessed are they who get their copy in early, for they shall occupy a warm spot in the heart of the editor. Blessed are they who do not think that they could run a paper better than the editor runs it—yea, thrice blessed are they, because there are so few of them in the community.

WINGS for WORDS

Distance . . . once a barrier to spoken words . . . has lost its power to limit the human voice. Today words defy the intervening miles, and two friends with an ocean or a continent between them talk as if face to face. In thus extending the range of man's voice, the telephone performs a modern miracle. It is part of the miracle that this is done so swiftly, so easily and so cheaply.

STORE EMPLOYES HELP TO HARVEST HIDDEN TAX CROP

Charlevoix county has an estimated 462 "unofficial tax collectors" who indirectly are helping local, state and national governments harvest their annual revenues, the National Consumers Tax Commission declared today.

The unofficial, and generally unwilling, "tax collectors", according to the NCTC, are the proprietors and employes in the 209 local retail stores.

"There are 8,905 official tax levying and spending governmental agencies in Michigan," said Mrs. Melville Mucklestone, president of the nation-wide women's organization. "But every clerk behind a store counter is actually a tax collector, too.

"In every sale, these clerks collect fractions of hidden taxes that have increased the cost of production and distribution of the article purchased. These taxes, of necessity, must be passed on to the consumer as a part of the price. A major share of all local, state and national taxes now are hidden to the consumers who pay them this way.

"The store clerks, of course, don't realize it any more than the customer does, but every ring of the cash register represents not only a sale but a tax payment."

The NCTC now has study groups in approximately 5,300 communities in 44 states in its educational campaign to expose "unnecessary consumer-penalizing taxes," Mrs. Mucklestone said. The crusade in this state is led by Miss Leetha C. McGee, of Detroit, state director.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT

Ready for School

Now that school days are back again, parents are confronted with the problem of health in relationship to school attendance. Now is the time above all others during the year when it is necessary to know the physical state of the child who enters school for the first time. Now the child comes into contact with numerous other children from various homes. If he is to resist the transmissible diseases he must be protected as far as modern medicine can protect him, and his resistance must be developed to the best possible state.

A vast number of children—perhaps 45 per cent of those entering school have correctable defects, including infected tonsils and adenoids, decayed teeth, defects of vision, speech and hearing, minor disturbances of the heart and perhaps beginning disturbances of the lungs. Certainly every child should have a complete inspection before his first year in school and thereafter should be examined at least once each year, preferably just before entering school again in the fall. Many a child has to repeat his grades because he has not been able to take full advantage of instruction as a result of correctable defects. Moreover, a child's entire future life may be ruined by a sense of inferiority and incompetence resulting from a failure on the part of the parents to provide the child with eye glasses, help to deficient hearing, instruction in speech, care of the teeth and similar matters. Incidently, the most common defect among school children throughout the United States is the presence of one or more decayed teeth. Actual examinations show that nearly two thirds of all the children in school have had one or more teeth that show active decay.

It is now possible to make reasonably certain that some diseases will be prevented by the use of inoculations. The two most definitely to be considered are inoculations against smallpox and inoculations against diphtheria. In some states such inoculations are now compulsory. The evidence is clear that children may be protected against these infectious diseases by suitable vaccination or inoculation.

Parents must also be ready to do what they can in the great campaign for prevention of accidents. Every year hundreds of children are killed or seriously injured in the street accidents because they have not been properly taught about such dangers.

When a child leaves home and goes out in the world, he comes in contact with other children who swap apples or candy, who play with knives or other dangerous tools. The little boy will meet other boys who like to catch rides on the back of motor cars. A warning will not always prevent this possibility, but sometimes it will. Children must depend on their parents or on their guardians to protect them against many hazards, until they themselves have learned where health and safety can be found. Parents and guardians must not fail in meeting this responsibility.

Among the Bible citations is this passage (Col. 3:2): "Set your affection on things above, not on things on the earth."
Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 261): "Hold thought steadfastly to the enduring, the good, and the true, and you will bring these into your experience proportionably to their occupancy of your thoughts."

IS YOUR HOME A STORE?

Many housewives in this vicinity will testify that house to house peddlers and solicitors of orders for this and that are becoming a constantly greater nuisance. We don't include in this category the representative of local business firms but rather the individual who attempts to make a store out of your home, who boasts that his firm has no local headquarters.

You are expected to furnish a place where he may do business free from the expense that reputable business firms of this community must pay. He insists on making you shop at his convenience no matter how much it may interfere with your daily routine. He takes your time arguing you into buying something that in most cases you neither want nor need, and then is gone where he cannot be found if the purchase proves unsatisfactory, which is oftimes the case. Very often you buy to get rid of him when you ought to say, "This is my home and not a place of business, and I am not going to permit you to use it as a store. Good day."

It isn't what a man has, but what he does with it, that counts.

GOOD SAMARITAN

Scene reenacted frequently on Michigan highways, as Michigan Department of Conservation officer lends hand with stalled automobile. An important duty of conservation officers is the supplying of road information and assistance when needed to out-state and Michigan motorists alike.

though it is 50 miles away from Michigan.

Together with the Civilian Conservation Corps and the National Youth Administration, the National Park Service is spending many millions annually in Michigan. This fact is a recognition in itself that Michigan, as well as being a major industrial empire (automobiles, furniture, paper, for example), ranks tops as a year-round vacation playground.

Because the National Park Service is a "silent partner" in this development, comparatively few citizens are aware of its activity.

A Resettlement Accident

That Michigan has thousands of acres of land unfit for agriculture is an accepted fact.

Much of this land consists of sandy soil which, while ideal for bathing beaches, is a liability to any ambitious farmer.

When the New Deal in 1934 sought to control production of foodstuffs with the hope of averting repeated surplus yields and low prices, a social betterment project was conceived at Washington whereby farmers on marginal lands would be resettled elsewhere. The government would buy their holdings at a reasonable price and would assist them to locate elsewhere where soil was more fertile.

In Barry county, west of Hastings, Washington agents bought up approximately 4,000 acres of picturesque, hilly country, dotted with lakes. It surrounds a community known as Yankee Springs.

In eastern Jackson county and western Washtenaw county, mid way between Jackson and Ann Arbor, the federal land-buyers chose a wide area, 180 square miles in size and more than 12,000 acres in all. Eight lakes are in this rugged, wooded section which radiates from a little hamlet known as Waterloo.

With some 16,000 acres of land on its hands, the government turned them over to the National Park Service. "Create a public playground," was the curt command. "Make it available at low cost to the masses of northern Indiana and Ohio, to the workers in industrial centers of southern Michigan, to the dwellers in countless small towns between Lake Michigan and Lake Erie."

Thus, under government auspices, Michigan's "little national parks"—Waterloo and Yankee Springs—are coming into existence.

Pump Sand for Beach

At the Waterloo recreational area is Hubert A. Lamley of Blissfield, efficient landscape architect and engineer, "boss" of the 12,000-acre program who is known officially as the "project manager."

"At Yellowstone Park the government is preserving a natural wonderland" he said. "Here, for example, are to be found the only geysers in the United States. But at Waterloo and also at Yankee Springs the National Park Service is creating a public playground where none existed before.

"We have two objectives. First, to provide general recreational facilities for the public. Second, to provide organized camps where groups may obtain health-giving outings at a low cooperative cost.

"For example, at Portage lake the National Park Service is creating a 12-acre bathing beach, 500 feet long, where only a marsh existed before. Sand-pumpers transfer sand from one part of the lake to the beach. We are providing a bathhouse of brick and timber. Next season there will be a modern camp ground for trailers and tents, equipped with electricity and sanitary facilities and laid out on a subdivision basis whereby each camping party will have a well defined lot, screened with shrubs.

"Since fishing will be a major recreation here, we have created a 17-acre rearing pond. This fall we will take out 1,200,000 fingerlings for stocking of Portage and other lakes. Some of the Waterloo lakes are not fished enough; Cassidy lake is overstocked with fish, we believe."

Camps for City Youth

Because the Waterloo and Yankee Springs "little national parks" are within easy access to a major part of Michigan's population, the National Park Service recognized a need for organized camps. The Detroit board of education is sponsoring several camps in the Waterloo area where underprivileged children are sent at low cost for a week's outing. The board sponsors health trips to the Mill lake camp where cottages have been provided to accommodate 128 persons and to Cedar lake where cabin facilities total 96 beds.

"The Detroit board of education has assured the National Park Service that it could use six more camps," added Mr. Lamley.

"We make a flat charge of 25 cents a person per night for use of the camp buildings. We require that some established organization, such as the Boy Scouts or Girl Scouts, assume responsibility. We have sunk deep wells for water supply. We have provided modern sanitation. We have brought in electricity. Sponsoring these camps in Detroit, Ann Arbor and soon in Jackson is a group known as the 'Waterloo Committee'.

"The Waterloo project has other attractions, too. We have a trout pond, created by impounding a stream, which the state conservation department stocks with legal-size trout. Without a fee, licensed fishermen can cast for trout, but the day's limit is two.

"Hiking trails are under development. In our reforestation program the National Park Service has planted 350,000 hardwoods and is maintaining its own tree nursery. This territory, by the way, is rich in diversified trees. We have oaks, maples, beech, bass, elm and ash in large numbers. Then there are the tamaracks, red cedars and ground junipers—the sumac, the dogwood, the sheep-berry and the holly. Fall colorings are unusually fine here between October 1 and October 15.

Bridle Paths, Skating

"As many points in the Waterloo area are very hilly, 1,000 feet above sea level, constituting a natural divide between the lakes Michigan and Erie, we plan to construct toboggan slides for winter sports. Several riding academies now maintain saddle horses. Bridle paths are being built.

"The entire area here — 12,000 acres in all—and around 4,000 acres at Yankee Springs constitute a perpetual game sanctuary."

Aiding the National Park Service at Waterloo is a new camp of the Civilian Conservation Corps and the Cassidy Lake "Tech" work-study school of the National Youth administration.

At one time this year the government was employing 870 persons at the Waterloo recreational area. This is an index of how the government is spending money in Michigan on these outdoor playground tracts.

Grayling's Winter Park

Because Grayling is readily accessible by train or road from Detroit and Chicago, is situated north far enough to get a fair share of freezing temperatures, and is blessed by hills and pines, this northern town was selected by the National Park Service for development of an ambitious winter sports park. (Back of the geographic factors was the vision and determination of Grayling home-towners, many of whom contributed hard-earned money to assure toboggan slides and a skating rink.)

Imagine a thrilling bobsled track with two or three hairpin bends that will shoot the sleds to the top of the banks! Picture also a steel ski jump 96 feet in the air! Consider next a scenic ski trail, 31 miles long, free from dangerous obstructions!

While the bobsled track and steel ski jump will not be available for the 1939-40 season, the toboggan slides have been relocated to obtain additional length, extra speed and greater safety and new ski trails are also in readiness.

"Birdie" Tebbetts of the Detroit Tigers has been engaged as publicity director for Winter Sports, Inc., a civic organization backed by Grayling boosters.

At Isle Royal the National Park Service has ambitious plans under way, preparatory to the time when this island will become a full-fledged national park. In the meantime the "little national parks" at Waterloo, Yankee Springs and Grayling are rapidly being transformed out of acres of woods and lakes and streams

MICHIGAN SALES TAX ADMINISTRATION
Official News Bulletin

Citing the splendid cooperation of merchants throughout Michigan in aiding the work of the State Sales Tax Administration, Walter F. Reddy, managing director, recently pointed out methods by which merchants can save time and expense in ordinary conduct of their business. At the same time they can provide the necessary records to readily confirm figures on their tax returns, thus facilitating the sales tax auditor's check-up and reducing the state's cost of collecting the tax.

Many retail merchants, Mr. Reddy believes, would like to know just what kind of records they should keep to show the sales tax auditor when he calls.

In this respect the administration is not concerned with elaborate bookkeeping methods but makes the following suggestions: That a daily cash book be kept showing "cash received" and "cash paid out"; also that the monthly bank statement and cancelled checks be retained.

Of equal importance to both merchant and tax auditor is a sales book showing sales for cash and daily sales for credit. Credit sales are by law immediately taxable regardless of when or how payment is made. This same record should indicate each sale exempt from tax, giving reasons such as sales to welfare, the state, or other institutions exempt by law.

Finally, the auditor will wish to see a book containing records of purchases of stocks for resale. This completes the set-up and Mr. Reddy believes that in the long run such definite records will be to the advantage of the storekeeper.

"THANK YOU SO MUCH"

Returning Americans from Europe have been glad to accept any accommodations on shipboard in order to get back to their native shore.

On the crowded Queen Mary, Bob Hope is said to have topped the gala night show with this parody on "Thanks for the Memory":

"Thanks for the memory. Some folks slept on the floor, some in the corridor; but I was more exclusive, my room had 'Gents' above the door. Ah! Thank you so much. Thanks for the memory of good old Chamberlain; he won't quit until it's done; he's out to show this upset world, we don't need a Napoleon. So thank you so much." The Cunard Line is having the entire parody printed and distributed on all ships of the line.

NEW RULES OF THE ROAD
By Michigan State Police

Editor's Note: This is the third of a series of ten articles, prepared by the Michigan State Police, high-spotting Michigan's new traffic law which becomes effective September 29. Important changes have been made in customary driving habits. Greater safety — and fewer traffic arrests — will result from a close study of these articles.

Pedestrians

Michigan's new traffic regulations impose a definite responsibility on the pedestrian in its traffic safety provisions. The law governs his movement the same as it governs movement of vehicular traffic.

Pedestrians may cross a street or highway on the green light. If the yellow or amber light is showing they should not attempt to cross because there is insufficient time. They should not enter the intersection on the red light. However, if they do, they must not interfere with traffic.

If "walk" signals are in use, pedestrians should cross intersections on the "walk" signal. If a "wait" signal is in place, no pedestrian shall start across the street which such signal is showing.

It is especially important, the Michigan State Police point out, that pedestrians observe traffic signals so as not to interfere with vehicular traffic and to thus better insure their own safety.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS
By B. C. Mellencamp

Bang's Disease Program Nearly at Half Way Mark

It is very gratifying to learn that as of the present time 396 herds of cattle, with a toal of 2727 head, have been tested and only six reactors found. The townships of Boyne Valley, Bay, Chandler, Evangeline, Hudson, Melrose, and about half of Eveline are already tested.

It is significant to note that not more than one reactor has been found in any one herd and all infected herds have been retested with no further reactors. Thus, our infection is less than two-tenths of one per cent, which is extremely low. Antrim county has already had a complete test with a percentage of just slightly more than one tenth of one per cent.

It is sincerely hoped that our program can be continued to cove. the remaining townships. However, there seems to be some uncertainty in Lansing as to the future program. The federal government now states that, in counties where the first test was below five tenths of one per cent, accreditation can be given by only testing a small per cent of the total cattle. This may mean that this county has been sufficiently tested to definitely show a decrease in percentage.

If You Were Judge, Would You Grant These Divorces?

Some of the odd and weird plaints by unhappy husbands and wives which give some notion of the difficulties of American jurists who figure that King Solomon had, comparatively, an easy time of it, will be detailed in an article, one of many human interest features in The American Weekly, the great weekly magazine, with the October 1 issue of The Detroit Sunday Times.

Many of those rejected for military service, because of defective eyes, can still get licenses to drive. Evidently pedestrians are much easier to hit.

CANNED CHICKENS EARN TWO GOALS

Two dividends from the farm process of canning chickens can be earned this fall.

One is to provide some excellent winter meals from the plump birds put into jars or cans. Another is to cull out those hens that otherwise would not be earning their chicken feed.

Plump hens two years or a little older are the best, it is pointed out by members of the home economics extension service of Michigan State college. But there is one essential that goes with a good product from these older hens; that is a steam pressure canner.

The steam pressure outfit alone is capable of maintaining a temperature above boiling inside a can or jar. This high heat is necessary to kill bacteria which otherwise might cause dangerous food poisoning, or at least prevent proper keeping of the chicken until use. Water baths, steam without pressure or oven canning are not considered safe.

Pint jars or the No. 2 or No. 2½ plain tin cans are the best sizes, as larger containers make it difficult to properly process the chicken.

The chickens are dressed as they would be for immediate cooking. Skin on or off is a matter of preference, but excess fat should be trimmed. Meaty pieces, bony pieces and the giblets are separated. The bony pieces are cooked to make broth. Meaty pieces are precooked, not fried, before packing in the containers which then are filled with the broth. Giblets usually are canned separately because of their distinct color and flavor.

WOMEN STUDY FABRIC QUALITIES

It takes a well versed woman shopper to keep up with the science of fabricating cloth for clothing, now that textiles are popping out of such unusual sources as milk, soybeans, rubber and glass, plus the standby materials of cotton, wool, linen, silk and rayon.

Groups of women are enrolling throughout Michigan in fall projects of the home economics extension work of Michigan State College. Included in clothing projects is a study of fabrics related to a recent piece of research conducted by Miss Marjorie Eastman of the college home economics staff.

"There is no best textile fiber," Miss Eastman concludes.

"Each has its own special qualities that make it suitable for certain uses and unsuitable for others. Until the newer fabrics prove practical, the five present standbys seem best."

Qualities listed for cotton include its natural fuzziness. It is easily crushed, yet it is easily spun, makes a soft texture and launders easily. Linen in contrast has no linty surface, is cool to wear and also launders easily but wrinkles easily, often is irregular in texture, but is durable and smooth.

Silk's qualities include a smoth surface, fine texture, it drapes well, wears a long time, does not soil easily nor wrinkle easily and lends itself to rich colors. Wool is fuzzy and collects dust and dirt, wears well and wrinkles little; has thickness without great weight, is warm to wear and lends itself to deep, rich colors. Rayon is soil resistant, susceptible to wrinkling, resists effects of light and weather, requires care in laundering, does not mildew and resists injury from perspiration.

The height of distrust was displayed by the lad in the freckle contest who demanded a recount.

ruin and horror. You hear people offering to bet the United States will be in the war in two, five, six or eight months. You hear them say: "We'll have to become involved sometime." We certainly will if people keep talking that way! The President has said that as long as it remains within his power, we will not become involved. He echoes the minds and hearts of us all. Let's talk for peace instead of against it.

Charlevoix's football team opens the '39 season at south side athletic field Saturday afternoon. It would be a fine gesture of support if everyone would turn out for this initial game. The contest will start at 2 o'clock.

Have you seen the new tags the small game hunter must wear on his back? They are green with black numbers. The fellow who hunts both small game and deer will wear two tags on his back this year. He'll look like he's decorated for a parade! Wood Brothers and Staley Hardware Co. now have their supply of licenses and you'll need one if you intend to hunt the opening day next Sunday.

Central Lake had the European war brought closer to home last week. Homer and Edmund Fox, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Homer S. Fox of London, England, were sent to Central Lake to live with their grandmother, Mrs. Cora B. Fox. The obvious reason is to have the boys in a safe place while the father, a United States attache in London, continues his duties. Not altogether pleasant to think about.

See where Petoskey merchants have shortened business hours for the winter. Stores will be open from 8:30 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. on week days and until 9:30 p. m. Saturdays. Appears quite sensible, doesn't it?

It wasn't so many years ago that a person could create quite a furor by reporting sight of deer in the vicinity of Charlevoix. Now it is quite commonplace, especially since the buck made the exit through the rear window of Bill Meyer's garage and almost trampled pedestrians in his flight to Lake Michigan. Numerous reports of deer seen near the city have been made to this office the past few weeks. Claude Fairman saw three cross highway US-31 north of Atwood, Tuesday morning. Frank Courier saw a group of three near Bell's Bay; Cleo Lapeer saw a big buck north of town near Martin's Crossing and four were seen in one group at the Loeb Farms one day last week.

A year ago last week end produced the '38 season's best fishing. Mackinaws were being taken in big numbers from Lake Michigan, the steelhead were "hitting" in Lake Charlevoix, the perch "run" had started and smelt were biting good nights. Sorry I can't report the same for this year. It certainly would take a big worry off the minds of a lot of fellows if someone could explain what's happened to the steelhead. Maybe the weather has been too warm and the present cold spell will bring them on. Personally, I lay the absence of steelhead to the lack of minnows. Nobody can truthfully say minnows are plentiful, and it is my guess the famine will continue as long as this condition continues to exist.

LOCAL GROUP PLANS UP-PER PENINSULA JOURNEY

Frank Bird, Kit Carson, Ted Coblentz and H. G. Bird plan to spend the week end at their deer camp on the Two Heart river northeast of Newberry. Besides taking in the opening of the upper peninsula small game hunting season, the group will plant 5,000 pine seedlings on their property.

COMMERCIAL FISHING BAN BEGINS OCT. 10TH

Closes Lake Michigan for Netting and Trolling for Mackinaws

With closing of Great Lakes waters next month to the taking of lake trout by commercial fishermen, a measure which protects the fish during the spawning period, the most successful sport trolling season on record in these waters also ends.

Deep trolling for lake trout in Lake Superior and the Grand Traverse bay region has increased greatly in popularity this season. The sport may become one of Michigan's more important recreational attractions, vying with deep-sea trolling in the regard of seasoned anglers.

Special licenses issued by the Michigan department of conservation to owners of boats and equipment used in the sport which are chartered to fishermen increased from two to 15 along the Superior shore from Marquette to Grand Marais this season. Total of such licenses issued to date is 107. Eighty-six were issued in 1938.

Closed season for lake trout fishing in Lake Huron is October 10-31; Superior, October 10 to November 4; Lake Michigan, October 10 to November 10.

IRONTON NEWS

Our summer friends and neighbors have returned to their homes after spending the summer in their local cottages. We are all looking forward to seeing them again next year.

Merton Deuel, our local grocery man, is confined to his home on account of illness. We wish him a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Ole Lynklip of Detroit spent the past week end in their cottage.

Our local school is now having its regular routine of work for the year. Elsa Bradley is our teacher and is making her home with Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Ogden.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Clark are the proud parents of a baby daughter named Betty Lou. Mrs. Clark was formerly Hilda Jackson and they are now living in Bellaire, where Mr. Clark is an instructor in the public schools.

The local school bus operated by Ross Alexander began its regular work for the year and transports the eighth grade and high school pupils, sixteen in all, to Charlevoix. This is a new project for our school district and we hope it will be a successful one.

Dale Clark of Bellaire and Louise Bechtold of East Jordan were Sunday dinner guests at the Marian Jackson home.

Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Mower were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Dissette Monday evening.

"Ted" Dissette is making a new driveway to his home which goes from the ferry hill back of the ferry house. It will be much more convenient for winter months.

Mr. and Mrs. George R. Hemingway Jr. returned to Oak Park, Ill. Saturday after spending two months in their cottage.

Stanley Houghton has purchased the Bird farm and will move from the H. L. Barnum farm in a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Foster Johnson are living in the log cabin at the Wayside Garden. Mrs. Johnson was Doris Parks of East Jordan. They were married this past summer. The community wishes them much happiness.

Rally Day in the Church, 11:00
Rally Day in the Christian Endeavor, 6:45 p. m.

Usually our Rally Day program is limited to the Sunday school. But this year we are planning a rally for the entire church. We need to rally. During the summer our attention has been called to many other things aside from the church and religion. One has well said that "temptation never takes a vacation." The more removed we become from the church and its program of devotional life the easier marks we become for the shafts of temptation. Don't fool yourself, no one escapes, we need to rally. To get a newer vision of God through Jesus Christ and a new sense of responsibility we need to rally. To renew our consecration to God, we need to rally. Remember the hours, Sunday school at 10, morning worship at 11, C. E. at 6:45.

November 2, 1939, is the last day upon which these taxes can be redeemed. On the following day, November 3, the state of Michigan actually takes title to the property. They will own such properties. Miss Flanders believes that there are many property owners who, because of past extensions, have become careless about their properties.

"Beginning November 3, the taxes cannot be paid and there can be no transfer of the state's title until February 13, 1940, when the state land offices will hold a gigantic auction sale of the unredeemed properties," Miss Flanders explained. At that time property will be sold tax free and the bidding will have no relation to the amount of the taxes owing.

This will mark the first time in six years that the state has seized property under the tax sale law. Annual tax sales were shelved in 1933 as a depression measure. In 1938 the state sold all properties delinquent for taxes of 1935 and previous years as far back as 1929.

UPLAND GAME SEASON OPENS OCT. 15

30-DAY EXTENSION FOR RABBIT HUNTING GRANTED

For Squirrel Legal Game in Lower Peninsula—Other Changes in Regulations Are Listed

Small game hunters beginning their season's sport in Michigan this week can thank the 1939 legislature for diversified attention to their interests that resulted in seven separate new acts.

Most hunters will be interested in extension of the season on rabbits by 30 days in the upper peninsula and the northern half of lower Michigan. Squirrel hunters, who had to content themselves with other game last year, this season may hunt fox squirrels in all of the lower peninsula except Emmet and Cheboygan counties. Gray squirrels also may be hunted this year in the northwestern corner of the lower peninsula bounded by highways M-46, US-131 and M-113 and including Leelanau county. Upland game bird hunters will enjoy a season five days longer than last year's in the lower peninsula and eight days longer in the upper peninsula.

Small game hunters as well as deer hunters will wear their license numbers across the backs of their hunting jackets this year, though no change in the law was necessary to provide for this.

To the growing body of sportsmen who like to stalk their game as the Indians did, the legislature was generous. Deer may now be shot by bow and arrow November 1 to 14 inclusive in any county open to gun hunting two weeks later. Last year archers were confined to Iosco and Newaygo counties. The archer is limited to one license; he may not get a second license for gun shooting if he hunts in the bow and arrow season. The more skillful bowmen may be glad to hear it is legal to use their shafts on waterfowl also, this season.

MARION YOUTH STRUCK BY A HIT-RUN DRIVER

Vernon McGinnis, 16, Suffered Skull Fracture Thursday Night

Vernon McGinnis, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orval McGinnis of Marion township, received a skull fracture and scalf lacerations when struck by a hit-and-run driver last Thursday evening near his home on the Charlevoix-Ellsworth road.

According to reports, Vernon and companion, Jason VanZant, were walking along the highway when the car veered into them, striking Vernon and throwing him 20 feet. The driver is said to have then turned out the car lights and sped away.

Sheriff's officers, who have been investigating the incident, are still without clues to identify the driver.

COUNTY PROPERTY VALUATION DROPS

STATE TAX COMMISSION LOPS OFF $100,000.00

Petition Charlevoix Supervisors for Revision Ignored, Report Given Tuesday Reveals

Charlevoix's efforts through the state tax commission to obtain a revision of property valuations as set by the equalization committee of the board of supervisors, have failed.

This fact was revealed Tuesday afternoon when John W. Libcke and Alvin E. Richards, representing the commission, reported before a special meeting of the board of supervisors a decrease of $100,000 in county valuation as set by the equalization committee in June. Boyne City's valuation was decreased $50,000, East Jordan's $40,000 and Wilson township $10,000, placing the county valuation at $8,771,965 instead of $8,871,965 set last spring.

The report followed an investigation conducted during the summer following petitinn for a review by Supervisors C. B. Meggison, E. E. Cross and the late Darwin F. Meech, Charlevoix supervisors. As a result, the county tax, already designated and allocated, will be $9,000 short of anticipated revenues. The petition resulted from the county equalization committee's action in failing to recognize the valuation figure set by the Charlevoix board of review, accounting for an increase from $2,500,975 to $2,910,975, or $410,000.

Following the tax commission report, Supervisor Cross explained Charlevoix's valuation condition, citing particularly the Beach Hotel property from which no tax revenue has been received, also the general decrease in cottage rentals during the past few years as valid reasons for the city's request for a cut.

The remainder of the special session was devoted principally to discussion of the new welfare set-up which promises to be an issue at the regular October session scheduled to open next Monday.

CHARLEVOIX WINS OPENING CONTEST

DEFEATED MANCELONA BY 27 TO 0 COUNT SATURDAY

Combined Passing and Running Attack to Score Four Touchdowns, Play Boyne Here Saturday

Charlevoix high school's Red Rayders opened their 1939 foothall schedule at south side athletic field last Saturday afternoon with an impressive 27 to 0 victory of Mancelona high school.

While Mancelona may not have provided a major test of strength, the Rayders' margin of superiority, their versatile attack and strong defense showed indication of possibilities which no doubt will develop as the season advances. The Rayders had Mancelona on the defense the greater share of the game, the visitors advancing the ball into Charlevoix territory but once.

Charlevoix scored three touchdowns on forward passes and one from running attack. On the third play after gaining possession of the ball early in the first period, Bergmann tossed a pass to Jim Martin, who out-ran Mancelona's secondary defense to score. Bergmann drop-kicked the extra point for a 7 to 0 lead. Another pass, Nowland to McGhan, netted the second touchdown before the initial period ended. Nowland hit the line for extra point and a 14 to 0 lead.

Although playing entirely in Mancelona's territory, the Rayders were held scoreless during the second and early part of the third periods. Midway in the third quarter Mancelona fumbled on their 25-yard strip. On the next play Bergmann tossed a pass to Tom Carey for the third touchdown. His kick for extra point was wide and Charlevoix led 20 to 0.

Charlevoix's fourth touchdown came late in the final period. Mancelona punted to mid-field. McGhan broke away for a 20-yard run to Mancelona's 15-yard line. Tom Carey advanced to the 3-ynrd strip and Don Carey, substitute halfback, plunged over the remaining distance. A pass for extra point failed and the game soon ended with Charlevoix leading 27 to 0.

SHOT AT RANDOM

By Ken Usher

Received a communication racently from Harris Barnhart, local young man now residing in Chicago, stating he saw Allan "Dick" Shapton, another Charlevoixan, in the American Legion parade at Chicago with a Miami, Fla. unit. It's rather a small world after all.

If you ask me, it aure is the "nuts". Have been handed the "razzberry," "gooseberry" and numerous other things since I started this column, but it remained for "Bill" Higman to hand me the "nuts" for the first time. No kidding, he brought in a plant loaded with peanuts, grown in his own garden. Peanuts, we all know, are more commonly grown in the south, thus this incident is something quite out of ordinary. And would like it understood right now that I don't mind being "handed" things like this, but there is a place where the line must be drawn.

Well, the boys cracked the lid off the 1939 hunting season last Sunday —some in the upper peninsula after birds and rabbits, others below the Straits after ducks. Have heard a lot of alibis and seen few results to date. That includes my own gang. We got two partridge. Like all the others who hunted in the upper peninsula, our complaint is not so much lack of birds as over-abundance of foliage. There have been no heavy frosts to bring the leaves down, so you couldn't see the "pats" when they were flushed. Frank and Elmar Bird, Kit Carson and Ted Coblentz drew a blank, I hear. Must be Floyd Brown and Frank Courier anticipated just such a thing, for I understand, they dropped in on the gang Satur-

An apple a day doesn't always keep the doctor away, but low incomes have.

No one has known this better than 4,357 doctors in the Michigan State Medical society.

Two weeks ago these physicians, represented by official delegates in annual convention at Grand Rapids, officially approved a plan that is both liberal and daring. They hope that the experiment, for such it obviously is, may provide an intelligent answer to a problem that has long been a vexsome thorn. That social significance of the step was widely recognized is shown by the fact that news of the society's action was placed on front pages prominently beside headlines of latest war bulletins from Europe.

The problem is an old one, of course. But it was only in recent years that the serenity of the medical man was disturbed gravely by

Whooping Cough Immunization

It is improbable that local government will ever compel parents to immunize children against whooping cough, as France has recently prescribed protection against diphtheria, but few who are responsible for the safety and well-being of youngsters will fail in their duty.

Vaccination for whooping cough has long passed the experimental stage. Its effectiveness is demonstrated by recent studies which indicate that in a vaccinated group, only 2.3 per cent contract the disease, and that in a mild form, while in an unvaccinated or control group at least 15 per cent may expect to suffer. Children under ten years of age are especially susceptible and in children less than five the disease may be so severe as to cause death.

Attempts to control whooping cough by isolating individual cases as they appear are and will continue to be futile. This is because the victim may harbor the bacillus for as long as a week, transmitting it to others, before symptoms, other than those of a common cold, can be recognized.

The summer is the ideal time for immunizing children against whooping cough since the disease usually reappears in the winter and, later, in the spring. It is advisable to carry out protection against diphtheria and smallpox before giving the whooping cough vaccine. Every child should have the benefit of these protective agents before it attains its second birthday.

The vaccine itself has been so far perfected as to produce little reaction. Three injections at weekly intervals should confer immunity lasting for about five years.

Many child deaths and much illness resulting from the complications following whooping cough could be avoided were the family physician to suggest vaccination at the appropriate time and were parents to regard the procedure as part of a necessary routine.

Dairy Demonstration Team to Receive Handsome Gold Medals

The extension office has received handsome gold medals from the state club leader's office for presentation to the two members of the state winning team in the national 4-H dairy production demonstration contest. The activity stimulates dairy club members to acquire information, skill and understanding of recommended dairy practices.

The winners are Lawrence Ecklund and Clare McGhan of Charlevoix. It is planned to present these medals to these deserving 4-H club members at the evening program on November 4th as one of the highlights of the big Charlevoix "Farm Day." This award will be most appropriate because, at that time, the boys will have enjoyed their two weeks' trip to the National Dairy Show held in connection with the Golden Gate Exposition in San Francisco. Not alone do the boys win the trip, but the eight top teams will divide $2800 in college scholarships, all provided by the Kraft-Phoenix Cheese Corporation.

13 Groups Carrying on Home Economics Extension Project

The winter program in the home economics project started off with a bang last week when the first lesson of a series of four was given by Miss Helen Noyes, specialist in "home management" from Michigan State college, to the leaders of thirteen different groups. The lesson was devoted to discussing laundry and laundry supplies and materials. The leaders who were present spoke very highly of the project to be studied and are all set for a successful year.

Following are the groups and leaders as shown at the first lesson: Horton's Bay, Mrs. J. A. Koteskey and Mrs. David Smith; Marion Center, Mrs. Max Davis and Mrs. Bob O'Dell; Burgess, Mrs. Ida Burns; East Jordan No. 2, Mrs. Bud Scott and Mrs. Clifford Brown; East Jordan No. 1, Mrs. Paul Lisk and Mrs. Lester Walcutt; Clarion, Mrs. Henry Hinkley and Mrs. George Malloy; Peninsula, Mrs. Orval Bennett, Mrs. Clayton Healey; South Arm, Mrs. Kenneth Isaman and Mrs. Archie Murphy; Charlevoix, Mrs. Jeff Novotny and Mrs. Thomas Higman; Barnard, Mrs. Clyde Warner and Mrs. Clarence Murray; Evangeline, Mrs. Paul Clark and Mrs. Earl Martin; Boyne City, Mrs. Constance VanHoesen; Deer Lake, Mrs. Earl Barber and Miss Sidney Lumley.

Certainly the results of this instruction will be noted throughout the county as these thirteen groups are truly representative of the entire county. The quality of leadership is such that hundreds of women will be greatly interested in this effort.

Zane Grey's "Heritage" Crammed With Action

A hard-hitting, two-fisted, swift-shooting picture rides into town October 10-11 at the Palace Theatre, under the Paramount banner—"Heritage of the Desert." The Zane Grey action film stacks up with the best of the westerns of the season. The strength of the Paramount film lies in the fact that it avoids the stereotyped pitfalls of the usual western and at the same time retains the color, romance and vigor of the great outdoors.

Paramount's fresh approach is emphasized by bringing together strong cast, headed by Donald Woods, Evelyn Venable, Russell Hayden, Robert Barrat and Sidney Toler. The assisting cast is C. Henry Gordon, Paul Fix and Willard Robertson.

Gary Cooper in "The Real Glory"

Lovely dark-tressed Andrea Leeds and six-foot he-man Gary Cooper provide the romantic interest in Samuel Goldwyn's "The Real Glory," the new adventure drama about the heroic exploits of the Philippine Scouts, which is scheduled for its initial showing at the Palace Theatre on October 9th, when it begins a three-days' run. Directed by Henry Hathaway, this new production features in its supporting cast such top-notch players as David Niven, Broderick Crawford, Reginald Owen, Kay Johnson, Vladimir Sokoloff, Russell Hicks and Henry Kolker.

Range Hero Swaps Guns for Gloves

Buck Jones, for the first time in his twenty-year movie career as a rough-riding hero of the Western plains, swaps his smoking six-shooters for a pair of boxing gloves in Paramount's comedy-drama "Unmarried," which arrives October 10-11 at the Palace Theatre.

The idol of 2,000,000 Western movie fans portrays the role of a has-been pug who's a chump as far as his sweetheart, Helen Twelvetrees, is concerned, and a champ to an orphan, played by Donald "Small Fry" O'Connor.

Sunday school, 12 o'clock.
Meets first Wednesday evening of each month at 7:45 p. m.
Reading room open Saturday, 3 to 5 p. m.
We cordially invite the public to our service and reading room.

"Are Sin, Disease, and Death Real?" will be the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, October 8, 1939.

The Golden Text, (Psalms 103: 2, 3) is: "Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits: who forgiveth all thine iniqulties; who healeth all thy diseases."

Among the Bible citations is this passage (I Cor. 15: 26): "The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 427): "If man is never to overcome death, why do the Scriptures say, 'The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death'? The tenor of the Word shows that we shall obtain the victory over death in proportion as we overcome sin."

Could half-a-dozen starts or so get you through a day? Will your icy engine turn lukewarm in only 5 or 6 minutes? Even so, just think what that comes to, all through these bad months!...Total: 90 hours!
90 tough hours—and often more. A whole 90 hours when oiling that comes from "fast flow" alone lags far behind the sure lubrication that comes from changing today to OIL-PLATING.
OIL-PLATING is ready to lubricate sooner than any oil ever can flow—sooner than "instantly!"—because patented Conoco Germ Processed oil forces OIL-PLATING into a durable bond with the engine parts. OIL-PLATING becomes part of the parts!
They can't drain dry of OIL-PLATING. They remain "bathed in slippiness" all day, all night, in all weather, even with your car at a standstill. That's why OIL-PLATING lets your engine slide into swift, safe, dragless action, instead of letting it suffer Winter's worst 90 hours—along with your battery. Slash starting time; stretch your time between quarts to the limit, by changing to Your Mileage Merchant's Conoco station today for your right Winter Germ Processed oil. That's your way to Winter OIL-PLATING. Continental Oil Company the rise of n new spectre on the far horizon. It was that of state socielism.

The line-ups:

LANSING LETTER

At Washington a bill was prepared, for exsmple, which would put the national and state governments headlong into the medical field. Doctors would be subsidized, if you please, so that the masses in the United States might be assured of the medical care which they need. The cost would rapidly mount into hundreds of millions, so another federal tax, simllar to those for old age pensions and unemployment compensation, would logically follow to make it "self supporting."

Insuranco Policy

This is the background for the medical society's decision two weeks ago.

Having first obtained legislative sanction to do it, the society has set up a plan whereby any family may obtain family medicnl service at low cost on the same principle as buying nn insurance policy.

That involved an agreement on price, and the element of price has been something which, ten years ago, would have probably prevented even n preliminary discussion of the idea. Professional ethics were stern against the introduction of nnything that faintly smacked of "commercialism." The mention of price had that unfortunnte connotation to some.

Under the incorporation of the Michigan Medical Service, a nonprofit group, physiclans of Michigan now offer to provide full medical services to nny individual or family which agrees to make smsll monthly payments. It is the installment plan combined with an insuranec policy, all dignified by one of Michigan's leading professions as well ns by the state legislature, itself.

Operntion of the plan will go into effect in the nenr future. The state will supervise it through its insurance department at Lansing.

What You Get

And now for the plan in a nutshell.

For n subscription charge of $2.00 monthly, a family — including the husband and wife and all the children under 21 years of age—will be entitled to the service of a doctor of medicine of their own choice. The services offered include the following:

1. Medical and surgical care, including office, home and hospital visits.

2. Consultation service and special medical services including x-ray, laboratory, and anesthesin services.

3. Obstetrical care after subscriber has kept up pnyments for 12 months.

4. Diagnostic services necessary to determine the presence of tuberculosis, cancer, venereal diseases, or mental ailments. (Actual trentments for these conditions not included.)

Plan is Flexible

But the payment is not fixed.

The $2.00 monthly amount, for example, entitles the family to medical benefits up to $375 in any one year.

For $3.50 a month, the family is entitled to $550 in a year.

For $4.50 n month, the medical services may reach $875 in a year.

At the outset subscribers to the plan will he limited to employed persons under the age of 65 who ean be enrolled in groups of 25 or more. Such subscribers may, however, also enroll their dependents including the husband or wife and children under 21 years of age. An annual income not in excess of $2,000 for individual subscribers or $2,500 for subscribers and their families will be a membership requirement.

Restrictions are as few as possible. Medical services will not be made available for self-imposed conditions such as alcoholism, drug addiction and self-inflicted injuries. To limit demands for trivial services, the first $5 of medical expenses incurred each year must be paid by the subscriber. Subscribers will he entitled to free choice of any doctor of medicine legally licensed and practicing in the state of Michigan.

Hospital Plan Too

While the medical installment and insurance policy plan is brand new, Michigan being the first state to take such a step, an approved hospital plan on the same basis is now functioning in 25 states. Eleven states have rejected a plan for group hospitalization; twelve states have it now under consideration.

In Michigan this parallel service is sponsored by the Michigan Society for Group Hospitalization.

During the first five months of its operation in 1939, more than 40,000 subscribers were enrolled.

Ninety-five per cent of all hospitals in the state and all but five of those institutions having 50 beds or more, are participating in the movement.

The hospital plan provides 21 days of hospital service a year for each member of the family irrespective of number, furnishing complete service in a semi-private room (or ward) in any member hospital. Other benefits include use of operation room as often as necessary, anesthesia service when rendered by a salaried employee of the hospital, all routine clinical laboratory service; and ordinary drugs and dressings. After a subscriber has held a membership in the plan for twelve consecutive months, maternity service is furnished. This includes care for the mother and infant in n semi-private room or ward.

There are no age limits for adults, no physical examinations, no exemptions of chronic conditions, no given percentage of n group is required, and only ten need enroll to make the plan effective.

A cash deposit is not required from the subscriber nt the time of admission to the hospital. He is admitted upon presentation of his identification card, and the hospital sends the bill to the society for the services rendered.

2 cents a day

Rates for the Michigan hospital "insurance policy" are as low as 2 cents per day for the indlvidual and 5 cents a day for the entire family.

Monthly rates are:

	Ward	Room
Single subscriber .....$	.60	$ .75
Husband and wife	1.20	1.50
Family, children 1 to 19	1.50	1.90

The same legislature which authorized the group medical plan gnve sanction to the hospitalization program.

The 77 participating hospitals, with assets of over $65,000,000 further agree to return any surplus acerued in the operation of the plnn to the subscriber either in the form of reduced rates or increased benefits.

Regimenting of Medicine

With doctors and hospitals themselves taking the step to insure proper medical care to those of moderate incomes, the Michigan State Medical society believes that there is no social justification for regimentation of American medicine.

According to Dr. Edward J. McCormick of Toledo, past grand exalted ruler of Elks, "it is entirely in the realm of possibility that the Wagner program (subsidized health service) could double the present budget within the next decade. Can the United States stand the shock of the Wagner program without another depression? Any school child could answer that question."

ANTRIM COUNTY MAY GET ARMY AIRPORT

Purchase of Cut-Over Area for Target Practice Considered

The purchase of a strip of land in the eastern part of Antrim county to be used as a United States army airfield, is being considered, and a deal will probably be consumated this week.

Major James E. Bush has been in the county the past few days to locate a suitable place to establish the aviation training grounds, to be used as an airplane target range. The target practice consists of "shooting" at a white sheet hung from a flying plane, is the report.

If the deal goes through, the government will buy the field, which is five miles wide and nine miles long, and is cut-over land listed as delinquent tax property. Major Bush states that the area would be enclosed and traffic prohibited for safety measures.—Central Lake Torch.

They nabbed a couple of runaway girls in Chicago the other day. The home these comely misses were escaping, strangely enough, was Hollywood.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

By B. C. Mollencamp

Dairymen Cut Feeding Costs

Dairymen in Charlevoix county are among those aiding in proof that it doesn't pay to keep "star boarders" in the dairy herd.

Throughout Michigan the work of the 84 dairy herd improvement associations is hammering on two means of watching costs and trying to earn possible profits. One is from culling out unprofitable animals, the other is by feeding efficiently and economically the 28,000 cows on test in these associations.

By feeding more roughage in the form of legume silage and legume hay, dairymen are getting around the problem of extra purchases of grain. Suitable fall pastures also are more popular and evident than four or five years ago.

In reports of testing work compiled by E. C. Scheidenhelm, extension dairyman at Michigan State college, the 84 associations showed an average milk flow and fat yield in August that was surprising. Only a drop of one pound of milk a day was the average under July. Water supplies and additional quantities of dry feed helped avert the usual midsummer drop in the milk flow.

Proof of the unpopularity of inefficient producing animals, says Scheidenhelm, is the number of inquiries from dairymen who want to know how they can obtain membership in an improvement association.

Last Lecture on Child Care and Training on Thursday, October 5

All mothers will be interested in the two meetings scheduled for Thursday, October 5th, when Miss Alice Hutchinson, specialist from Michigan State college, will give her last discussion on child care and training. The first discussion will be given in the new community rooms at East Jordan on Thursday afternoon, starting promptly at 2 p. m. and the second meeting will be in the basement of the Boyne City library on Thursday evening starting promptly at 8 p. m.

These discussions are of particular interest as the subject relates to the many problems that mothers encounter in raising their families. Without question, the raising of a family places all parents in the most trying situations. What to do in certain circumstances is the problem. These lectures are devised to assist mothers in working out solutions to their problems. Often slight changes in family relationships helps, sometimes different types of discipline assist, while in other cases greater responsibilities should be given children.

Miss Hutchinson will describe human behavior. The different phases of a child's development will also be discussed. The problem child and how to bring about desirable changes in behavior is always of interest. Attend your nearest meeting and, with the assistance of Miss Hutchinson, discuss the problems of particular interest to you. Remember the first meeting at East Jordan at two o'clock p. m. on Thursday afternoon, October 5th, and the evening meeting in the Boyne City library at eight o'clock on the same day.

day night, bringing three chickens (the kind with feathers) with them. Understand the boys would like to enter Brownie in a chicken-eeting contest after seeing him partake. Harold Richmond says there was an excellent duck flight on Crooked lake and admits the reason he didn't get the limit is because he couldn't hit 'em. "Bill" Fessenden and Earl Miller were a little elusive about their luck on Wycamp lake, so will leave you to your own conclusion as I have done. The other fellows must have gone fishing, for this is the extent of hunting results I could obtain.

Ernie Kibbe got himself a good supply of fish hooks a few nights ago, I hear. He caught a 7-pound steelhead while night fishing off a dock on Lake Charlevoix. They say the fish had a hook and leader "Cy" Marshall lost two weeks previous fastened to it, as well as five other hooks in various stages of digestion. Saw the fish myself, so can vouch for the size. Understand Mrs. Anna Loeb is looking forward with anticipetion to another tussle with a big one that has so far made off with two spinner outfits. The first time the monster, believed to be a pike or muskellunge, was hooked, it got away with a spinner which Mrs. Loeb saw fastened to the side of its mouth when she hooked the fish and brought it along side the boat the second time. And while speaking about big fish, would like to know what become of that 10-pounder Clarence Wood promised to bring in and show me Saturday night.

Am certainly happy to give a more favorable report regarding fishing this week. Most important news is the fact that the steelhead "run" is definitely on. The channel, Round lake and Lake Charlevoix are teeming with minnows and some nice catches of steelhead have been made during the pest week. The perch "run" has started also. They started biting about Friday of last week and I saw some nice catches that were taken Monday. So if you have any friends who have been waiting for the customary good fall fishing, better drop them a line to come on! The hook and line smelt fishermen are having their fun now, too. Good catches every night off any of the Round lake and Lake Charlevoix docks.

Charlie: "You look all out of sorts. What's the matter?"

Peto: "Plenty. On account of my rheumatism the doctor told me to avoid all dampness—and you've no idea how silly I feel sitting in an empty bathtub and going over myself with a vacuum cleaner."

The most dangerous philosophy seeping through America today is that represented by the Gallup poll showing more than 40 per cent of those interviewed believe we will eventually get into the European war. From such reasoning can easily grow a calm resignation to war that will make it simpler for us to become involved. Instead there should be in the United States a flaming, militant determination that under no circumstances will we send our youth to Europe again to be slaughtared fighting an ideological war that we found in 1918 we could not win. The challenge to America is not whether we shall go into the European struggle. Our challenge is to keep the light of liberty and free men burning in the world. Our challenge may be to save civilization itself. We cannot do that if we, too, become resigned to taking part in this newest of Europe's age-old quarrels.

The Kiwanians are still soliciting contributions for their annual "White Elephant" sala to be held early in November. If you have any articles not in use which you would care to donate, just get in touch with Otto Krueger or any other Kiwanis member. Proceeds of the sale go into the Kiwanis fund for underprivileged children and to finance numerous other benevolences.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Cross. Monday was their 51st wedding anniversary.

It's too bad more of our summer residents are not here to enjoy these wonderful Indian summer days, the fine fishing and beautiful scenery only this time of year can provide.

You too, would have got a kick out of seeing Charlevoix's football team romp over Mancelona at south side athletic field last Saturday. If you didn't see that game, better be out for the Boyne City contest Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

For longer service, have your battery charged by GAMBLE'S slow process method. 6-volt, 35c.—Adv. 40t1.

Before the law allowing beers to be taken at any time could become effective, boards of supervisors of 36 northern counties asked, and the conservation commission ordered, that bear be killed in these counties only during the regular open deer season from November 15 to 30 inclusive, and only by means of firearms or bow and arrow. Taking bear elsewhere is now permissable. Old bear damage claims were ordered paid from the game protection fund and future claims were disallowed by the legislature.

Several comparatively minor matters were attended to. Hunters may feel safer now that reckless use of firearms is legally a misdemeanor. Many may appreciate the opportunity to train hunting dogs using pistols and blank cartridges to accustom them to the sound of guns, and they may be grateful that stealing of hunting dogs will be lessened by a registration and ear-tattooing system. They may feel relieved to know that when their watches read 7 a. m. (EST) it is "sunrise" and they can start shooting with no one getting the jump on them through a different interpretation.

One act of one brief, significant paragraph authorizes the commission to cooperate with the federal government in wildlife research and restoration projects, under the Pittman-Robertson act. From the federal excise tax on sporting arms and ammunition Michigan this year received $78,587, an annual grant which may grow to nearly twice this sum. Combined with a third as much state money, it supports projects like those now conducted at Rose Lake and Swan Creek, with the goal a general increase in game birds and animals.

Calvin J. Bennett, Clinton Blanchard, V. J. LaFreniere Elected Charlevoix County Directors

(By Leon W. Miller)

The annual meeting of members of the Top 'O' Michigan Rural Electric company was held at Boyne City on Monday evening, October 2.

The following directors were elected for the ensuing year: Charlevoix county—Calvin J. Bennett and Clinton Blanchard representing the mainland, Vernon J. LaFreniere representing Beaver Island; Antrim county—Peter Wieland and Harry Bos; Emmet county—Ralph Luesing and Christian G. Jensen; Otsego county—Herman Flott and Walter Wiegandt.

E. W. Hover of Washington, D. C., REA field engineer, and Ivan Bosman of Washington, REA power plant supervisor, gave brief talks.

At the time of this publication 528 miles of line are completed and energized and on these lines there are 843 members hooked on and using service. Along these same lines which have been energized 421 members have failed to wire their buildings and prepare to use current. These members are expected to prepare themselves to take energy as rapidly as possible.

The cooperative has had a good summer and with the new lines which have been energized this fall in Otsego and Emmet counties, the winter business should exceed that of the summer. The cooperative is already selling sufficient energy so that there is a considerable net operating reserve each month.

BOYNE WINNER OF SATUROAY CONTEST

DEFEATED CHARLEVOIX BY 25 TO 0 COUNT HERE

Red Rayders Completely Out-Classed by Boyne Squad — Play Saturday at Rogers City

Boyne city high school's Ramblers, twice defeated this season in non-conference tilts, opened their conference schedule with a 25 to 0 victory over Charlevoix's Red Rayders at south side athletic field Saturday afternoon.

Statistics reveal Charlevoix was badly out-classed throughout the contest. The Rayders gained but two first downs, those late in the contest, and advanced the ball into Boyne territory but once. The visitors excelled in every department.

Boyne scored once in the first, twice in the second and again in the fourth quarter, and added extra point following the last touchdown.

A bad pass from center and a punt which Boyne returned to Charlevoix's 20-yard strip, set the stage for the first touchdown. A lateral, Harper to Stackus, carried to the 2-yard and Goodwin plunged the remaining distance. Boyne was touchdown-bound as the first period closed and tallied again early in the second. The same play which accounted for the first marker, a lateral pass from Harper to Stackus, provided the second score and a 12 to 0 margin. The third came before the period ended, culminating an advance from the 30-yard strip. Stackus, Goodwin and Harper alternated on end runs to Charlevoix's 7-yard strip from where Harper crossed the goal in two plays.

Charlevoix held Boyne scoreless during the third quarter and until late in the fourth, when a march from Boyne's 30-yard line ended in the fourth tally. A series of passes and end runs provided steady gains deep into Charlevoix territory and a 15-yard penalty against the Rayders carried the ball into position for Harper to score his second tally of the contest. Harper hit the line for extra point and a 25 to 0 lead.

The Rayders never produced what might have been called a threat at any time. The contest was marked by frequent penalties, most against Boyne City.

The starting line-ups:

Charlevoix		Boyne City
Martin	re	W. Deitze
M. White	rt	Green
B. Hallett	rg	Bowers
Kohler	c	E. Deitze
Poole	lg	Erfourth
J. White	lt	Fineout
Novotny	le	Sayles
McGhan	qb	Staekus
Bergman	hb	Goodwin
Nowland	fb	Harper
T. Carey	hb	Price

The Rayders play away from home next Saturday, meeting the powerful Rogers City team on their home field. The next home contest is with East Jordan on October 21.

SHOT AT RANDOM

Boyne City's jovial John Olson was in town last Thursday and during a visit with him, learned he has leased his service station and is taking a long, needed vacation. John says he's going to put strings on his fiddle, repair fish poles, oil up the rifle and maybe even run for mayor. His Missus says she's going to lend her services as referee for arguments—political or otherwise—that John gets into. After the deer season they're going to Florida for the winter. It's a wise man who takes a vacation when he's able to enjoy it.

Here's one for the record book! A Gaylord angler, while fishing the Sturgeon river, caught a trout which appeared to be a monstrosity with two tails. Closer observation, however, revealed an ordinary 9-inch trout with the tail of a 4-inch trout sticking out its mouth. To top it all off, the darn glutton was caught on a large muddler!

Have had the thought in the back of my mind for some time that I'd enjoy a boat trip to Beaver Island some day. Changed my plans, however, when I heard about what happened to a local party visiting the island recently. One fellow, I understand, lost his "atore" teeth overboard and would now be eating soup if it hadn't been for a coast guard diving down to get them, while another dislocated his hip in some way or other.

An interesting story, accompanied by photographic proof of the merganser duck's appetite for fish was published on the outdoor page of Saturday's Traverse City Record-

LANSING LETTER

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

Home rule for administration of relief, authorized by the 1939 state legislature as part of an "economy" program, is coming home to roost in more than 80 counties this week.

County supervisors are in session. During the last gubernatorial campaign supervisors urged defeat of the 1937 welfare act. They insisted that a centralized system of providing relief to jobless and unemployables was fodder for a highly trained social worker, yet was a luxury that Michigan could not afford. Local control would lower costs, they pleaded. Many voters agreed.

The 1937 welfare act was defeated, and the problem was thrown into the laps of 1939 legislators.

A new law was enacted whereby handling of relief was returned to counties. The state was pledged to match local payments, dollar for dollar. A three-member board was to be set up in each county, two mem-

CENTRAL LAKE

Mrs. Nemie of Creswell is somewhat improved in health at Petoskey hospital, where she went three weeks ago.

William Frame has torn down his house near Kennedy's Corners and is now living in rooms at the home of Mrs. Morrow.

Mrs. Mitchel, near Bellaire, is very low at present writing. Mrs. Wm. Roberts of Central Lake, has been attending her.

Billy McLachlan begins his college work at Michigan State next week. Carl Larson of Green River is doing fine work there.

Wedding bells are ringing!

Central Lake has its streets repaired in fine shape, thanks to the road commission.

Farmers are hustling out the potatoes and corn these days before winter is upon us. We hear that potatoes are about 50c per bushel at the local market.

A nice shower was given Miss Alice Coleman at the Aaron Coleman home east of Central Lake last Friday evening. The Espy Hubbel family were out of town guests.

The young people of the farm took advantage of Institute week to help hustle out the potato crop for their parents. It won't be long until the "beautiful" will be coming down.

Lloyd Nedham, who tried to commit suicide at Elk Rapids last week by taking lysol, we hear is getting better. He had become discouraged on account of not getting work, we are told.

We are sorry to hear of the serious illness of Mrs. Sadie Bedell Meggison of Marion township, Charlevoix, and hope she will soon recover. She wss a former pupil of the writer at Snowflake for two years.

Lyle Morse is helping on the building of a cottage at the foot of the Dean hill for William Oliver of Central Lake. Rains have impeded the work some. He is anxious to get it built before winter sets in.

Mr. McGhan of Charlevoix visited at the Frank Greenman home the first of the week. Their son Clare, starts Friday on the 4-H trip to California, where they will be royally entertained at the World's Fair for two weeks.

George Odell, an old resident of Creswell neighborhood, died at his farm home there at nine o'clock last Sunday morning. He had been ill for some time, having suffered a stroke a few years ago. He will be missed by many friends of the neighborhood. He was 68 years of age.

An interesting meeting of the Fifth District Michigan Teachers' association was held at Petoskey last Thursday and Friday. The outstanding address was that of Bishop Oxham of Boston. He urged the co-operation of churches, teachers and all in the meeting of the problems of today.

It is with regret that we record the passing of Mrs. Isabel of Eastport, from a stroke of paralysis. She was well known and respected by many here. She was a member of the Presbyterian church. Mrs. Isabel was a wonderful singer, and sang for many years in the Baptist church at Eastport, and at many gatherings nearby. One especially, was at the wedding anniversary a few years ago, when she composed and sang a song for Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Guyer of Eastport.

BEAVER ISLAND

Cleo Harris was a business caller in Petoskey Wednesday.

Mrs. Sadie McDonough was a visitor on the mainland this week.

CLARK SCHOOL NOTES

Our everyday studies are also becoming interesting.

We certainly are enjoying our play equipment. The swing are always in use.

For morning exercise we are reading "The Bobbsey Twins Camping Out." We are finding it very interesting.

Rev. Ringenoldus is going to teach the Bible in our school, starting Friday. The class period is from 1:45 to 2:30.

We enjoyed a nature study trip Wednesday afternoon. We visited the Parson's woodland, near the lake. Our teacher, Miss Baumbach, took us on our trip.

Mrs. I. L. Dice visited last Saturday at the home of Mrs. Florence Ypma of Charlevoix.

Oscar Light of East Jordan was a Sunday visitor at the home of his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Light.

Mrs. Milton Richardson visited at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Denzel Wilson of East Jordan from Wednesday until Sunday of last week.

Mrs. John Racignol and granddaughter, June Nowland of Petoskey, were guests from Thursday until Sunday at the home of the former'a sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Murrill Richardson.

LIBRARY NOTES

The Charlevoix Public Library received as a gift a very unusual book, "Nature Talks" by the late Mrs. Alice C. Erwin of Harbor Springs.

This "Nature Talks" has been compiled and published and comes as a gift from Mrs. H. M. Harrington of East Jordan.

Mrs. Erwin was recognized as a devout nature student, known thruout Michigan and beyond. She was on speaking terms with the birds, the flowers, the rocks, and all wild folk. Each page of this book contains one article for each day of the year. Her "talk" on the "Petoskey stone" found on the shore of Lake Michigan, around Charlevoix and Petoskey, is especially interesting.

With the exception of a few pieces of this petrified coral found in New York, Louisville, Ky. and near Iowa City, these stones are to be found no other place. "Petoskey Stone," of course, is the local name given for this particular composite coral which flourished in the clear water of the ancient seas.

Each page is filled with interesting sketches of the beauties of the north, from the opening of the arbutus in the April sun, to the lovely Northern Lights.

The public library is fortunate to have a copy of this interesting book.

LANSING LETTER

bers of which were to be named by the supervisors and the third man to be appointed by the state social welfare commission.

This sounds simple, but complications were numerous.

Big Business

Relief has become "big business" in America today.

Expenditures for the poor once were nominal. The word "poor", usually associated with "charity", vanished upon the advent of the Great Depression which swallowed millions of workers into idleness. It became "unemployed". Millions of dollars were poured out from Washington to sustain life and to maintain morale on a basis of American decency. State capitals were called upon for legislative appropriations.

To prevent possible political misuse of relief millions, the social worker was glorified in a big way. Relief applicants had to be certified as to need, and that meant careful scrutiny by trained investigators. Salaries increased as responsibilities grew; payrolls mounted as more millions were spent; the entire administrative overhead sprung up like a mushroom.

The old relief system, keyed to a limited need, was put into total eclipse by a highly centralized system focused on Washington and Lansing.

During the 1938-39 fiscal year the state spent approximately $15,000,000 for direct relief alone.

This was a lot of money. A deficit in the state treasury was one result.

Economy

The 1939 legislature, heeding demands for economy and hoping that local control for relief would aid in realizing this objective, passed a law that gives the county supervisors the whip hand with certain limitations.

First, the act attached a string to the "home rule" proviso by requiring counties to pay the cost of local administration—an expense which the centralized system (or state control at Lansing) had previously borne.

Second, more administrative responsibility meant more financial responsibility. That called for raising the "ante" in some counties which had coasted along, letting the state carry most of their load.

Third, a practical limitation was imposed by an arbitrary slicing of the fiscal relief appropriation (1939-40) from $15,000,000 to $8,750,000, or a reduction of nearly one-half.

True, legislators prayed that business would pick up, that the new plan would effect new economies, and that counties would absorb the balance of the need. The present state social welfare commission, headed by Walter F. Gries of Ishpeming, has turned a deaf ear to occasional cries for a special session of the legislature. Even Mel McPherson, unofficial state spokesman for the supervisors, has admonished counties to prepare to carry their part of the load. Having asked for home rule, supervisors were told to shoulder the new responsibilities cheerfully. This they are doing for the most part, although grumbling profusely and loudly against Washington's hard-boiled attitude that spending of social security money (unemployment compensation, old age assistance, etc.) must be done only by persons hired under federal civil service standards.

Matching Plan is Out

The legislative intent, as expressed in the law, was that the state should match relief dollars of counties. It was thought at the time to be insurance that counties would do their part in a decentralized program.

However, just the unexpected happened. In Wayne county, for example, the 50-50 plan was hailed with delight. Wayne county had been doing more than a good many upstate counties. With only $8,750,000 on hand to spend, state officials realized the matching plan would quickly exhause their 12-month appropriation. This part of the law has been openly ignored, and probably will not be enforced by the present commission.

A hitch also developed between the supervisors who wished to control the spending of all relief funds and the social security administration at Washington which adhered strictly to a policy of hiring skilled, trained workers on a non-partisan, civil service basis, thus minimizing any chance of political mishandling of federal or state funds.

Supervisors proposed, in some counties, to engage a single director whom they would hold responsible for administration of all welfare funds—direct relief by the state and county governments, unemployment compensation and old age pension jointly by state and federal governments, and so on.

Washington was unyielding to suggestions for an integrated system unless it was established according to civil service requirements.

And there hangs another interesting hitch in the Michigan welfare situation today.

Civil Service

This Saturday (Oct. 14) written tests will be conducted by the civil service commission for social workers and social work administrators who are to handle the social security money.

The minimum requirements for a social work administrator under federal standards are these: "Four years of experience in social welfare work in a public or private social agency, one year of which shall have been in a responsible administrative capacity and completion of two years of college training including or supplemented by courses in the social sciences.

Higher classes for social work administrators (to be hired in larger counties) call for six years of experience as a social welfare administrator and up to four years' college training.

It is said on good authority in Lansing that not one county supervisor in Michigan could possibly qualify for the job of relief administrator under these conditions!

The result was inevitable.

Dual System Favored

Because of the civil service standards which automatically ruled out the average local official, most of Michigan's four score counties are going to adopt what is known as the "dual system."

Under this plan the three-man county welfare board will either become a working board whose members draw annual salaries and devote their full time to their duties or will become a policy board with per diem allowance and with the actual work being done by full-time administrators.

Federal-state funds (social security) will be expended by persons who meet federal civil service standards.

State-county funds will be handled by persons who meet requirements established by the local county board.

This, in brief, will constitute the "dual system."

For example, Genesee county has a three-man working board. One man will administer direct relief. Another will be in charge of hospitalization, infirmary, and other services. The third man will be responsible for the social security funds—unemployment compensation, old age assistance, and so on.

Each administrator will get $3,000 a year salary.

Unless Washington rules otherwise, the social security administrator must meet rigid civil service requirements for a competent, trained man in the field of social welfare. Supervisors can pick who they please for their two members on the board, and the state commission is expected to concur in their recommendation for the third man who is to represent the state in welfare activity. But the social security administrator must hurdle the civil service test of proven competency.

OFFERS THREE DON'TS IN WASHING WOOL

Three "do not" bits of advice are offered Michigsn housewives who are nr will be washing woolen articles.

Don't use a washing machine.

Don't use hnt water.

Don't rub or wring.

Laundering wool, ssys Mrs. Lois Hays, instructor in institutional management at Michigan State college, is not a difficult job, but the nature of the material requires special treatment.

A washing temperature of 90 to 100 degrees Fahrenheit is safe, Mrs. Hays cnntends, but in order to reduce mechsnical action on wool the washing procedure should be as brief as possible.

Use a high quality of soap that will raise a high suds. For highly soiled wool, a small amount of alkali such as borax assists in removing the dirt. Change the suds after five minutes of squeezing actlon and rince quickly and many times in water of the same temperature as the suds.

Moderate drying temperatures help avoid getting a harsh feel to the wool. Circulating warm air, or drying outdoors if possible are recommended.

Stains shnuld he removed before washing. Grease comes out with commercial solvents or by rubbing with olive oil before washing out with soap. Rust stains can be remnved with dilute oxalic acid solutions. Garments nf several different colors should be washed separately to prevent bleeding of the colors.

Sunday mnrning service, 10:45.

Sunday school, 12 o'clock.

Meets first Wednesday evening of each month at 7:45 p. m.

Reading room open Saturday, 3 to 5 p. m.

We cordially invite the public to nur service and reading rnom.

"Doctrine of Atonement" will he the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches thrnnut the world on Sunday, October 15, 1939.

The Golden Text (I John 2:1) is: "If any man sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous."

Among the Bible citations is this passage (Rev. 22;14): "Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 202): "The scientific unity which exists between God and man must be wrought out in life-practice, and God's will must be universally done."

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT

Immunizing for Scarlet Fever

Despite the vast nmount of research and experiment which has been expended on the development of a scarlet fever preventive, medical men nre disinclined to npprnve, without reservation, any of the prncedures now available.

Immunizing agents are admittedly inferior to those employed for diphtheria and smallpox. Reactions are occasionally more severe than nn attack nf the disease. Treatment for scarlet fever has been developed to a point where dangers formerly encountered, are now generally avoided. Finally, it is estimated, about half of all children are naturally immune.

There is no objection to giving a child the Dick test to determine whether it possesses this naturnl immunity but whether to follow a negative result with an attempt at prevention through inoculation is a matter best left to the family doctor for decision.

No cases of scarlet fever should be regarded lightly. It is true that the severe type seen in fnrmer years, has virtually disappeared. Nevertheless, the best of medical and nursing care is demanded if complicatinns, resulting in permnnent injury to the health, are to be avoided. Perhaps the most common of these after-effects is nephritis, which must be treated as an acute inflammation of the kidneys from nny other cause. The fever not infrequently extends from the throat into the ears nnd is responsible for many cases nf adult deafness. The ears may discharge for a lnng time and, while doing so, the patient mast be regarded as contagious.

It should be remembered that any abnormal discharge from the ears, nose, throat, eyes or from any abscess or sore of the scarlet fever victim should call for expert management in order to avoid infecting others. The blood-destroying germ of the streptococcus type can be transmitted from one person to another through the medium of handled articles even after a period of several weeks.

Eagle. The stomachs of two merganaers shot by Parker Pennington of Interlochen on Green lake were found to contain 57 amall fish. One had eaten 23 tiny bass, the other 32 bass and two shiners. Assuming this to be a day's meal, it isn't hard to estimate the number of fish a merganser would consume in a year's time. They invade lakes and trout streams as well, summer and winter alike. And the sad part of it all is they are protected by law except during the regular open season on ducks. Have long advocated mergansers be shot at any time of year and this instance only goes to strengthen such a contention.

Charlevoix isn't making any noise about color tours and the like, but I'd defy anyone to show more beautiful scenery than the shorelines of Round lake and Lake Charlevoix present at this time of year. I don't possess the words sufficient to describe the beauties of fall foliage.

The conservation department has issued an appeal to hunters to be careful about setting forest fires and n timely one, too, in view of the small game season opening Sunday. Thousands upon thousands of hunters will invade the woods and they can prolong their pleasure in the outdoors indefinitely by being a little careful nbout discarding cigarettes, cigar butts and pipe embers.

Charlevoix's football team took quite a thumping from Boyne here Saturday and I'm still wondering how come at least five of the regulars warmed the bench throughout the contest.

The deer hunting season opens just 31 days from Sunday! If you had observed some of the boys out trying their rifles, you'd know the big event is getting mighty close.

CIVIC LEADER IS TAKEN BY DEATH

INJURIES FROM FALL FATAL TO JOSEPH J. HALLETT

Operated Hotel Hallett Since 1912; Was Member City Council—Funeral Services Held Saturday

At funeral services conducted at 9 o'clock Saturday morning from St. Mary's church, Charlevoix residents paid last respects to Joseph John Hallett, summer hotel proprietor and civic leader, whose death occurred Wednesday, October 11.

Mr. Hallett died from shock and injuries received Tuesday in a fall caused when a ladder upon which he stood while picking apples crashed to the ground when the limb against which it was leaning broke.

Mr. Hallett was born July 31, 1869 at Weymuth, England. He was two years old when his parents arrived at Port Hope, Canada, and had reached 14 years when they came to Charlevoix. He had a varied career, sailing the Great Lakes for many years. He operated a restaurant in Chicago seven years and was engaged in the hotel business in Denver, Colo. He returned to Charlevoix in 1900 and 1912 built the Hotel Hallett, known to patrons throughout the United States.

In 1893, Mr. Hallett was united in marriage to Lennie Hennessey, who survives him besides three sons, Irving, John and Harold of Charlevoix, and two grandsons.

Mr. Hallett was a member of the city council and was serving his third term as alderman from the third ward at his death.

CHARLEVOIX LOST TO ROGERS CITY

DEFEATED BY 19 TO 0 COUNT THERE SATURDAY

Blocked Punt Gave Victors Initial Touchdown After Scoreless First Half—E. Jordan Here Saturday

Charlevoix's Red Rayders met defeat for the second time of the season last Saturday, dropping a 19 to 0 decision to Rogers City's class B outfit. The Presque Isle county team won from Charlevoix by a 32 to 0 score last year.

Although defeated, the Rayders showed marked improvement over last week when they lost to Boyne, a team Rogers City had defeatgd by a good margin.

Hampered by heavy winds, both teams confined themselves to line plays during the first half which was quite evenly played and ended scoreless.

The initial score came mid-way in the third period. A series of end runs brought Rogers City to Charlevoix's 2-yard strip, where a fumble, recovered by Charlevoix, momentarily ended a touchdown march. The Rayders gained 2 yards and on the next play Bergmann's punt was blocked and recovered by a Rogers City player behind the goal. A line buck netted the extra point. Rogers City scored again before the period closed on a sweeping end run of 50 yards, and tallied their third touchdown in the final period on a forward pass over the goal line.

The Rayders gained good yardage in the first half on power plays and several completed forward passes, but lacked the punch to score against the heavier and more experienced Rogers City outfit. The play of Ernie Nowland for the Rayders was outstanding.

The Rayders make their last home appearance of the season Saturday afternoon when they play a strong, veteran East Jordan team. Jordan has lost one game, that to Gaylord last Saturday by a 13 to 0 count. They previously buried Manceloua by a 47 to 0 margin.

SUPERVISORS CONCLUDE ACTIVITIES

ADJOURNED 7-DAY SESSION TUESDAY AFTERNOON

Adopt Integrated Welfare Set-Up and Name Two Commissioners—Make Annual Appropriations

The annual October session of the Charlevoix county board of supervisors adjourned Tuesday afternoon.

Committee reports were heard and adopted on a large scale the closing day after deadlocks over the new welfare set-up and other controversial matters were disposed nf to clear the way for adjournment.

Indicating variance nf opinion over the welfare matter, the hoard vnted 14 to 11 for the integrated, or single unit system, unanimously for a part-time commission and 15 to 10 on a motion prohibiting commission members from acting as case workers.

N. J. Rovick, Boyne City, was elected a commissioner for three years, Percy Penfnld, East Jordan, for two years. The name of Harold Lamb, present ERA director, has been sent to Lansing with recommendation of the bnard and county officers for state appointment as third member and administrator. The new set-up combines hospitalization and infirmary, handled by the poor commissinn; direct relief, dependent children and the blind, handled hy the ERA; and old age assistance, handled by the state, under the new county commission, which is responsible to the board of supervisors through its twn appointed members and to the state welfare bourd thru the administrator.

L. P. Adams was named member of the county park cnmmission for 5 years to succeed S. M. Rose, and Hownrd Porter, East Jnrdan, to fill the unexpired term of the late W. P. Porter.

SHOT AT RANDOM

By Ken Usher

Tuesday's snow flurry was probably just a fair sample of approaching winter and, perhaps, a warning to expect it. We woke up with the roof-tops covered with the "beautiful." Guess we were lucky, however, in view of reports of a 4-inch snowfall in the Cadillac district Friday and Saturday.

The boys all seem to be pretty well satisfied with results nf the opening days of the small game hunting season. Haven't heard of any particular limit bags of partridge, but pretty nearly everyone I've talked to got n few. Heavy ground cover made it pretty tough for the rabbit hunters, according to most reports, and unless you went over east where heavy frosts have brought the foliage down, leaves are pretty thick for good bird hunting. I don't dare to mention any names, but I know one fellow who shot 32 times for twp birds. There's two and n half weeks of open season ahead of us yet and during that time conditions will no doubt improve.

I used to think our city council and sometimes our hoard of commerce were a scrappy bunch until setting in on some of the sessions of the board of supervisors. Some of the topics for argument weren't so weighty, either.

Orchardists are getting a "break" on their record apple crop through purchase in this region of 200 carloads by the Federal Surplus Commodities Corp. Prices range from 65c to 75c per bushel, which isn't a bit bad. We can all be glad the farmer is to realize something from

Victim of Might

LANSING LETTER

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

The modern American gypsies, the Henry Smith family, have been rediscovering Michigan's 56 state parks.

Whereas Grandfather Smith was content to pitch his tent on any well drained camp site along a lake or stream, Henry and his tribe are spoiled to comforts of civilization. Grandfather may have liked to "rough it", but the present Smith clan go to a state park and they want conveniences of home.

All of this is merely leading up to the interesting fact, and a rather timely one too, that the state conservation department has a new problem child on its doorstep, and while officials think they know what to do about it, they're not absolutely sure.

One result, to get the ending at the beginning, was the 1939 legislature's action in authorizing $500,000 more funds for the state park's biennial appropriation (and that in the Alba schools and some others have taken a potato vacation. Some seasons it comes out pretty fair, but most times the weather appears to be about the worst then, so that the better way is to stay out and work when necessary.

Mr. Fairman, the fruit man, marketed some nice snow apples at Atwood Saturday. He now raises quite a few peaches also. He says northern McIntosh are much firmer and better than those raised farther south. On the other hand, York Imperial ripen best in Missouri. The writer has some that have been kept over a year.

The funeral of James Wilson, an old resident of this place, was held here last week Thursday. He had suffered for some time with a stroke of paralysis. Rev. Rector, Congregational preacher here last year, and now teaching at Elberta, preached the funeral sermon, and Walter Shooks sang. Remains were interred in Southern cemetery.

Bean threshing and bad weather has held up the potato harvest, and many farmers are hurrying to get their potatoes out of the ground before snow comes. Many are using the potato planter, and some are using the tractor as power for it. Seems as though someone would invent a carrier for the potatoes as soon as they come from the digger, so that they could be sacked without picking up.

STATE TO TRY NEW CAR LICENSE PLAN

No "Favor" Plates Will be Issued to Car Owners Next Year

Secretary of State Harry F. Kelly has refused to deviate frum the policy he and law enforcement officials decided upon several months ago—no "favur" automobile license plates in 1940.

Every license plate next year will have two letters and four numerals and automobile owners will take what they get. The plates will be distributed in sequence. The opening date for sales of 1940 plates has not been announced.

The system to be used this year was worked out by Kelly at a meeting with state police, Detroit police and officers of the sheriff's association.

The first automobile owner who applies for a license in Wayne county for instance, will be given the number AA-1000. The second one will receive AA-1001.

"The plates must be issued in sequence," Kelly said. "Any employee of this department who issues a plate out of sequence will be fired."

Kelly said he regretted that persons who had "squatters' rights" to low numbers would be deprived of them. To make an exception for them, he said, would destroy the value of the entire scheme.

ONE-BUCK LAW REMAINS ON STATUTES THIS YEAR

No Open Season on Does Legal, Department Announces

Emphatic answer to early inquiries about doe deer shooting this fall is that the one buck rule is still the law, and a law which will be rigidly enforced.

Uncertainty in the minds of some persons appears to result from debates about antlerless deer hunting before and during the last session of the legislature. Two bills relating to deer hunting were introduced at the 1939 session. One proposed the granting of permission to kill does for camp purposes and the other would have permitted the killing of bucks and does in a season dating from November 15 to 22. Neither was passed. Hunting of doe deer also has been much discussed in connection with the problem of winter food shortage experienced by some northern herds.

To all questioners the field administratiun division of the department of conservation, which has charge of law enforcement, replies that the law permitting one antlered buck to each licensed hunter and another buck deer to each camp of not less than four persons, for camp purposes, remains unchanged.
